Labor Chiefs Support Wilson's Wage Freeze

U.S. HAS CHOICE

'Invade North Now Or Fight 10 Years'

By GEORGE McARTHUR

SAIGON (AP)—Premier Nguyen Cao Ky gave the United States a choice today of aiding South Viet Nam another five or 10 years or invading North Viet Nam to finish the war.

Citing repeated North Vietnamese declarations to fight on as long as 20 years, Ky told a press conference:

"We have the patience but can we say the same thing of our allies? Are they ready to help us for five to 10 years . . . If not, we must destroy the Communists in their lair."

Reacting to the Johnson administration's repudiation of his suggestions for a military confrontation with China and a possible invasion of the North, Ky said: "I would say there is actually no desire to invade North Viet Nam because the struggle which we have been carying on is rather a self-defence, a struggle for self-defence."

If South Viet Nam becomes strong and a democratic and economically sound example, he continued, "the people of North Viet Nam will turn their faces to the South and will overthrow the Communist regime. This second concept requires patience and time. This is the work of five, 10 or 15 years."

POST UNDER FIRE

Meanwhile, the Viet Cong shelled the command post of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division at Cu Chi, 18 miles northwest of Saigon, for nearly two hours Tuesday night. A spokesman said the Viet Cong attack caused light casualties in the U.S. tent city.

U.S. air raids continued against the North and two more planes were lost, bringing the number of American planes reported downed over North Viet Nam to 310. Three planes were rescued.

Ky's statement was in reply to questions about his comment in an interview in U.S. News and World Report last week that "it is better to face (the Chinese) right now than in five or 10 years" and suggesting an allied invasion of North Viet Nam.

The pronouncements were in line with similar previous declarations by Ky and Nguyen Van Thieu, chief of state, but they touched off a storm in the U.S. Senate Tuesday.

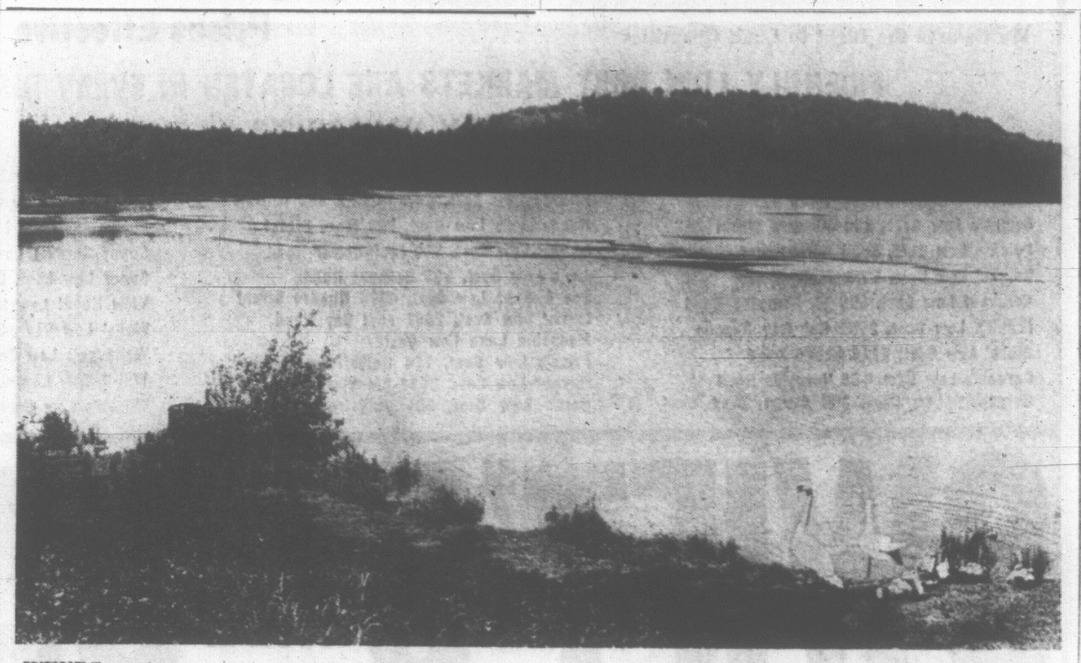

Democratic Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana called on the Johnson administration to dissociate itself from Ky's statements.

A state department spokesman commented: "Our position of not seeking any wider war ha. been repeatedly made clear and remains our position."

TWISTING TRANSPORT TO FLY FAST, HIGH

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal-based World Wide Patents Corporation, Ltd., has come up with a design for a supersonic transport which could carry 200 passengers at speeds up to 17,000 m.p.h. at 200,000 feet.

The turbo-ram jet plane is designed to take off lengthways, then turn sideways once airborne to force the entire fuselage-wing into the airflow.

WEEDS posing a constant threat to swimmers stretch across Elk Lake. This week Victoria and Saanich are combining forces to wipe out the hazard for the balance of the summer. Parks administrator Herbert Warren told a Victoria-Saanich Parks and Beaches Committee earlier this week that there was no inexpensive way to wipe out the weeds entirely. He suggested that weed-killing funds be placed in the budget each year to enable work crews to tackle the problem early each summer before it got out of hand. (Times photo.)

RAIN SLOWS TRACTORS

TORONTO (CP)—Rain today temporarily stalled the tractor procession of 79 farmers heading for Toronto to meet with Ontario government representatives.

The delay may mean that the farmers will arrive late for a meeting with Premier John Robarts.

Rhodesia College Closed

Nine Lecturers Seized by Police

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Rhodesia's multi-racial University College closed down today after police swooped at dawn and detained nine white lecturers, including a Canadian, and at least nine Negro students.

A notice posted at the college said the principal, Professor Alan Milton had decided the college must close forthwith instead of Aug. 20, the start of normal holidays.

The detained lecturers were identified by the college as Gerald L. Caplan, a Canadian in the history department; Ian Henderson, C. R. Hill, C. R. Whittaker and Elizabeth Joyce, all British; Dr. I. van Velsen, a Dutchman; Alex Sommerfelt, a Norwegian; G. Marrighi, an Italian, and T. R. C. Curtin, a British-born Rhodesian.

Caplan, 28, is from Toronto. He graduated in 1960 from the University of Toronto and went to Rhodesia as an assistant lecturer while completing his work toward a doctorate of philosophy in African history.

Reports that four were released later could not be confirmed.

Sources said those detained were taken to Salisbury's main police station where they were charged under a section of Rhodesia's Law and Order (Maintenance) Act.

The raid brought to a head unrest at the college, which has simmered and erupted periodically since Rhodesia unilaterally declared independence from Britain last Nov. 11.

Must Persuade Each Union

LONDON (CP)—The general council of Britain's 8,500,000-member Trades Union Congress agreed today by 20 votes to 12 to give qualified backing to the government's call for a six-month wage freeze, union sources said.

The TUC decision came after more than five hours of discussion on a recommendation from its influential economic committee.

It was made in the face of strong opposition from the Transport and General Workers Union, which is against any kind of pay standstill.

TUC agreement gives the Labor administration of Prime Minister Wilson powerful psychological support at a critical point in its bid to impose harsh austerity measures to bolster the pound sterling and the British economy.

But industrial experts said the union chiefs still had to persuade individual unions to carry through the standstill. And it was still not clear how far this would be successful, since it is not mandatory.

Wilson appeared in the House of Commons today to defend his government's slash in spending by nearly $2,000,000,000 as part of its austerity program.

Attack on U.S. Dollar Blamed

He said the pound has been under assault because of an attack on the United States dollar. Analysing the causes of a recent flight from sterling, Wilson suggested two main elements were involved:

● Big international firms dealing in or with Britain were tempted to unload their sterling holdings for precautionary, not speculative reasons. Some companies with U.S. roots have been under Washington pressure to transfer their profits home more speedily.

● The difficulties associated with the financing of Britain's overseas trade represented the second element. These difficulties have been intensified because Britain finances her own huge trade and that of other sterling area (mainly Commonwealth) countries.

The prime minister announced a pay-price-dividend freeze last week in introducing his package of tax increases and spending cuts to save the pound. The six-month pay freeze, to be followed by a similar period of "severe restraint," was the showpiece of the package, designed to impress international financial opinion that the British would right their unbalanced economy.

Tuesday night the TUC's economic committee met with Wilson and offered him an eight-page memorandum outlining organized labor's conditions. They boiled down to exemptions for two categories: Lower-paid workers and workers whose pay rises with productivity.

George Woodcock, TUC secretary-general, said Wilson told him: "I think we might manage something along these lines."

As if to illustrate the difficulties, wage claims on behalf of more than 1,000,000 white-collar workers were lodged Tuesday despite the pay freeze.

The government is drafting a bill to give legal solidity to the freeze and plans to push it through Parliament next week. It also is considering heavy taxes — perhaps as high as 80 per cent — on dividends held back by companies during the freeze for distribution to stockholders after the ice breaks.

With union support, the postwar Labor government held pay increases to five per cent for two years, the best record since the war. Since Wilson took office 21 months ago, wages have gone up 10 per cent.

The 1948-49 austerity program, organized by Sir Stafford Cripps, produced an increase of 25 per cent in Britain's exports and an annual increase in production of seven per cent.

VOTE TONIGHT

Tonight the house ends a two-day debate on Wilson's economic package and was expected to vote down a Conservative motion censuring Wilson's management of the economy.

The present package also involves a seven-per-cent interest rate, higher consumer taxes and promises to cut government spending.

Tuesday night Conservative Leader Edward Heath accused Wilson's team of failing to check "over-manning, restrictive practices, too little competition generally, low incentives, mass government spending and regional imbalance."

LINE KEEPS FLYING

LBJ Intervenes In Air Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced today President Johnson will set up an emergency board to postpone for 60 days a threatened strike against American Airlines by members of the Transport Workers' Union.

In the absence of such action, union members would have been free to strike at 12:01 a.m. Thursday.

The announcement came shortly before a Senate committee started hearing testimony on a strike that started 20 days ago against five other airlines, to determine whether legislation is needed to force a settlement.

Witnesses for the five grounded airlines, the striking machinists' union and the defence, labor and post office department opened a Senate hearing on special legislation to halt the strike.

"I think it does constitute an emergency," said Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, who appeared ready to seek quick passage if the Senate labor committee votes out a strike-stopping bill.

But President P. L. (Roy) Siemiller of the International Association of Machinists (AFL-CIO) said "the continued interference by the legislative branch of government is delaying the final time when agreement can be reached."

Chief airlines negotiator, William Curtin, is expected to tell the committee that the strike is "an urgent national problem" and that Congress should act to end it.

WILL NOT TESTIFY

AFL-CIO President George Meany issued a statement supporting the machinists' stand that while the strike is inconveniencing the travelling public, it presents no threat to the country's welfare or to national defence. Meany, who urged defeat of any strike legislation, is not a witness.

Chemical Warfare Ordered on Weeds

Weed-killing specialists were out at Elk Lake this morning preparing to remove the steadily mounting hazard.

Victoria council Tuesday afternoon approved the expenditure of $1,500 as the city's half share of the $3,000 required to stifle the growth.

Saanich approved its share of the cost at a special council meeting Monday night.

The weed patches on the lake had grown to such an extent that lifeguards on duty there had warned that unless something was done speedily the lives of swimmers would be endangered.

Victoria parks administrator Herbert Warren was unavailable for comment this morning but it is understood that the weed killing operation will take place this week.

If it does the lake may be closed to swimmers for a 24-hour period. In that event warning notices will be posted at the lake.

The chemical poison used is not harmful to fish or birds but could prove a discomfort for swimmers.

Earlier this week Mr. Warren said it would take about 24-hours for the chemical to dissipate in the lake.

WIRE BRIEFS

Valley Mayor Dead

CHILLIWACK (CP) — Mayor Theo T. McCammon of Chilliwack died early today in hospital in this Fraser Valley city. He was 67. He had been mayor of Chilliwack for 24 years.

67 Die in Floods

SEOUL (UPI)—Korean officials said today 67 persons have died and nearly 90,000 have lost their homes in widespread floods and landslides.

Illegal Plant Hit

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—Federal agents have uncovered a huge cashe of gambling equipment, much of it rigged, in a raid on a Tulsa manufacturing firm which apparently engaged in nationwide activities.

World Court Rapped

NAIROBI (Reuters) — The Kenyan Parliament unanimously adopted Tuesday a government motion condemning the World Court decision on South-West Africa and urging the government to aid freedom fighters in the territory. The World Court last week dismissed Ethiopia's and Liberia's allegation that South Africa is abusing its mandate over South-West Africa.

AT 18 HOSPITALS

Pickets Will Defy Quebec Injunction

MONTREAL (CP)—The National Federation of Services, representing Quebec's 32,500 striking non-medical workers, today advised workers not to abandon picket lines at 18 hospitals where they were ordered back to work by an interim court injunction issued Tuesday night.

A union spokesman said workers meetings held at all 18 hospitals late Tuesday voted not to respect the injunction issued by Mr. Justice Georges Pelletier at the request of the Quebec justice department. The injunction is valid until Aug. 20.

Picketers at the three hospitals in Montreal and seven in Quebec City, against whom the injunction has been issued, were reported to be maintaining their lines as usual.

A resolution adopted by 250 regional delegates of the federation at 4 a.m. today declared that the court order is "designed to cut our wage demands and we must not submit to it."

"We must continue the calm and discipline which has marked the strike since it started July 15," the resolution said.

3 WOMEN MURDERED IN BRITAIN

LONDON (UPI) — Torture, sex, mutilation, and dismemberment emerged in gruesome detail today as shocked Britons learned of the slaying of three young women.

Early today, London police said a brown corrugated cardboard parcel left beside a driveway in a residential section contained the mutilated and obviously tortured body of a young Negro woman.

In Bristol, the half-nude body of a 20-year-old girl was found crumpled against a wall, believed strangled.

No Pleas For Help

LONDON (CP) — The Commonwealth relations office today confirmed that nine university lecturers at Salisbury have been placed under arrest by Rhodesian police.

But a spokesman added that none of those detained have asked for any consular assistance from the British office in Salisbury.

"We have been in touch with their lawyer but they have not asked for any assistance from us," the spokesman said.

Transportation Plan Unveiled in Britain

LONDON (Reuters) — Sweeping plans to tackle Britain's traffic chaos, speed rail services, and modernize the country's ports were announced by Transport Minister Barbara Castle today.

Mrs. Castle announced a plan to integrate development of all aspects of the internal transport system. It had these main points:

1. Roads—A traffic plan for every big town and city, covering parking and possible tolls on the most congested roads.

2. Railways—Special development routes linking big towns; creament projects for main trunk tion of a national freight organization aimed at a fast door-to-door service by road and rail; local payments toward upkeep of uneconomic rail services still needed in remote areas.

3. Ports and canals—Selective investment in some outdated ports to form the nucleus of further expansion as new towns are built and industries expand.

In the long term, the government aims to reorganize the ports on the basis of public ownership through a national ports authority.

U.S. URGED TO GET OUT OF EUROPE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U.S. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield called today for a two-stage withdrawal of American troops from western Europe.

He told the Senate a "good first step" would be to bring home about 75,000 men and dependents from France rather than reassigning them elsewhere in Europe.

As a second step an over-all cut of 10 per cent in U.S. troop strength in Germany and elsewhere in Europe should be made, Mansfield said.

CLEVELAND FIREBOMBING, SNIPING

'Black Panthers' Blamed for Terrorism

CLEVELAND (UPI — A 17-year-old Negro youth told a grand jury investigating last week's riots that much of the looting, firebombing and sniping had been planned by a young gang known as the "Black Panthers," it was reported today.

The secret witness, who said he was a member of the gang, supplied jurors with names of leaders and plotters and supplied dates and meeting places where acts of violence were planned, the Cleveland press reported.

Testifying for a full hour before the grand jury late Tuesday, the tall, slim Negro youth told of seeing firebombs made and names those he saw make them.

He said the Black Panthers consisted of about 200 young "hell raisers" in the racially troubled Hough area in the city's east side slum, the newspaper said.

The youth, wearing dark glasses while he testified, said the gang did more damage and precipitated more terror during the riots than any other gang. He said he himself took part in the rioting and threw several firebombs.

The jurors resumed hearing testimony today from Hough area residents and representatives of civil rights groups.

In other testimony Tuesday the Rev. Charles Rawlings said it "would have to be proved" to him that the Jomo Freedom Kenyatta (JFK) House, which was closed by city officials Tuesday night as a health hazard, was a training school for firebombers, the press said.

Rawlings, executive director of the commission on metropolitan affairs of the Greater Cleveland Council of Churches, said he was a supporter of the JFK.

"There is a danger in Cleveland," he said, "that we can become engaged in a witch hunt." He said he did not mean the grand jury investigation.

Mao Keeps His Head in Swim But What's Underneath Him?

The New China news agency photo is "the most inscrutable picture of the year," says the Mirror. (The picture appeared in Monday's edition of the Times.)

"A few questions immediately beg an answer.

"Have you ever seen a picture of five men swimming and none of their arms showing?

"Have you ever seen a picture like this where not a man-made ripple breaks the surface?

"Have you (a cunning one this) ever seen a picture of five men swimming and not one of them with his mouth open?"

Perhaps the picture was the Chinese answer to Western rumors that Mao is in poor health but a "sinister interpretation" was tossed around diplomatic missions in London, says The Mirror.

"Were these statuesque heads less than they were purported to be?

"Were they, in fact, JUST heads?

"Were they (shades of Ian Fleming) being held high and dry by similarly inscrutable Chinese frogmen toiling dutifully below the five-knot current of the treacherous Yangtse?"

MAO
. . . soccer next?

After noting other oddities in the photo, The Mirror says "the Western world must, of course, accept the validity of this picture. However:

"Only one course is left open for the Chinese to finally convince a skeptical world.

"Their 72-year-old leader must be photographed making a guest appearance as centre forward for the North Korean World Cup team."

North Korea went to the quarter-finals of the World Cup soccer tournament before bowing to Portugal 5-3 last Saturday.

DEATH VALLEY, Calif.—Jean Pierre Marquant took a rest break Tuesday from his historic walking tour of blistering Death Valley.

The 28-year-old former French paratrooper arrived at Furnace Creek late Monday night still game to finish his fixed course of roughly 100 miles through the hottest spot on earth.

He logged his sixth day afoot Tuesday, across burning salt flats where air temperatures climbed to 115 degrees and ground temperatures reached 190.

The intense heat burned off his tennis shoes and blistered his feet, so that he had to wrap his feet with gauze and adhesive and don sandals to finish out the day.

"I feel very weak and tired, but I think I can do it," he told a crew that met him with provisions. Offered a toast of California chablis to note his completion of 84 miles, Marquant took one sip and then said: "Please give me water. I'm a Frenchman, but it's too damned hot to drink wine."

PENTICTON—John Stelmaczuk, 86, complained to RCMP that he had been harrassed by a "youth."

The youngster punched him in the mouth and twisted his arm, he said.

Stelmaczuk identified the youth, who admitted "roughhousing" with the elderly man. But police refused to lay charges.

The "youth" involved was 65 years old.

SALAMANCA, N.Y.—Louis Foy admits he was a bit heated Tuesday after he found that he got himself into hot water.

Foy, who heads the city's summer swimming program, said he jumped into the pool at Salamanca Central High School where the water temperature had climbed to more than 100 degrees.

Foy found later the water heater had been left on about 36 hours.

YEOVIL, England—For the past year, Tony Williams has been trying to get rid of his 1938 car without having to pay any money.

He can't give it away because he would have to pay hauling charges. He can't tow it away because he would have to pay a registration fee. His only hope, he now feels, is to cut the car up into tiny pieces and throw them in trash cans.

SAN FRANCISCO — The state district court of appeal has ruled that a San Francisco probation officer can keep his beard despite his superior's objection.

The court upheld Tuesday a decision by superior court Judge Joseph Karesh that James Forstner, 42, was under no written regulation prohibiting a beard.

Forstner grew the beard and refused to shave it off when Thomas Stricula, chief probation officer, ordered him to. Stricula fired him for insubordination.

NEW YORK — Frank Sinatra and Mia Farrow continued their swinging honeymoon here today. Sinatra was doing the swinging.

The singer swung at New York Post photographer Jerry Engel outside the 21 Club Tuesday night, knocking off the diminutive photographer's glasses. Sinatra also addressed a few choice words at Engel, indicating that he should get lost.

The newlyweds jetted into New York and began a round of night clubs. They were walking from the 21 Club to Toots Shors' when Engel moved in to get a shot and touched off Sinatra.

The Sinatras will leave Sunday for London, where the singer is making a new film. They were married in Las Vegas a week ago.

THREE INJURED IN COLLISION

City police took three persons to St. Joseph's Hospital Tuesday shortly after 7 p.m. when two out-of-town cars collided on the 2100 block Douglas St.

In good condition today in hospital is Mrs. Reginald Titcombe, 55, of Calgary who sustained whiplash injuries in the accident.

Police said a car driven south on Douglas by Mrs. Doreen McIntyre of Cherry Point, Duncan, struck the rear of a car stopped in a traffic lane operated by Reginald Titcombe.

Mrs. McIntyre suffered injuries to her left knee and her 11-year-old daughter Wendy had chest injuries. Both were treated at the hospital and released.

Bennett Disclaims New Party

Premier Bennett today officially denied his administration has any connection with suggestions for formation of a new right-wing federal party.

Unofficially he slapped down the idea.

He volunteered a statement to reporters because he has received a series of calls from people curious about the situation.

An article by Ottawa writer Peter Newman appeared Tuesday on page 5 of The Times outlining the incipient moves towards a right wing party backed by several prominent businessmen and mentioning Alberta Premier E. C. Manning as a possible leader.

"The B.C. Social Credit government (is) not part of it in any shape or form," the premier said.

"We are a straight middle-of-the-road party.

"We have no connection with any new federal party.

"As leader of the government, I say we are not a part of this party."

Asked if he thought there was room for another party in federal politics, Mr. Bennett said he had no comment to make as a provincial premier but as a Canadian citizen he would say "no."

B.C. Pure Air Campaign Gladdens Alberni Valley

PORT ALBERNI—Mayor Les Hammer today welcomed the provincial government's pure air crackdown.

"It is tangible evidence that the government is recognizing the seriousness of the problem," he said.

Making his first statement since municipal affairs minister Dan Campbell Tuesday announced plans for a government survey of air and water pollution in the Alberni Valley, Mayor Hammer said:

"I certainly hope it's going to help solve our problem."

The Alberni Valley, plagued by fallout from the MB and PR pulp and paper mill, has been unable to crack down on pollution control on a municipal basis.

The firm's indirect answer to pollution control has been: 'if you force it upon us, we'll be forced to look for a new location.'

Since the Alberni Valley depends almost entirely upon the mill for its wealth, municipal officials have had their hands tied.

Said Mr. Hammer: "Maybe we'll get a little more action when the government surveyors make their reports."

In addition to government surveyors, Mr. Campbell indicated the B.C. Research Council will be asked to report on the situation Added Mr. Hammer: "Pollution is a national problem and it's to be hoped that eventually the federal government will take the matter in hand.

"Otherwise large companies are going to threaten to move from one province to another when the B.C. government pollution control is put into full effect.

"This is what they've threatened when municipalities have tried to intervene."

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. G. A. Mott, assistant medical health officer here, said Tuesday Prince George and Port Alberni will be more greatly affected than Vancouver by new anti-pollution measures announced by Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell.

But a top forest official says the new measures, which would give regional boards power to control pollution, will not affect the forest industry.

Ian Barclay, vice-president of B.C. Forest Products, said anti-pollution devices used by the B.C. pulp industry are the most technically advanced in use anywhere.

"And we are constantly trying to improve the situation," he said.

Dr. Mott said air pollution is not the major problem in Vancouver that it is in areas with concentrations of pulp mills.

"In Vancouver as yet it is not much more than a nuisance but I think we have to start to tackle it.

"I am certainly happy to see more rigid anti-pollution laws brought into being," he said.

ONE MAN FREED IN PICKET ROW

VANCOUVER (CP)—Charges were dismissed Tuesday against J. H. Boris, one of 29 men charged in connection with picketing incidents in May at Lenkurt Electric Co. in Burnaby.

Mr. Justice James MacDonald said in B.C. Supreme Court there was no evidence to prove that Boris was involved in the incidents.

Mr. Justice MacDonald said there is sufficient evidence to implicate the other 28, charged with contempt of court after a number of persons disobeyed injunctions against picketing the plant.

Trial of the others is continuing.

Mini-Sub Hunts Oil

HORSHAM, England (AP) — Britain is building a midget submarine to press its search for natural gas under the North Sea, it was disclosed Tuesday. The submarine is half finished at the Intott Engineering Company and is expected to be diving by fall—first to 600 feet and later to 1,000 feet.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Skies were generally clear over the southern half of the province Tuesday night except for the West Coast of Vancouver Island where cloud and fog persisted. Patchy cloud held on in the Cariboo-Prince George area, while the north coast had quite variable conditions of cloud along with some rain. The southern half of the province will remain clear through Thursday. The system just west of the Charlottes will keep cloud and some rain in the north coast region today while spreading cloud and a few showers in to the northern interior.

ONLY 51 WORK DAYS TO CHRISTMAS

Pearson Schedules Busy Fall

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson Tuesday ticked off a long list of conferences, royal commission reports and legislation adding up to a busy fall in the capital.

In a newly - decorated room for press conferences, the prime minister said he expects eight royal commission reports to be turned in before the end of the year and announced the important federal-provincial conference on tax-sharing will be held in late October or November.

He also said there are about 20 pieces of legislation, with medical care insurance and amendments to the Bank Act near the top of the list, that will go before the Commons in the 51 days between resumption of the session on Oct. 5 and the proposed Dec. 16 start of the Christmas vacation.

The fall federal - provincial meeting of the prime minister and the premiers is an enlarged version of the postponed session that had been scheduled for June in Victoria.

Federal aid to education—the only item on the Victoria agenda—will be major discussion topic, Mr. Pearson said.

The prime minister declined to say whether a new tax-sharing agreement with the provinces, to replace the five-year agreement signed in 1962, will be worked out before the expiry date March 31, 1967.

But he said Finance Minister Sharp is to meet in September with his provincial counterparts to discuss a new agreement.

Mr. Pearson said changes in tax-sharing did not necessarily have to await the report of the Carter royal commission on taxation, one of the eight he said will probably be turned in before the end of the year.

STEELWORKERS FACING PROSECUTION

TORONTO (CP) — About 35 members of the striking United Steelworkers of America (CLC) in Sudbury, Ont., may be prosecuted for participating in an illegal walkout.

The International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. applied Tuesday to the Ontario Labor Relations Board for permission to lay charges against the men. A hearing on the application has been set for next Wednesday.

The strike, which began July 14, halted operations at 14 Inco properties in the Sudbury area.

The report by Mr. Justice W. F. Spence of the Supreme Court of Canada into the Gerda Munsinger affair is expected in the government's hands sometime in August, he said.

Other reports expected before the end of 1966 are those on bilingualism and biculturalism, pilotage, the cost of farm machinery, marketing of freshwater fish, post office working conditions and the case of Mr. Justice Leo Landreville.

INJUNCTION ISSUED

Hospital Union Rejects Offer

MONTREAL (CP)—The Confederation of National Trace Unions' head office is scheduled to hold a strategy meeting Friday following Tuesday's rejection by 32,500 striking non-medical hospital workers of the latest contract proposals of the Quebec Hospital Association.

The association, on behalf of 119 hospitals affected by the strike—now in its 12th day—had offered a salary increase of $3 a week in both years of a two-year contract for workers averaging less than $69 a week.

Nurses and other employees who now earn being $70 and $89 a week were offered an increase of $4 a week in each year.

Those who earn more than $90 a week were offered raises of $4 a week the first year and another $4 a week the second year.

Employees said they will hold out for a one-year contract providing for an $8 weekly increase for all workers.

WOULD APPLY TO ALL

The rejection followed a two-hour meeting of 100 regional union representatives. The offer, the second to be rejected by the strikers, was intended to apply to all the province's 58,000 non-medical workers.

Money is the major point in the dispute, but several other points such as working hours, vacations, methods of settling grievances and methods of promotions still are at issue.

Meanwhile, in Quebec City, Quebec Superior Court issued an interim injunction Tuesday night ordering striking workers to return to work at 18 hospitals for the mentally and chronically ill.

The injunction, valid until Aug. 20, was issued by Mr. Justice Georges Pelletier at the request of the Quebec justice department.

Mr. Justice Pelletier said the strike was "endangering the public health" and that it was essential to "put an end to the distressing and tragic situation it has brought on."

DATE IS SET

A hearing of a government request for an interlocutory injunction was set for Aug. 18.

The provincial labor code allows the government to delay for 80 days any strike of a public service which endangers the health of the population.

Premier Daniel Johnson also announced the appointment of District Judge Marc Fortin of Quebec City as head of a commission of inquiry to study the dispute. One job of the commission will be to recommend injunctions against strikers at other hospitals when such action is deemed necessary.

He also announced a second commission investigation to conduct "a thorough study of the whole hospital situation in Quebec."

A MESSAGE TO WOMEN WHO WORK
FROM THE DEPARTMENT OF LABOUR

Hon. Leslie R. Peterson, Q.C.
Minister of Labour.

In 10 years the number of working women in British Columbia has risen by 60 per cent. They now number 190,000—more than one quarter of the total work force—and are making a major contribution to the economic life of this Province.

To assist women with problems relating to their employment the British Columbia Department of Labour has established a Women's Bureau.

It is concerned with the well-being of women in all types of work—industrial, mercantile, business and professional. It is a channel of communication between employees and employers, trade unions and the Department of Labour.

If you have a problem with regard to your employment—any problem—do not hesitate to contact:

Nowhere to Blow But Up

WHILE HOPES FOR A NEGOtiated peace in Viet Nam grow increasingly tenuous, despite the efforts of many world leaders to intercede, it is becoming clearer that a promising line of approach would have been to encourage all measures which would diminish North Vietnamese dependence on China.

Unfortunately United States policy seems more and more designed to work the other way. Until now both Soviet Russia and North Viet Nam have said that some basis for negotiations could be found in the Geneva Agreements of 1954. China now coldly proclaims that the Geneva Agreements are dead. Chinese Deputy Premier Tao Chu in a recent speech laid down the thesis that "U.S. imperialism long ago tore the Geneva agreements to shreds" by violating the 17th parallel demarcation line with air strikes against North Viet Nam. The bombings of Hanoi and Haiphong were cited as "the final burial of the Geneva Agreements and the total liquidation of all its restrictions."

American escalation of the war, the inability or unwillingness of the United States to gag Marshal Ky when he speaks of the desirability of invading North Viet Nam and attacking China "now rather than in five or 10 years," appear to be hardening both the Soviet and North Vietnamese line on negotiations. India's Prime Minister Ghandi and Britain's Prime Minister Wilson were told by Soviet leaders, during recent Moscow visits, that American actions were impelling them to the view that the conquest of all of Viet Nam is United States policy despite all previous denials by President Johnson. Thus Russia is being forced to concur in the Chinese assessment, and North Viet Nam—with its two putative allies moving closer together — is left with no option for negotiation.

One of the greatest dangers in the situation — accepting the premise that a negotiated settlement seems less and less possible — is what new steps the United States will take in Viet Nam. It is apparently the assumption in Washington and Saigon that neither the Chinese nor the Russians will actively intervene in the war. But does this assessment cover the contingency of an invasion of North Viet Nam, as urged by Marshal Ky?

As it becomes increasingly obvious to the American people that they are in a war which they cannot win, because for the most part they are fighting on the enemy's terms and limiting themselves to less than their best weapons, the pressure to "get it over with" is bound to become stronger. Friends of the United States can do no less than urge that country's leaders to consider the possible consequences for the world and all its peoples of yet further escalation of the conflict and especially any moves which would spread, rather than confine, the fighting.

The Final Word

MR. JUSTICE WELLS' REPORT on federal government action in regard to the Spencer spy case clearly relieves the Ottawa administration of the burden of charges of unfairness laid by political opponents, and absolves the RCMP of all suggestions of persecution or high - handed treatment of the accused espionage agent.

The late Mr. Spencer emerges as a sick, frustrated man who fumbled his way through picayune spying assignments by Soviet officials but who, nevertheless, was guilty of the "grossest misconduct" as a postal civil servant in furnishing a foreign power with maps and information of a nature to be used against Canadian interests.

The police, on the other hand, treated Mr. Spencer with "forbearance and kindness," and in fact were of service to him on several occasions. And the government had every right to dismiss the man and return to him only that part of his pension fund which he had himself contributed. Although not charged, it was not necessary for Mr. Spencer to have committed a crime, said Mr. Justice Wells, in order to merit dismissal — there are many other forms of misconduct which would terminate his connection with the postal service.

The findings of the Ontario Appeal Court judge must be accepted as fair and impartial. So ends, it is to be hoped, a sad and sordid little affair which achieved national prominence mainly as a result of questions and action in Parliament when suspicions were voiced that injustice had been done the man. It is right that when such questions are raised they should be fully answered. It will be a poor day for Canada when the actions of any government cannot be laid open in order to assure the public that no wrong has been done.

It is equally important that frivolous or casual charges should not be raised in Parliament or elsewhere merely to create embarrassment for the administration and win political publicity for the questioners. And it follows that when an impartial investigation has been carried out, the findings should be accepted in good faith by all and the matter laid to rest.

Sewers, Praise and Problems

MR. DAN CAMPBELL, MINISter of municipal affairs, has added his praise for sewer plans proposed for the city-to-Sidney area. He has also noted problems which must be solved before the proposals can be implemented.

One of these concerns the creation of a co-operative spirit among all communities in the region covered by the report. Another is the matter of cost-sharing, which Mr. Campbell suggests will be finally determined by the regional board.

The question of co-operation should not raise difficulties if an equitable and mutually satisfactory cost-sharing arrangement can be reached. This is the nub of the whole issue.

Health and aesthetic considerations can be arranged only on a regional basis. No part of the community can dump its sewage in such a way that it inflicts risk or hardship on another. Hence the automatic inclination toward co-ordinated effort. And certainly each of the local areas must find a way to meet and overcome the dangers which predictable increases in the volume of discharge will entail.

This brings Mr. Campbell to the point at which he can show leadership. It lies within his power to spearhead cost-sharing discussions. They can be undertaken properly only with a clear understanding of provincial obligations to the municipalities and districts, and governmental recognition that these areas must have adequate sources of revenue to meet necessary capital expenditures. The whole question of provincial - municipal financial arrangements still needs a thorough review.

The requirement is more apparent this year following last December's public rejection of a call for municipal tax increases to meet regional hospital needs. There is a point at which property taxation cannot bear further burdens without serious side effects. For many home owners, that point seemed close at the last polls.

FROM QUEBEC CITY — By STAN McDOWELL

A New Look at Local Government

THE plan of the Eastern Quebec Planning Bureau for the depressed Lower St. Lawrence-Gaspe region, if carried out, is bound to collide with some traditional democratic beliefs, but might also generate some new ones.

McDowell

The bureau, known by the initials of its French name as the BAEQ, proposes a "global" reorganization, not only of the economic life of the area, but also of its political structure and even, to a point, of the mentality, the attitudes and values, of its population.

What the planners propose amounts to a wider, deeper and faster "quiet revolution" concentrated in one region of the province. While Quebec as a whole hurries to catch up to modern North American industrial society, Lower St. Lawrence-Gaspe must double the pace to catch up to Quebec.

This brings up a problem: How fast can a revolution go and still be accepted quietly by the people? It appears now, since last month's provincial election, that even the pace of change led by the Lesage government was enough to provoke a good part of the population to dig in its heels.

The BAEQ planners are free of the illusion that it is possible to replace the parish pump by a modern waterworks, so to speak, without changing a great many of the ways and beliefs and attitudes of the people concerned.

Task of Persuasion

They must be persuaded that the waterworks is worth the effort, even if the pump was good enough for a whole procession of forefathers. They must be persuaded to raise their horizons of co-operation beyond the parish. They must accept the necessity of higher taxes.

So the BAEQ plan, as well as proposing the reorganization of farming, fishing and woodcutting, and the development of industry and tourism, also tackles the tricky problem of changing people.

The planners have the decency to recognize that the problem is tricky. If the revolution is to be democratic, it must have public support, and that public support must not be merely the product of persuasion and propaganda.

The BAEQ research team, mainly young social scientists from the universities of Laval and Montreal, has been working toward this goal since this project was set up by the provincial government under the ARDA program in which half the costs are paid by the federal government.

The study of the area's needs was first requested by local leaders and the researchers made it their policy to draw the population into active involvement with the project.

Local committees, later consolidated into zonal committees, were established for discussion of problems and working out ideas for solutions.

The 2,000-page BAEQ report is clearly the work of the sociologists and the economists of the bureau, but there is every indication that the population is enthusiastic about it and feels it had a hand in its producton.

The plan proposed that this close give-and-take between planners and people be carried on through a system of local and regional consultative bodies.

The idea is to keep the people closely associated with the changes taking place, contributing their ideas and at the same time gaining an understanding of the objectives and methods of the plan as it is carried out.

A great part of this work is to be the responsibility of "animators" using techniques similar to some used by civil rights workers in the U.S. South, or by the young "social activists" engaged in the more original projects of the U.S. war on poverty.

Animation

In good gray planner's jargon the report defines animation as "the utilization of a whole set of methods, techniques and instruments with a view to working systematically on the factors of a cultural order which hinder a group from rationalizing its action with regard to a particular objective."

Elsewhere the report recognizes the need for a change in "norms and values."

But it insists that the best method for bring about this change is "by non-directive means, that is to say means aimed at the understanding of the group rather than persuasion and constraint."

It also proposes systematic use of newspapers, radio and television to spread understanding of and enthusiasm for the plan in progress.

It suggests a regional equivalent of the Board of Broadcast Governors to exercise some control over broadcasting and further the cause of the development of a regional consciousness and enthusiasm for the plan.

The effect of all these efforts to influence the minds of the people concerned will be heightened by the transformation of the traditional system of local government.

Too Local

The trouble with most local government in the area now is that it is too local. There are 204 municipalities, most of them the tiniest of hamlets, each with its own little council jealous of its own prerogatives.

They would be regrouped into 25 municipalities, each large enough to support a system of essential municipal services. The nine county governments would be replaced by one regional government.

In the short term there will be a period in which the old local structures have been removed and the new are just finding their footing and tending to lean on the executors of the plan.

The explicit aim of the project is to make the region self-supporting and capable of running its own affairs successfully in the long run.

But in the short run, at least, if the plan is put into effect whole or nearly whole, the project could give a severe shaking-up to traditional notions of democratic self-government.

Letters

Better Than Washington

Having attended Peter Mannering's clever production of "Bell, Book and Candle" at the McPherson Theatre, I would like to voice my opinion of the "critics" from the two local papers. Surely they are in a position to send more knowledgable representatives. We so often read in these papers that Victoria is sadly lacking in the "arts" (I quote your local publications). And yet when an enterprising local company puts on a really fine entertainment, they obviously are written up by writers who don't seem ever to have gone very far afield.

I saw this play several years ago in Washington, and can assure you that the local artists don't have to give way in any of the parts played, and the setting was far superior to that staged in the U.S. capitol.

I wasn't in the play and I don't know Mr. Mannering. — K. A. Beard, 1004 Terrace.

Ready to Help

I read and feel rather concerned about the hospital strike in Quebec, as we also had a hospital strike in Melbourne Australia, last year in some of our public hospitals.

As I was one of five supervisors of domestic staff, I understand the hardship and the concern of the hospital at a time like this.

I would be willing to offer my services voluntarily if transport was arranged for me and my services required.

I am holidaying here until November 19 of this year and would be willing to help if needed.

I could be reached by phone at 382-4684.—E.V.F.

Higher Pensions

Strikes and more strikes, cost of living going up all the time. It's hard for people on pension to carry on. The new government scheme for old age assistance will only help five per cent of pensioners whenever it comes into force. Old age pension should be raised at once to $125 a month to meet the present cost of living.—F. Croasdale, 55 Hibberson.

Three-Year Council

Ottawa Journal

OTTAWA City Council will consider tonight a recommendation from Board of Control that the term of future councils be extended from two to three years.

The change should be approved.

Two years has been insufficient for an administration to initiate and carry through a program bearing its own distinctive stamp. Incoming councils have had to approve budgets and tax rates that are determined more by the legacy of the previous administration than by their own policies. The major decisions of the second year of office tend to be colored by the prospect of the coming election.

Running a city of Ottawa's size has become too complex a business to be divided into two - year compartments. Major projects often involve working with other municipalities, with the federal and provincial governments. A longer term would allow a better opportunity for the administration which initiates a program to shepherd it to completion.

Three years would make each council responsible for more and make it easier for the electorate to judge performance. They will have had time to deliver, succeed or to fail.

As a longer term should make election to city council more desirable, more qualified candidates should be tempted to run for office.

Raising the term of office by one third should also mean a heightened sense of responsibility on the part of the electors. Each vote will be one-third more significant. Civic elections should become more important as they become less frequent.

FROM WASHINGTON — By JOSEPH ALSOP

On the Word of Singapore's Mr. Lee

LAST week, Senator J. William Fulbright delivered another of his characteristic orations. This one charged the President with unconstitutionally proclaiming an "Asian doctrine," whatever that may mean. The interesting thing about this speech was not what was said, however, but what was not said. When the President first ordered American intervention in the Vietnamese war, a far less strange and esoteric line was taken by Senator Fulbright, and by his friends in the press and in the intellectual community.

Alsop

They all asserted, over and over again that the President's actions would turn every American friend in Asia into a bitter enemy; that every honest Asian heart would be filled with burning indignation; that the Vietnamese war would appear, in Asian eyes, to be a naked revival of the worst in the colonial past, and so on and on.

These predictions were no doubt based on honest conviction, plus the customary lack of first-hand knowledge of Asian problems. But surely it is a bit dishonest not to make something approaching an apology for these past predictions, now that events have proved the contrary.

Significant Response

The most interesting and significant indication of the real Asian response to the U.S. effort in Viet Nam came, some weeks ago, from the brilliant prime minister of Singapore, Lee Kuan Yew. Lee is a socialist, and when he has talked about this country in the past, he has almost always been sharply hostile.

In a public interview addressed to his own people, Prime Minister Lee forthrightly gave thanks for the American effort in South Viet Nam, which he described as "buying time" for the Asians who want true self-determination. He was by no means uncritical of the details of the American effort, or over-optimistic about its end result.

But his main theme was a warning to his fellow-Asians to take the fullest advantage of the time "bought" by this American effort, which might, he remarked, one day be terminated because there "are any number of Robert Kennedys around." While the U.S. effort continues, Prime Minister Lee concluded, "if we just sit down and believe people are going to buy time forever after for us, then we deserve to perish."

Prime Minister Lee was of course simply saying in public what every independent Asian leader has always said in private, from the moment President Johnson decide this county had a duty to help defend South Viet Nam's right of self-determination.

If other Asian leaders did not share Prime Minister Lee's sentiments, all sorts of things that are now happening would not be happening. The most extreme of all the neutralists, General Ne Win, would not be coming from Burma to visit the United States. In Cambodia, the volatile Prince Norodom Sihanouk would not be trying to edge away a bit from his hundred per cent bet on Peking and Hanoi.

Above all, if President Johnson had limply permitted the triumph of Communist aggression in South Viet Nam, there would be no chance today for a sane, self-governing Indonesia. The forces of resistance that defeated the Communist coup in Djakarta, would have ceased to resist long before the coup was launched.

Self-Determination

The Indonesian case is merely the most dramatic illustration of the service done by the President's policy to the cause that Kee Kuan Yew sensibly defines as Asian self-determination. All over Asia — and not just in Southeast Asia — the people who wanted self-determination were getting ready to throw in the sponge before the American intervention in Viet Nam. And now these people, who constitute the vast majority of thinking Asians, are instead working hopefully for a better sort of future, as described by Lee Kuan Yew.

Maybe the president's goal of Asian self-determination is an erroneous goal for the greatest power in the Pacific. Maybe it was a mistake for the United States to come to the rescue of Greece nearly 20 years ago. Maybe the true wisdom lay with those who wished to consign Greece itself, the first font of western civilization, to the iron grip of Josef Stalin, because, so they said, Greece lay within Stalin's natural sphere of influence.

These are points that can be rationally debated — providing the true facts are set forth and the real problems are honestly defined. But an effusion like Senator Fulbright's, containing no hint of any answer to Lee Kuan Yew and no shadow of an apology for previous errors, is not the sort of thing that advances public debate very much.

Looking Back

From the Times of July 27, 1906:

The party of 18 distinguished eastern journalists who were expected to arrive last night will reach the city by the Charmer about 6:30 this evening. They will be met by the reception committee of the Development and Tourist Association and the local press and taken on a long ride around the city.

The men expected are from Chicago Inter-Ocean, the Washington Star, the Philadelphia North American, the New York Evening Post, the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and the Detroit Free Press.

Bolivian Elections Hold Real Hope for Stability

By J. HALCRO FERGUSON

The recent elections in Bolivia, after an inordinately prolonged count, predictably returned the sitting tenant of the Palacio Quemado (the Burned Palace, so-called after a fire in the last century), General Rene Barrientos, as President.

In describing the result as "largely foreseen," the Peruvian newspaper Siete Dias was indulging in a characteristically dry understatement. This does not mean, however, that the elections were a formality nor that they were rigged. In view of Bolivia's history in her century and a half of independent life, this in itself is remarkable enough.

What is even more remarkable is that with Bolivia's recent political climate the campaign period, polling day, and the announcement of the result all passed off peacefully, without the violencia freely predicted by the press in Peru and other neighboring countries.

These predictions, though not without an element of Schadenfreude, had a considerable basis of fact. Up to 1952, Bolivia almost lived up to the undeserved reputation of Latin America as a continent of continual revolution. In the previous hundred years she had had as many so-called revolutions.

But these were not revolutions in the strictest sense. Although the vast majority of Bolivians are "Indians," that is to say indigenous people speaking Aymara or Quechua (the language of the Inca Empire), the ruling class was almost entirely of Spanish descent. The "revolutions" were merely a matter of removing one group of the ruling class for another.

The "indigenas" of Bolivia had reason for irritation. Long before the Spaniards arrived they were far more civilized than most Africans are today.

Yet as colonials and later as theoretically free citizens after independence, they endured a standard of living and a political frustration which would have made Africans under the old colonial rulers feel themselves lucky.

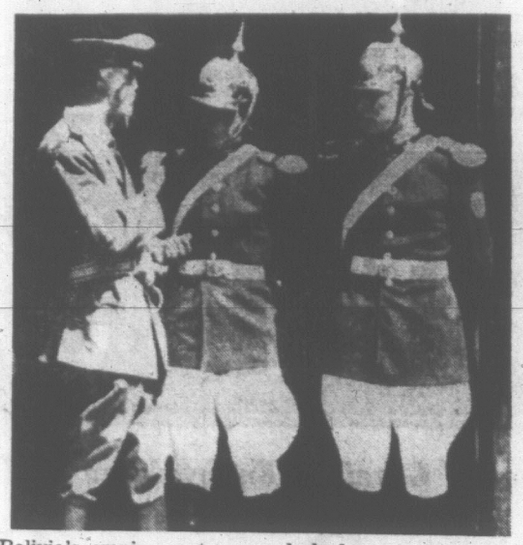

●

The real revolution of 1952 set about to change all this. The moving spirit was the MNR, or Movimiento Revolucionario Nacionalista, a body so opposed to the status quo that some of its nationalist members had supported the Nazis during the Second World War because of their bitterness against the United States, widely and correctly regarded as a bulwark of the Bolivian "establishment."

In the 1961 elections the MNR gained a majority, and the presidency went to the MNR candidate, the pipe-smoking economist Victor Paz Estenssoro, (whose strangely-spelt maternal surname is due to his mother's Basque descent). This result brought no joy to the "establishment," who engineered an army coup to annul it.

●

A year later, in April, the people rose in anger. That is to say the working class of La Paz — the seat of government but not the capital, in the same strange sense that The Hague is not the capital of the Netherlands — and the Indian mineworkers of Oruro, Cochabamba, and other provincial centres of the tin industry. The campesinos, or Indian peasant farmers, who had seen so many changes of government in La Paz, stayed mostly still in the sidelines, watchfully, and only later joined in by taking over the vast hacienda properties and forming collectives or state farms — which later began an ideological fight between themselves.

Bolivia's omnipresent army, decked out in uniforms reminiscent of the German 'Kaiser's troops, played an untraditional role in Latin American politics by staging a coup which put into power a progressive minded air force general, Rene Barrientos, whose regime was legitimatized in recent democratic elections.

Dr. Paz Estenssoro was belatedly installed as president, and the MNR took its seats in Congress. The United States, in marked contradistinction to its attitude to the later Cuban revolution of 1959, gave the new Bolivia regime a loan bigger than ever granted to a Latin country.

The new Bolivian government nationalized the tinmines and the Anglo-Chilean and Argentine-owned railways. It set up a new ministry for peasant affairs which encouraged the illiterate campesinos and their bowler-hatted wives to come and tell their troubles to the minister in person — as they did.

It seemed that the millennium had come. But it hadn't. The members of the railway trades union, and even more those of the mining unions, understood nationalization to mean that their industries had been taken over by them rather than by the nation. They were encouraged in this belief by a mineworkers' trade union leader, Juan Lechin, who was also a member of the MNR and for a time a member of the government as vice-president.

●

But his loyalty was to his union, not to the government he served. His miners struck continually for higher wages, even though they were the highest paid proletarians in the country. They absented themselves whenever it suited them, and demanded overtime for the extra hours they had to make up when their strikes were ruled illegal. Wage demands made the cost of Bolivian tin so high that it was virtually priced out of a competitive world market.

In November 1964, Bolivia took the traditional road in such circumstances — an army take-over. But it was far from a traditional Latin American coup. Like the recent take-over in Argentina, it was motivated by economic rather than political reasons.

Its leader, General Barrientos, an air force and not an army officer, is more to the left than to the right — and in fact acted as Paz Estenssoro's pilot when the latter flew out to exile in Argentina in 1951. Barrientos' de facto government, far from trying to put the clock back, carried on the major progressive policies of the 1952 revolution — though understandably it politely ushered Juan Lechin out of the country.

●

Now the position of Barrientos has been legalized in what even his opponents — at home and abroad — grudgingly admit was a fair election.

Perhaps the last word belongs to ex-president Paz Estenssoro, once again in exile, this time in Peru. "The future of Bolivia" he said, on hearing the election results, "doesn't depend just on what one man does; it depends on the participation of everybody."

Perhaps at long last it will.

Diplomatic Rebound Hits Washington

By MURRAY WARDER,
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — U.S. air strikes against Hanoi and Haiphong oil depots are rebounding diplomatically against Washington.

No one in washington is advertising the diplomatic consequences. They are too subtle to draw public attention so far. But to foreign policy experts, they are disquieting.

When the Soviet Union spurned new, personally-delivered appeals, by the prime ministers of India and Britain to try again for peace talks on the war in Viet Nam, there was no great surprise. The intensified bombing was hardly likely to induce the Kremlin to conclude it was a specially opportune time to urge Hanoi to start bargaining.

What did cause Western diplomatic surprise, however, was the calculated harshness of the Soviet rebuff to the pleas of Prime Ministers Indira Gandhi and Harold Wilson.

Public Scorn

Both went to Moscow after having publicly scorned the American decision to bomb oil supply dumps near Hanoi and Haiphong. But instead of finding that this gave them bargaining power to convince the Soviet Union that it should press Hanoi for joint peace talks, they found the Russians on just the opposite tack.

The Kremlin sought to convince India and Britain that such a course was unthinkable, and they had better use their influence on the United States to halt all bombing of North Viet Nam unconditionally, before there could be any hope of applying diplomacy to avert international catastrophe.

Heavy Impact

To a considerable extent, certainly in India's case, the Kremlin scored a heavy impact. Mrs. Gandhi considerably irritated the United States by shifting to that position, reversing her last, previous stand, which was that a conference could bring a halt in the bombing and other hostilities.

But what is potentially more troublesome to American interests has escaped general notice. It is that the Soviet Union's public position on the war in Viet Nam has hardened considerably. The Soviet stand, while still relatively more moderate than that of the Chinese Communists, is now closer to the Chinese position, and more inflexible than ever.

The Soviets are now airing "suspicion" that a "punitive invasion of North Viet Nam" may be "imminent."

Hanoi's Desires

They have told Mrs. Gandhi that their basic stand will be guided solely by Hanoi's desires. The Russians have agreed with Hanoi that the United States indeed is committing "crimes" in North Viet Nam, and that Hanoi is perfectly justified in treating captured American pilots as "war criminals."

The total diplomatic impression is that all participants, or critically interested parties, in the Vietnamese struggle, have put themselves into a diplomatic dead end.

A major, but never officially stated, premise in Washington has been that one way the war could end would be by reaching such a high level of great international danger that some power, meaning the Soviet Union, would step in for preservation of its own vital interests, to shove the conflict toward the bargaining table.

The question is whether the Soviet Union is now in the process of impaling its own prestige, to make it imposible to manoeuvre even if it wants to do so.

The Soviet Union appears to have put itself in a position where North Viet Nam readily can levy demands on Moscow for a stream of missiles and planes, and perhaps pilots too, that will "hook" the Soviet Union irretrievably to the fortunes of North Viet Nam.

Communist nations have great inherent capacity to operate in zig-zags. But they are not immune from paying the consequences of miscalculations. They too can be entrapped by their own pledged commitments.

A Sense of Proportion Needed in Quebec View

We seem to be living in a time of marginal political victories reflecting the public's indecision and the essential sameness of parties and programs.

How else explain the triumph of the decimal point in the slender majorities of Kennedy against Nixon, of the first Wilson government, of the continuing knife-edged minority rule in federal Canada, of Prince Edward Island, of Manitoba and in Quebec where Johnson, with a minority of voters, governs with a bare majority in the assembly?

Something has happened to western politics, and close analysis of other European democracies no doubt would reveal a curious central position to which all the traditional parties cling, and around which votes polarize without deep issues or great men to divide fully-employed affluent societies.

Replacement

This "end to idealogy" must mean its replacement by the pragmatics of well-being so that the rationale for fighting on particular ground and calling it a "principle" around which a party could be built or a man dramatized, now is replaced by an immenses spectrum of welfare policies adopted everywhere.

The classical issues, for example, of free trade or state intervention, of varieties of socialism and its free-enterprise antagonist, of peace parties and war-makers, all have been homogenized into common political programs shared by almost everyone as the line between "white collar" and "blue," and between town and country, slowly disappears amid the new technology and its prosperity.

Hence, most political contests tend to become a mixture of accepted central positions with local issues or particular personalities giving the debate the appearance of battle.

This political profile of our day is as applicable to Quebec

By MAXWELL COHEN
Dean of the Faculty of Law, McGill University

as elsewhere because the "quiet revolution" was a reaching out for this great modern welfare position and nothing that either Mr. Johnson or Mr. Lesage said or promised, could have altered their commitment to this widening welfare centre.

It is, therefore, important to have a sense of proportion about what it is that was gained or lost by the return of the Union Nationale to power. Its fundamental options are few, at least on the social-economic side. Yet it would be a mistake to underestimate the political values and indicators that emerged from the votes. For the election tells a good deal about both the general nature of contemporary political activity and the particular character of politics in Quebec.

The arithmetic of the balloting has been fully explored by now and the following pattern emerges:

1. The re-distribution in Quebec left so large a margin of votes still weighted in favor of the countryside that the Union Nationale with 41 per cent could yet have five more seats than the Liberals with 47 per cent—although the heavy Montreal Liberal support explains some of this imbalance.

Constant Threat

2. The RIN cut more deeply into the Liberal urban and semi-urban progressive vote than the RN bit into the Union Nationale support. If this is to be a growing feature of Quebec politics it will have significance, both as an index of the rise of outright separatism on the one hand and as a constant threat to the radical wing of the Liberals devoted as it was to state intervention and a heavily decentralized federal Canada.

3. Mr. Lesage's failure to command enough support from rural Quebec outside the Matepedia and Gaspe areas, suggests the difficulties he had with his farm policies — a problem that is intractable and persistent in many parts of the world. Since a large part of the rural protest vote in Quebec comes often from economically unviable areas, it is doubtful whether Mr. Johnson will have much more success unless there are radical changes in the use of land, the distribution of population, the tax structure and the scope of subsidies.

4. It may be no coincidence that the rural success that Mr. Lesage did have in eastern Quebec, tended to coincide with strong economic action there — roads, power, etc. — and also where the federal Liberals were invited locally to come and help. Indeed, it is significant that students of the Lesage failure are now commenting on the probable mistake that was made in rejecting federal Liberal help. A certain arrogance and naivete on the part of some provincial Liberals, led to the belief that such federal support would do more harm than good forgetting that effective manpower for election purposes is often more important than the label.

Not All Triumph

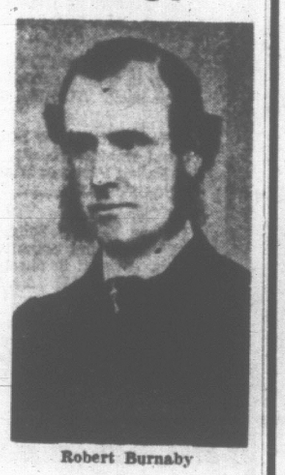

5. Lesage's success in attracting the English-speaking vote, particularly in Montreal, and Johnson's failure here should not be viewed wholly as a triumph for the Liberal image in the English-speaking community. Many an Anglophone would have wished for some other alternative in view of the unpalatable attitudes of several Lesage ministers toward English-speaking roles, life and traditions in Quebec. But the Union Nationale seemed no answer to English-speaking frustrations, at least while it had yet to prove that Duplessisism truly had disappeared and that Johnson had some respect for a strong and viable Canada to which most English-speaking Quebecers were and are sincerely devoted. Indeed, once Johnson inspires confidence on the visability of Canada and the integrity of English-speaking life in Quebec itself, he may have not too great difficulty in commanding substantial Anglophone support.

Founders of B.C.

The man who gave his name to the flourishing lower mainland municipality of Burnaby was born in Woodthorpe, Leicestershire, England, on November 30, 1828, the son of an English church vicar. Robert Burnaby's family was influential and was able to send him to London to study and launch a career with Her Majesty's Custom Service.

But he left that career at age 30 to come to British Columbia to make his fortune in the new colonies which then were in the throes of the 1858 Fraser River gold rush. He had a letter of introduction to the colonial governor, James Douglas, who, in turn, introduced him to Col. R. C. Moody of the Royal Engineers, the land commissioner who then was planning the city that was to be New Westminster. Burnaby in 1859 became Moody's private secretary and eventually took over as head of Moody's civilian staff.

Robert Burnaby

In August, 1859, however, Moody was required to dismiss his civilian employees, reserving their posts for the military. Burnaby and Walter Moberly, a pioneer civil engineer set out in a canoe with four men in hopes of building an empire of their own. They paddled down the Fraser and around to Point Grey and Burrard Inlet to examine coal deposits where they left their men while they explored the north arm of the inlet. They were taken hostage by Indians briefly and added to their adventures by examining the Cheakamus River for gold, before returning to Victoria. There in 1860, Burnaby was elected to a seat in the Legislative Assembly of Vancouver Island and he represented Esquimalt until his return in 1865 to England to care for business interests. He was soon back in Victoria as commissioner of the Savings Bank of Victoria.

Not all of his ventures were successful. A Queen Charlotte Island mining venture failed after five years. A Cariboo mining venture ended in insolvency and so did a mining scheme on Moresby Island, and a three-year venture in marine transportation.

Burnaby was very active in freemasonry, organizing the first lodge in British Columbia at Victoria in 1860 and assisting in creation of a New Westminster lodge in 1862. In 1863 he was elected provincial grand master. His health failed in 1869 and he returned to England where he died at 49 in 1878.

His name had been given to a lake in his early days in the mainland colony. It was 33 years later when it was adopted for the municipality which was incorporated in 1892.

Minority Governments Can Be Made to Work

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA — It's taken a couple of weeks to get used to the pleasant fact that Parliament Hill is at long last left to the scribes and the tourists, while our MPs hopefully check out their readings at the grass roots level.

For a while it seemed as though the opposition parties were willing to talk into August or longer to force the government to grant a $25 increase in the old age pension. But hotter heads finally prevailed, as the temperature mounted day by day, and in the end it was the government that had to agree to the proposition that everybody go home, at a cost of postponing passage of the medicare bill until fall.

In fact, there's nothing like Ottawa's hot weather to persuade the MPs to stop their dithering and nit-picking and crank out the legislation. The only times in recent history it failed to work was two years ago, when John Diefenbaker got the Red Ensign between his teeth and for the entire month of August refused to let go.

That performance suggested it had been a mistake, a few years back, to instal air conditioning in the Commons chamber.

★ ★ ★

It is so axiomatic that MPs waste much time that the point isn't worth belaboring. What is worth noting is that despite Gerda Munsinger, George Victor Spencer and all that, the MPs did a great deal of hard work. In so doing they refurbished their self and public respect after a period in which the institution of Parliament was so degraded that one citizen tried to blow up the House of Commons.

On the legislative side, Parliament enacted 44 bills. The score sheet shows a dozen major legislative items, including acts to establish the Canada Assistance Plan, the Company of Young Canadians, the Health Resources Fund, the Science Council of Canada, the Canadian Dairy Commission, the National Arts Centre, and higher minimum wages; acts to expand the rural development program, and acts to reorganize government administration and redistribute Commons seats — the last accomplished for the first time in our history without heed for considerations of partisan expediency.

In line with innovations devised by the last Parliament to increase the efficiency of the institution, a good number of the 30 committees appointed were most active, notably the broadcasting committee during the CBC Seven Days imbroglio, a committee seeking ways to reduce the cost of prescription drugs, and committees concerned with economic and industrial matters. The expansion of committee work is one of the most important and least publicized achievements of this new Parliament.

The main lesson from the session so far, and one that was also demonstrated in the final session of the last Parliament, is that minority government can work well if there is a will to make it work. Indeed, a good many MPs have reconciled themselves to the idea that minority government will henceforth be the rule rather than the exception.

This concept of government makes life more difficult for the administration, calling for caution, humility and compromise to a degree unknown before 1962. But it also ensures a more democratic expression of the will of the people, and a closer control by the opposition on government excesses.

SPENCER CASE REPORT DRAWS ATTENTION TO CABINET POWER

Government Has Right to Summarily Fire Civil Servants for Misconduct

OTTAWA (CP)—Mr. Justice Dalton Wells says in his report on the Spencer case that the federal government should retain its right to fire any civil servant summarily for misconduct.

"The right to dismiss summarily for reasons of misconduct has always been a right enjoyed by an employer in business or industry," the report states. It was released Tuesday.

"I can see no reason why this right should be denied to the government of Canada. In a large, complex public service it is sometimes a necessity."

The dismissal of George Victor Spencer last New Year's Eve as a mail sorting clerk in the Vancouver post office sparked an uproar in Parliament.

Opposition MPs accused Justice Minister Cardin of having branded Spencer as a Communist spy without a hearing or trial. They criticized the government bitterly for firing Spencer without a hearing or the right of appeal and without pension benefits.

The dismissal was entirely legal under common law and section 50 of the Civil Service Act of 1961, which says "nothing in this act shall be construed to limit or affect the right or power of the governor-in-council (cabinet) to remove or dismiss any employee."

★ ★ ★

Mr. Justice Wells also concludes that Spencer was dying in 1965 and that the chances of convicting him of a criminal offence were doubtful.

These arguments were cited by the government in refusing to prosecute Spencer. Mr. Cardin opposed a hearing or appeal on the ground that it would unmask RCMP anti-espionage methods. The report supports this view.

The parliamentary debate on the Spencer case ended March 7 when Prime Minister Pearson announced the appointment of a judicial inquiry into Spencer's complaint that he had been unfairly deprived of his pension and insurance benefits.

Several ministers had repeatedly rejected opposition demands for such an inquiry. Mr Pearson suddenly reversed this stand on March 4. The prime minister called Spencer in Vancouver and asked him whether he wanted an inquiry. Spencer said yes and the cabinet set up the inquiry the following Monday.

McNamara Raps European 'Double-Think' on Forces for NATO

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

PARIS (CP)—The perennial problem of how to link NATO's nuclear planning with non-nuclear countries came to the fore Tuesday in the final day of a two - day ministerial meeting which heard candid reports on the state of the North Atlantic Alliance.

Defence ministers discussed methods of increasing Allied participation in planning nuclear strategy—in the selection, deployment and targeting of weapons.

Informants said the main problem now is to see whether NATO's non-nuclear members, especially West Germany, are willing to accept the view that a share in the planning of nuclear weapons is preferable to independent possession of them.

Perhaps the main achievement of Canada's defence minister, Paul Hellyer, was recognition by his 14 ministerial colleagues of the importance of the Allied Command Europe mobile force in defending NATO's flanks.

Conference sources said Hellyer was virtually alone when a few years ago he began a campaign for strengthening the so-called "ACE mobile force" by earmarking of contingents for it.

All ministers now supported the concept and said in their main communique:

"They devoted special attention to the part which the . . . force can plan in contributing to deterrence and demonstrating that spirit of solidarity and unity of purpose upon which the North Atlantic Alliance is based. They gave directions for the development of new financial arrangements for this force."

★ ★ ★

Hellyer, who returns to Ottawa today, offered a second Canadian battalion group — a battalion from the Canadian Black Watch Regiment already has been committed — for the force. The unit has yet to be selected.

The meeting heard U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara state bluntly that some European members of NATO exercise a sort of double-think where forces are concerned. If the U.S. withdrew some troops, it was immediately taken as a sign that Washington was turning its back on Europe. But if Washington suggested that European countries fulfil their NATO commitments, they replied the Soviet threat had lessened and greater forces were not necessary.

★ ★ ★

The meetings also heard British Defence Secretary Denis Healey tell of his country's economic difficulties. Britain was likely to reduce its Rhine army by 20,000 men from the present figure of 51,000. This follows France's withdrawal of its 80,000-man army from the integrated NATO command.

The committee is scheduled to meet again in Rome in September when it is likely to draw up a blueprint on the functions and membership of a permanent committee.

MAJOR BOOM IN MINING

By AB KENT
Times Business Writer

How the B.C. mineral industry has boomed is reflected in a 32 per cent growth in mining companies listed by Vancouver Stock Exchange in the last 12 months.

The July edition of the VSE Review lists 163 mining firms compared with 123 a year ago.

Investor interest in mining reached a frenzied peak in the late fall, but since then trading in mining shares has declined.

This parallels the winter season of limited mining exploration activity.

But most of the expansion of the exchange's mining list has taken place since January of this year.

UP 27 27 CENT

There have been 35 new listings for mining companies so far this year, an increase of 27 per cent from the end of 1965.

Mining exploration and development is continuing throughout the province at an anticipated high summertime level.

Coronet Mines Ltd. reports work being done on its two groups of claims in the area of Pine Point, N.W.T.

Induced polarization survey of a 56-claim group has been done and results are being interpreted by a Toronto firm. Closer spacing over anomalous areas is indicated to close in indicated boundaries.

Meanwhile linecutting on 86 claims near Falconbridge property is being carried out.

★ ★ ★

Linecutting is finished and induced polarization survey under way by the same Toronto firm of H. O. Seigel and Associates on behalf of Christina Lake Mines Ltd. holdings near Pine Point.

There are 376 claims in the group.

Linecutting and IP survey is planned for the company's 76 Brenda Lake claims, and diamond drilling on the original Christina Lake holdings is under way.

Consultant Dr. Victor Dolmage indicates results from this in a matter of weeks.

★ ★ ★

Silverquick Development Co. (B.C.) Ltd. also has plans for work in the Brenda Lake district.

Within a few weeks it is hoped to begin linecutting and aerial survey under direction of Hill, Manning and Associates.

Silverquick has secured consultants for its mercury property 20 miles from Gold Bridge in the Bralorne area, until recently under option to Canex Aerial Exploration Ltd. They will study Canex results and recommend whether further work is warranted.

The annual report of Mineral Mountain Mining Co. Ltd. outlines work done in the past year in the Yukon Vangorda-Dynasty area, a lead-silver-zinc-copper combination in Nevada, Separation Lake and Stump Lake claims in the Highland Valley, and a new block near Princeton.

AERIAL SURVEYS

Yukon property covers 20 claims where linecutting and aerial survey has been done. The consultant said 17 areas are worthy of exploration, two requiring preliminary work before diamond drilling is decided upon.

Mineral Mountain and Jersey Consolidated Mines Ltd. have equal shares in the Nevada property now being mapped and sampled before drilling.

Preliminary exploration is being done in Otter Creek, Princeton, area where the company has 40 claims.

★ ★ ★

Canusa Mines Ltd. recent 16-cent upswing apparently was based on uncirculated reports of drill core values from its Red Wing property near Anyox.

Assay results released Monday show a range of values in four diamond drill holes of between 1.83 per cent and 4.01 per cent copper, .005 to .07 ounces of gold, .15 to 3.21 ounces of silver, and from traces to 2.76 per cent zinc.

Under agreement with Anaconda American Brass Ltd., 60 per cent of shares will go to the American firm if ore is shipped from the mine, and 70 per cent if a mill is built.

It is proposed to spend at least $210,000 this year and next if further development is decided.

City Realtor Re-Appointed To Council

Victoria real estate agent P. D. P. Holmes and K. T. Guest of Nanaimo are re-appointed to the B.C. Real Estate Council for 1966-67.

The council acts as an advisory body to the provincial superintendent of insurance on real estate education, licensing and subdivision, and is appointed annually by the cabinet.

There are three new members on the 15-man panel, which re-elected Bert Edwards, of Vancouver as chairman.

Furniture, Meat Prices Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Increases during June in the wholesale prices of meats, livestock, newsprint and furniture pushed the general wholesale index one-fifth of a point higher for the month, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Tuesday.

The index advanced to 259.8 from 258.8 in May and compared with 252.1 for June, 1965. The index is based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100.

Retail outlets paid one per cent more for puchases falling under the animal products group and the wood products group.

Mineral and chemical products were steady and vegetable products declined slightly in price. Textiles, iron products and non-ferrous metal products were one per cent cheaper at the wholesale level.

Cominco Employees Accept Offer

TRAIL (CP) — The International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) voted Tuesday night to accept a settlement to avert a walkout at Cominco Ltd. operations in British Columbia.

About 5,000 hourly-paid employees, including a large number in this smelter city, will receive a 40-cent hourly wage increase over two years under the new contract.

Present base rate is $2.24½ an hour.

A union spokesman said Cominco workers voted 68 per cent in favor of accepting the settlement, which had been recommended by the union negotiators.

The settlement package involves a 20-cent increase retroactive to July 1, a further 20 cents July 1, 1967, and fringe benefits estimated at 16 cents an hour.

NEW PLANT TO BUILD GIANT JET AIRLINERS

SEATTLE (AP)—Construction of the Boeing Co.'s giant 747 jetliner, capable of carrying 350 to 490 passengers, was approved by the firm's directors.

The plane will fly passengers at speeds of more than 600 miles an hour. It will be double the size of the Boeing 707, currently used by a number of airlines throughout the world.

The 747's will be built at a new company plant under construction just southwest of Everett, Wash.

William M. Allen, Boeing president, said the corporation plans capability for producing 200 of the 747's by December, 1972, and a total of 400 by December, 1975.

Boeing has sold 25 of the jetliners to Pan American Airlines, which will pay $525,000,000 for the aircraft.

B.C. FERRIES INTERESTED

Hovercraft Price 'Now Looks Good'

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Ferry Authority will likely be using hover crafts within 10 years to whisk passengers from here to Vancouver Island, Monty Aldous said Tuesday.

The authority's general manager said the hovercraft, an aircraft-like conveyance that skims the wavetops at 80 miles an hour on a cushion of air, is being watched closely by the government agency. The hovercraft is being developed largely by Britain.

Mr. Aldous said aside from its speed and planned carrying capacity, the hovercraft has in its favor the fact that the price has declined dramatically since the first models came out.

"At first they were in the airplane cost category, but now they are about twice the cost of a ferry," he told a service club.

The B.C. Ferry Authority has a fleet of 23 ships operating along the coast and carried 16,000,000 passengers and 6,000,000 cars in the six years of operation.

Mr. Aldous said in an interview later that work on a sister ship to the Queen of Prince Rupert, which carries passengers and cars from northern Vancouver Island to Prince Rupert, is expected to begin in November. He said there will be daily service to Prince Rupert by 1968.

Third Largest Sale

EDMONTON (CP)—The Alberta government received $13,370,462 Tuesday from the sale of petroleum and natural gas leases and reservations throughout the province.

All but $14,737 of the total was spent on leases. Atlantic Richfield Company paid that figure for 23,040 acres in the Big Bend provincial reserve in the western section of the province.

The sale, third largest of the year, increased provincial revenue from the sale of leases and reservations this year to $65,034,318.

Prices of Cars To Increase

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says Canadian auto dealers expect the suggested retail price of 1967 cars will be from $50 to $60 higher than in the current model year.

The five Canadian auto makers refuse to discuss their pricing policies until they deliver their new models to dealers in the fall, the newspaper says.

The newspaper says most of the expected price increased will be due to installation of new safety devices promised by the auto makers.

Reports Higher Sales, Profits

VANCOUVER (CP) — Increased sales, earnings and profit were reported today by MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., largest forest products company in Canada.

In a report for the first six months of 1966, the company showed sales and other income of $236,232,196, net profit of $22,268,349 and net earnings of $1.17 per share.

Figures for the same six-month period a year ago were $216,079,949, $21,065,582 and $1.01 per share.

Chairman J. V. Clyne said increased sales and higher prices for newsprint contributed to the better profit picture. But offsetting these favorable factors "were increased costs and lower prices for pulp."

WARNING

In a statement to shareholders Mr. Clyne warned that the recent B.C. government-approved settlement of a forest industry contract dispute — giving workers a basic increase of 40 cents an hour in two years — will mean "very heavy" costs to the company.

He added that "such a scale of increases can only add substantially to the inflationary tendencies in evidence at the present time."

He referred to "the part taken by the federal government in the strike of dockworkers and the threatened work stoppages by the seaway workers in eastern Canada and the high awards in those instances," as having a bearing on the B.C. settlement.

Slowdown in Gold Shipments 'Puzzling'

LONDON (AP)—A steady decline in South African gold shipments to the London bullion market had dealers puzzled, but the Bank of England professed itself unworried.

The slowdown in the gold flow became noticeable last November when Premier Ian Smith's white minority regime in Rhodesia rebelled against British authority and proclaimed Rhodesian independence. Rhodesia is a neighbor of white-ruled South Africa.

In the first three months of this year, the total value of South African gold sold in London was worth $128,800,000 compared with $324,800,000 in the first quarter of 1965. The shrinkage has persisted.

Traditionally the London bullion market has been used by South Africa—the world's biggest producer—to sell her gold output. The fall in shipments has been one factor among many that have strained Britain's dwindling reserves of gold, dollars and other hard currency.

Plant Expansion

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Pan American Petroleum Corp. announced plans Monday for a new, multi-million dollar, sulphur-extraction addition to its gas processing plant at east Crossfield, Alta. The new plant will have a capacity of 1,480 tons of sulphur daily. Residue gas production capacity will be boosted to 87,500,000 cubic feet from 35,000,000.

SILVER-TONGUED IRISH PREACHER THREAT TO GOVERNMENT

Now Everyone Knows 'This Bloated Bullfrog'

PAISLEY taken seriously

By GODFREY ANDERSON

BELFAST (AP) — Paisleyism is fanning political and religious discontent in Northern Ireland.

Prime Minister Wilson called it in the British House of Commons "a quasi-Fascist movement under a clerical cloak."

An Ulster member of Parliament found a label for the movement's leader:

"This bloated bullfrog who tries to bully Northern Ireland."

Rev. Ian Paisley, 40-year-old Protestant extremist, says of his fellow-citizens:

"I want them to know who I am."

By now they do. And the authorities take him seriously.

Fifteen years ago when Paisley left the Irish Presbyterian Church (450,000 strong in a population of 900,000 Protestants), he was just a silver-tongued young preacher. He set up his own church and called his followers the Free Presbyterians.

Today his actual followers probably number 3,000 at most, but his gift for rousing religious emotions has brought him the backing of many more—perhaps as many as 500,000 in a total population of 1,250,000.

CHALLENGES AUTHORITY

That makes him a challenge to the government. It hit back last week by prosecuting him and five of his supporters for unlawful assembly after a riot. They were offered the choice of paying £30 ($90) fines or being jailed for three months. Paisley and two other ministers of his breakaway church chose jail. The others paid.

Arrested on his way to a prayer meeting, he told a hymn-singing crowd that before long he hopes to be in the Northern Ireland House of Commons. Women wept and crowds surrounded him as he went off under police escort.

His beliefs are a constant provocation to 500,000 Roman Catholics. He espouses the old Ulster tag that home rule means Rome rule and that it invites disaster even to open a crack between Belfast and Dublin.

The Irish Republic, largely Roman Catholic, is an independent country with Dublin as its capital. Northern Ireland, comprising countys of geographical Ireland where Protestants predominate, is a part of Britain but has its own government, with Belfast the capital, to deal with domestic affairs.

In Paisley's view, Prime Minister Terence O'Neill is a traitor because he twice dared to meet with the Irish Republic's premier, Sean Lemass, to discuss mutual problems.

He calls the Archbishop of Canterbury, a traitor, too, for going to Rome to meet Pope Paul. The archbishop heads the Anglican communion which includes the Church of Ireland.

TO SAVE IRELAND

To hear Paisley tell it, only Paisleyism, his own brand of religious endeavor, can save Northern Ireland from a Roman Catholic takeover. The other Protestant churches, in his view, already are far on the path to Rome.

Belfast is a dangerous city at the best of times. Its Catholic and Protestant populations live in separate areas where sometimes street fights erupt.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, JULY 27, 1966—PAGE 11

Arthur Mayse

One man's junk is another's treasure, and my bag of snippets from a scruffy old polar bear rug is worth more to me than its weight in mink. Each year, it provides material for winging the big, gay flies that no right-minded coho salmon can resist.

First, though, the fur must be prepared for the hook. This is one of those fussy small jobs a fisherman enjoys, provided he has time in plenty for it, and a proper spot in which to undertake it.

This last, for me, is a salt chuck beach on a sunny morning. It must be a beach of the wilder sort, where one can light a fire. There should be some little black-headed Bonapartes — coho gulls, we call them—and preferably a boy along to gather Douglas fir bark nubbins and ask questions.

Beyond that, you need only a few boxes of all-purpose fabric dye, a vial of vinegar, and, of course, some polar hair.

This, already washed in detergent suds, ranges in color from sparkling white through cream to yellow. The off-shade fur is indelibly pre-dyed by mineral salts of Arctic waters in which the great bears swim, and no amount of bleaching will lighten it.

So we save the pure white pieces with their four or five-inch long guard hairs for the under-wing. The rest goes into the dye-pot.

★

For this work a bonfire blaze is not wanted. Scoop out a foot-wide fire hole in the beach shingle, well away from the drift logs, and edge it with larger stones. Whittle a ruff of cedar shavings around a stick, touch a match to this tinder, and feed your fire with salty, silvery drift scraps until it is strong enough to take the bark chunks.

When these burn down, you have a small, very hot and all but smokeless blaze, the sort that will boil water in two shakes of a polar bear's tail.

What's needed next is clean salt water, scooped from the gull-haunted shallows. I use a battered camp pot, blackened by many past fires.

Set this on your stones above the concentrated hatful of heat, add a sparing dash of vinegar then stroll the beach or loaf in the sun until the water begins to simmer.

Dump in the dye of your choice, remembering that a little goes a long way. Stir with a stick. When the pot comes to what housewives call a rolling boil, drop in your previously-wetted chunk of polar.

Now comes the tricky part of the operation. Color-wise coho usually prefer the softer tints; a faded red will take more fish than a bright scarlet. This means you must not over-dye; and to prevent any such catastrophe, I suspend each piece of fur on a string and jig it in and out of the bath.

When the tint is precisely right, whisk the fur out and hurry it down for a rinsing in the cold sea. Smooth the water from the hair, set it to dry on a log, empty the red dye, and scour the traces from the pot with a fistful of wet sand. You are then ready to repeat with another color.

My own pet shades for coho are the faded red I mentioned above, and a light blue tinged sparingly with green. But as everyone who trolls the big "bucktails" knows, the bright fur laid above the white under-wing may be any imaginable hue. I remember a day when hot orange was the only color to fetch strikes, and more than one evening when fish would come only to the palest of green.

What I have traced for you here is my own recipe, learned from a commercial handliner in the days when this unique B.C. coast lure was tied with hair from the tail of goat, calf or deer. He worked his bucktails when minnows weren't handy to his herring rake.

There are other fur-dying recipes, and the shades produced with the newer dyes are marvellous to behold.

For my own method, I will claim only that it's a heck of a lot more fun than messing up your wife's clean kitchen; and that while salt water-dyed polar hair may fade a trifle from time and hard mauling, your colors will never run.

If present plans materialize Wharf Street could look something like this in five years' time. This artist's impression of what a hotel would do for the area was painted shortly after the announcement of a major face-lifting job for Bastion Square was made. Although the artist had no knowledge of a local syndicate's plans for a hotel he visualized such a project as the cornerstone for future development. City planners agree that though this concept was but an artist's dream two years ago, it could become reality in the near future. With Ocean Cement planning to move from Wharf Street within the next five years the vision will move even closer into being. City planner Geoff Greenhalgh stresses that the painting is "just an impression of what could be done" but says that eventually he believes the entire waterfront area will be utilized for recreation.

Hotel-Marina On Wharf St. Syndicate Aim

By JIM HUME
Times City Hall Reporter

Victoria will have two new hotels within the next year if plans now under development materialize. Both will be on the waterfront.

Most ambitious of the two projects involves property in the 1100 block Wharf Street.

The property between the old HMCS Malahat building and McQuade's is registered in the name of the National Trust "and others". It was originally owned by the late Christopher Spencer.

It is understood a three-man syndicate involving two Victoria men and one Vancouver hotel owner will release details of the hotel-marina complex in about three months' time.

DRAWINGS DRAFTED

Although principals in the syndicate are reluctant to talk about their plans until all details are worked out, it is understood working drawings have already been drafted.

If present plans work out the hotel will have its main entrance at street level with two floors of underground parking beneath the main structure.

On the harbor side there will be some provision for small craft wharfage but it will be only a minor aspect of the development.

A well-informed source said the developers will not be concentrating on the marina angle.

"There isn't enough hotel trade from the boating fraternity to warrant the spending of too much money on small boat facilities," he said.

BASTION THEME

The area surrounding the hotel will be landscaped to fit in with the Bastion Square theme.

City planners say they have received no official word on the planned hotel but expressed delight that such a project is being considered.

"It will be wonderful if such a project goes through," said city planner Geoff Greenhalgh.

REVITALIZE AREA

"I am sure that Bastion Square will revitalize the entire area eventually and a hotel such as the one you are talking about would have a tremendous impact."

The second hotel complex planned for the waterfront will be on CPR property on Belleville Street if the CPR board of directors gives the scheme its blessing.

Local businessman Charles White is the promoter of the CPR project.

On Tuesday he appeared before a group of aldermen and city officials to bring them up to date on his plans.

He is scheduled to appear Thursday before the Capital Improvement District Commission to brief them and seek their backing.

It is stressed that no definite progress can be made until the CPR, which will retain owner ship of the land, gives the go-ahead.

If it does a 90-unit motor hotel will be built on the existing CPR dock plus several stores, a dining room, cocktail lounge and a clock tower similar to the one on Parliament Hill in Ottawa.

If the necessary clearances are obtained from the CPR work on the project would start after the final CPR ferry run this fall with completion date set in time for the 1967 tourist season.

No completion date has been set for the Wharf Street project.

Constitutional Dispute Erupts Over Officers

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Labor Reporter

An inter-union battle on B.C. Ferries has turned into a constitutional djspute.

The two unions involved are the B.C. Government Employees' Association (CLC) and The Canadian Merchant Service Guild (CLC).

The guild has applied to the Canada Labor Relations Board in Ottawa for certification of officers working the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen run.

The bid for federal recognition was based on the fact that ferries on this run sail partly through American waters while crossing the Strait of Georgia.

OPPOSITION

E. P. O'Connor, secretary of the B.C. Government Employees Association, said today his union intervened to oppose the application.

He appeared before a Canada Labor Relations Board hearing in Ottawa last week and was joined in his opposition by lawyers representing the B.C. attorney-general's department and B.C. Ferries.

Mr. O'Connor said the hearing was confined to the constitutional question of whether or not the Canada Labor Relations Board has jurisdiction in the matter.

The board reserved its decision but an announcement may be made next month.

"The ferry authority, the attorney-general's department and the employees association took the position that the board doesn't have the constitutional authority," he said.

PROVINCIAL BASIS

It was learned that the argument against the guild application was that B.C. Ferries is an agency of the crown operating only on a provincial basis.

In addition, it was stated that ferry employees are under the jurisdiction of the B.C. Civil Service Act and are civil servants of the province.

It was argued that it is inappropriate for a federal agency to deal jurisdictionally with provincial government employees, in the same way it would be for the B.C. Labour Relations Board to try and certify, for example, federal postal workers.

SIGNED UP

The association earlier this year charged the guild with raiding its jurisdiction by signing up masters, mates and engineers aboard B.C. Ferries.

Under the Canadian Labour Congress constitution, a mediator is looking into the charge.

At one time, the association represented about 600 ferry workers but they quit, expressing dissatisfaction with the union.

A union of deck and catering workers, called the B.C. Ferry Employees Union, has also been formed and it has applied to the CLC for membership. A decision was postponed by the CLC until October.

LABORERS' STRIKE AVERTED

A strike by laborers which would have tied up almost all construction work on southern Vancouver Island today was averted at a union meeting Tuesday night.

Settlement of the contract dispute between Local 1093, Construction and General Laborers Union, and about 30 local contractors was announced by union business agent John Gallow.

He said a separate agreement for the 300 laborers south of the Malahat will continue, but it will contain nearly all the benefits of the standard B.C. contract.

The new contract will expire in February, 1968, at the same time as the standard agreement.

Wages were settled earlier with the old rate of $2.56 an hour being increased to $2.84 rising to $3.24 next March.

Contractor George Wheaton said the issue was resolved "amicably" by avoiding some clauses of the standard agreement.

One of these states the laborers don't have to work with unions not affiliated with the building trades council, which would hit both contractors and employees where a union isn't a member of the council.

Campers Mourn 'Copper's' Sudden Death

A lady known as "Copper" was honored in Sands Funeral Chapel Tuesday afternoon.

She was Mrs. Dorothy Evelyn Copley — one of the most popular leaders at the George Pringle United Church Camp at Shawnigan Lake.

She died suddenly in camp last Friday at the age of 50 after returning from a boating trip on the lake with some of the girls in her care.

So it was that representatives of every United Church in Victoria were among the 200 men and women attending the service in Sands chapel.

Rev. E. Laura Butler spoke of the thousands of campers who had been associated with Mrs. Copley during her nine years of leadership.

"Her sudden passing was a severe shock to us in camp," Miss Butler said, "but we are thankful it happened so quickly and apparently without any suffering."

Two of Mrs. Copley's favorite hymns were sung — God Who Touchest Earth With Beauty and How Great Thou Art.

Camp leaders and campers travelled from Shawnigan Lake to attend the service, which was followed by interment in Royal Oak Burial Park.

Born in Vancouver, Mrs. Copley resided with her husband, Robert, and their family at 1229 Effingham Street, Victoria.

She is also survived by a daughter, Diana, at home; two sons, Richard, Vancouver and George, Windsor, Ont.; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Chambers, Vancouver; a brother, Harry, at Spokane, Wash.

Mrs. Copley was a keen golfer, a Sunday school teacher and a Tyro leader.

NOV. 19 SET FOR VOTE ON SWIM POOL

Nov. 19 has been set as a tentative date for a referendum to determine whether residents of Langford, Colwood and Metchosin want a $220,000 centennial swimming pool.

The pool will be owned by the Regional District Board but capital costs and maintenance costs will be borne only by residents in the three unorganized districts.

The pool will be constructed on an 18-acre site on the former Colwood race track on the old Island Highway.

"We are confident residents will approve the project," said J. S. Williams, chairman of the centennial project committee.

NEW ORGANIST ROBBED, ATTACKED IN PARK

City police are investigating the robbery of the new organist of St. John's Anglican Church Tuesday afternoon in Beacon Hill Park.

Donald Woodworth, staying at the Dominion Hotel, was robbed of a $100 wrist watch, a gold ring, a silver crucifix and other personal effects by a young man he described as about 21 years old, six feet tall, and "lanky."

Mr. Woodworth said he was struck in the chest several times.

2-YEAR JOB

Mental Hospital Work Starts

After years of construction and planning, work began today on construction of the provincial government's psychiatric hospital on Lee Avenue behind Royal Jubilee Hospital.

A public works department official said Burns and Dutton Construction Ltd. has begun site preparations and foundation work which is expected to take about three months.

The company's bid of $179,000 for excavation, foundation footings and erection of the concrete shell for a one-storey section of the building was accepted last week as the lowest of four tenders.

Before the Victoria Mental Health Centre, as the hospital project is known, is completed, a series of contracts for various stages of the work totalling between $6 and $7 million will be let.

Construction time is estimated at 18 months to two years.

When complete, the hospital will have 240 beds and an outpatient department.

Tallest section of the building will rise seven stories but there will be lower sections.

JUNIOR BARMEN ORDERED TO MOVE OVER

Pop Won't Work as Sop to Cop

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

Summer was bustin' out all over Tuesday, and so were the lemonade stands run by junior tycoons out to make a quick nickel.

One in a Saanich subdivision ran into business difficulties, however, when it was found operating on public property —namely, right on the road.

But pint-sized partners running the stand were only mildly distressed when policeman pulled up to advise them to move the stand before traffic put an end to their business venture.

"We offered them a cool drink," said tow-haired Vicki West, 10, of 1682 Alderwood Crescent.

Then Vicki ("My real name is Victoria") and partner Jim Jacek, 3988 Cedarwood, who is "going on 10," moved their business premises several yards up the street to a vacant lot.

There they set up their aluminum table and patio chairs again, with the help of young brothers and sisters and neighboring youngsters.

And started with the soft sell:

"You can get drinks in one cent, five cent and 10 cent glasses," Vicki told customers.

"And it comes in three flavors — lemon, orange and raspberry."

TOOTHPICK TOO

Also on sale were popcorn (10 pieces for a penny) and cinammon-flavored toothpicks.

The partners found that moving to a new location can often help trade — "We've made 55 cents so far."

Drawn by the business boom, operators of a rival refreshment stand down the street came up to observe.

"We've only made nine cents at ours," admitted Stephen Burgoyne, 12, "but we just started."

The lemonade stand business all round is usually subsidized pretty heavily by parents, who may or may not realize their assets are boosting the economy.

Glasses and pitchers are often borrowed, and in this case somebody's mom even made the drinks.

"One of their friends was selling lemonade down the street yesterday," Jim's dad explained. "So they just had to set up a stand today."

Another booth was set up on a corner only three blocks away, where a young miss was hawking her wares in paperboy style.

"Drinks — five cents, 10 cents. Come and get it."

Man Fined $50 For Hitting Girl

A Montreal man today was fined $50 in central court for assaulting a five-year-old girl on Tuesday.

Russell Grant, 21, who told court he was returning east next week, was arrested after Saanich police were called to a brother-in-law's house to settle a domestic dispute.

Leaving the house on the arrival of police, Grant knocked into the girl, Linda Barrett, who was sitting on a staircase.

Accident Victim Out of Hospital

Laurel Fraser Benham Jr., 21, of 1675 Donnelly, was released from St. Joseph's Hospital Tuesday after treatment for injuries suffered in an auto accident at Beaver Lake Park on Saturday.

The man had sustained concussion and cuts.

CRITICS HAIL WIN OVER PORTUGAL . . .

England Has More Than Victory of Which to Be Proud

. . . AS CLASSIC OF SOCCER ARTISTRY

LONDON (CP)—In England today where the game was invented, despite what the North Koreans say, soccer is again in glory.

England moved into the finals for the World Cup against West Germany Saturday by defeating Portugal 2-1 Tuesday. But the English fans have more than a victory on the pitch of which to be proud.

The match was a classic of soccer artistry by both teams.

More than that, after days of bickering and matches punctuated by lost tempers and fouls, it was a return to sportsmanship in the best English tradition of "play up and play the game."

Some 90,000 fans in Wembley Stadium gave as loud an ovation to the valiant Portuguese as they did their victorious 11. And the British press today reflected that same sentiment.

"England the great" was the main headline on The Express. Says Desmond Hackett: "England played its way into soccer history with confidence, poise and moving courage. It was a performance that thrust down the throats of complaining nations from South America and Europe that England was not fit to play in the final."

The Times, restraining itself to a one-column headline on the front page, says:

"The match did much to restore the tarnished reputation of the competition and the game, for it was played throughout in a thoroughly sporting spirit."

Brian James wrote in The Mail: "Let there be no more argument. This is a good, if not great, England team. It was a victory for England and the game itself, for the match was as clean and sporting as it was filled with good football."

Peter Lorenzo said in The Sun: "The Wembley faithful had waited long and patiently for a match so rich in all the good things of soccer—90 minutes of superb sporting endeavor which will do much to obliterate the memories of the vigor and violent temper that preceded it."

Ken Jones said in The Mirror it was "a match that at least lives up to the true traditions of football. A match high in quality, packed with courage and sprinkled with the sportsmanship that has been so sadly missing from this competition."

After the furore, flaring tempers and international insults of the last few days, the British press has given a generally friendly reception to a Hungarian proposal to change the way the World Cup classic is played.

A Hungarian sports authority official has suggested eight finalists play a round-robin series, with no sudden-death playoffs and the cup go to the team with the best record.

The Guardian calls the proposal "bright" and Frank Taylor writes in The Sun: "I think the Hungarians are on the ball with this idea."

But The Telegraph disagrees. "All that would happen is that those teams to whom defence is everything would settle for draws; tackling would be as fierce as ever. At least victory is important under the present system. We should be thankful for small mercies."

Fouls Are Few; Play Is Great In English Win

By GEOFFREY MILLER

LONDON (AP)—England and West Germany are high and dry in the final of the World Cup Saturday and soccer is holding its head up proudly again.

England edged Portugal 2-1 Tuesday in a thrilling semi-final at London's Wembley Stadium.

A crowd of 90,000 stood and cheered all 22 players off the field at the end. Between them, the two teams erased the unpleasant memories of much that had happened in the tournament previously — players sent off the field, suspended, injured by vicious tackles, feigning injury, wasting time.

These were some of the facts of the England-Portugal game:

Only 11 fouls were committed—eight by England, three by Portugal. None was dangerous.

Only one player was slightly hurt—Jose Torres of Portugal, who tripped over the press photographer squatting behind the touchline. He made light of it, limped back and played on.

There was not a single hold-up for injury. Nobody once argued with the referee. Nobody adopted delaying tactics.

At the end, the players of both teams rushed to shake hands and walked off with their arms round each other's shoulders.

Portugal has another game at Wembley Thursday — against Russia in a playoff for the third place. West Germany defeated the Russians 2-1 in the other semi-final.

The Portuguese, fired by their captain Mario Coluna, put on a magnificent display and capped it with a storming finish that almost saved the match.

Sportsmanship Delighted Crowd

But it was their sportsmanship that delighted the crowd most. They squashed the idea, promoted by many critics here, that Latin temperament has spoiled the World Cup.

Argentina and Uruguay have been at the centre of the ugliest scenes in World Cup history. Both had two players ordered off the field. Latin Americans have jumped to their defence and accused European referees of being biased.

Both Argentina and Uruguay used retreating defensive tactics. They were tagged as playing a brand of soccer that was killing the game as a spectacle.

But Tuesday night the Latin temperament produced open, attacking football and the highest level of sportsmanship seen in the whole tournament.

Portuguese television commentator Costa Pereira said "The game was clean and a great spectacle, a game like it has not been seen in this World Cup and probably never will be seen."

Commentators from the Russian news agency Tass said the match came like "a spring of clear water breaking through the murky wave of dirty football which has covered recent matches in the championship."

Two players did most to win the game for England.

Bobby Charlton cracked home two fine goals—both first-time shots, one in the 30th minute and one in the 79th minute.

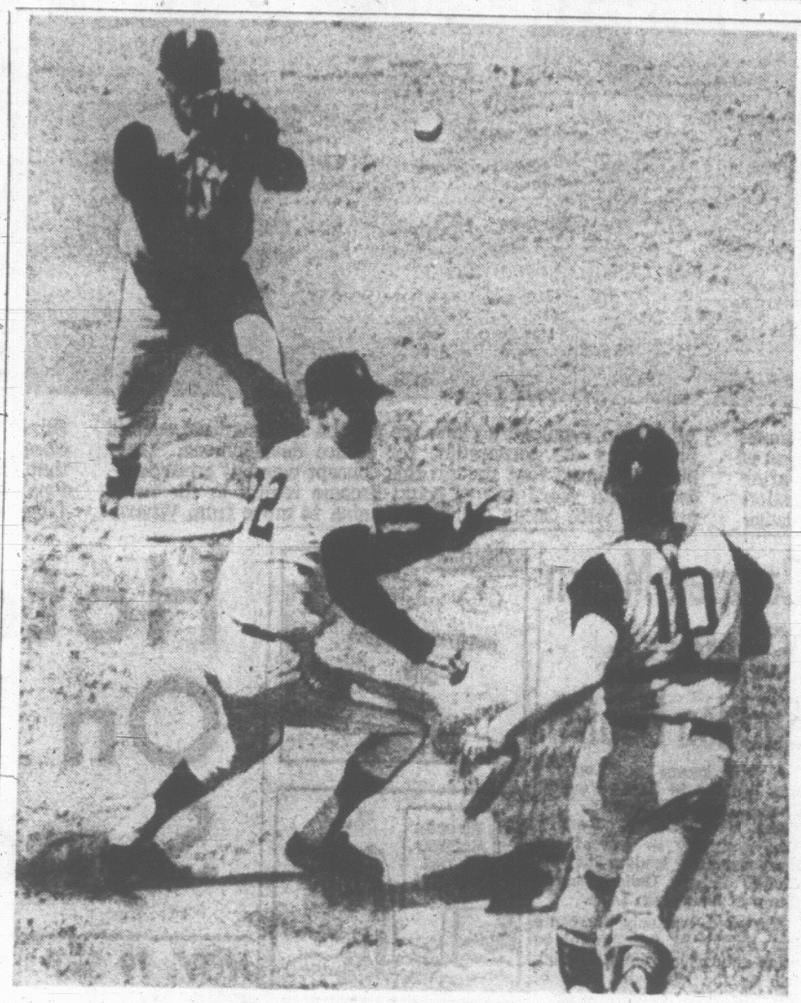

Nobby Stiles, previously warned by the World Soccer Federation (FIFA) for rough play, clipped the wings of Eusebio, the tournament's top marksman.

Stiles set out to shadow the Mozambique - born star. He stopped him without fouling him once.

PENALTY SHOT

Eusebio fired seven unsuccessful shots at the England goal. England, by clever defensive methods, forced him to shoot from long range—and even Eusebio couldn't get the ball past brilliant goalkeeper Gordon Banks.

Eventually Eusebio scored from a penalty for hands. It was his eighth goal of the tournament—and the first goal conceded by England since the competition began.

NO PLACE TO GO

When you make a turn you better be sure you have ample time to arrive at your destination. San Francisco's Hal Lanier tried to score from second base on Gaylord Perry's single, but Jose Pagan, left, and Jim Pagliaroni, of Pittsburgh, had other ideas. Pagan put the tag on, but the Giants won 8-3 and took over the National League lead. (AP Wirephoto.)

Baseball's Anti-Trust Immunity Is Upheld

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—The Wisconsin Supreme Court gave the Braves to Atlanta today in a decision that upheld baseball's traditional immunity from anti-trust law regulation.

The decision makes Milwaukee, where a glittering series of major-league records were established in the 13-year period after the Braves moved west from Boston, the first major-league city in modern times to be left without a franchise.

The high court held that baseball was indeed a monopoly but could not be governed by state laws, and ordered the suit dismissed.

The 4-to-3 decision said the state of Wisconsin was "powerless" to enforce its own anti-trust law against a sport spread from coast to coast.

A federal anti-trust suit has been pending since last year in U.S. District Court in Milwaukee.

The decision erased a finding by Circuit Judge Elmer W. Roller in Milwaukee that the National League and its members violated Wisconsin law in transferring the Braves franchise from Milwaukee to Atlanta at the end of last year.

Judge Roller ordered the club to return to Milwaukee unless the league provided an expansion plan that would grant the Wisconsin city a new major league franchise in 1967.

APPEALED DECISION

The order had been stayed pending baseball's appeal to the state's highest court.

Wisconsin Attorney - General Bronson C. La Follette said he would take an appeal to the United States Supreme Court "within 30 days."

The majority opinion said baseball seemed to operate as a monopoly, but that the silence of Congress in applying anti-trust laws to the sport was interpreted to mean "there is to be self-regulation until such time as Congress decides that the public interest requires other control."

The opinion cited the 1922 U.S. Supreme Court decision that baseball was not a business subject to anti-trust regulation, and noted later rulings refusing to overturn that precedent.

The decision continued:

"We deem it unrealistic to interpret these decisions . . . plus the silence of Congress as creating a mere vacuum in national policy, leaving the states free to regulate the membership of the baseball leagues."

FEAR LEGAL TANGLE

The majority opinion also said that if one state were to regulate baseball, the door would be open to similar action by other states, resulting in a tangle of court actions.

The court justices in the majority, the opinion said, could not agree on which point was the main reason for freeing baseball, but did agree that the decision should be reversed.

The dissenting opinion was written by Justice Nathan Heffernan, who said "It is difficult to see what national interest is preserved by immunizing this organization from the consequences of its violation of state law.

"The record is rife with evidence that the corporation acted surreptitiously and deceitfully."

This Boxla Week Must Contain Three Irish Wins

Never mind seven days, This Week has Three Games.

And Victoria Shamrocks must win them all.

Or forget about the Intercity Lacrosse League playoffs.

Rocks play New Westminster at Memorial Arena. Tonight at 8.

The teams play at New Westminster Thursday night. And back here Saturday night.

Westminster needs the points, too. But not as badly as Shamrocks do.

The Westminsters have an eight-point bulge on the Rocks.

If Rocks win all three, the bulge has a hole in it. If the hole gets wide enough Rocks could squeeze through and make the playoffs.

Coquitlam Adanacs aren't helping. They lost to New Westminster last week. And to Vancouver Tuesday night, 13-11.

So Rocks will have to do it by themselves.

All 13 of them.

That's all coach Bert Bertoia will use. One goalie, five defencemen, two forward lines and a utility.

They go better that way, Bertoia says. Work harder, run faster, stay hot.

Hot? Barry Forbes is the hottest thing in goalkeepers. Given up only seven goals in last two games.

Rocks? Scored 19 in same two games.

They're good now.

Good enough for the playoffs? Maybe.

BLIND GOLFERS

Ron Hewlett Takes Third

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — Claude Pattimore of Hamilton came from behind Tuesday to win the Canadian Blind Golfers Association championship with a 36-hole score of 214.

Pattimore defeated defending champion Phil Lederhouse of Prince Albert, who posted 219.

Ron Hewlett of Victoria was third with 253 and Bob Smith of St Catharines, Ont., fourth with 281.

Lederhouse retained his Western Canadian championship with his two-day score. Hewlett was runner-up.

Bantam Lions Ready To Work

Esquimalt Lions bantam football team will be holding its first practice of the season at Bullen Park Sunday at 2 p.m.

Manager Charlie Buckley, defensive coach Dave Fitzgerald and offensive coach Ray Negrich will attempt to whip the club into shape for the league's opening game Sept. 12.

Any boys aged 13-16 interested in playing football this year are invited to attend the workout.

Dodgers Are Enjoying Music by Ferrara Bat

By Associated Press

Al Ferrara mastered Beethoven and Brahms when he was 16. Now, he's finally coming of age as a swinger.

Ferrara, who gave up a promising future as a concert pianist 10 years ago for baseball, but failed in two previous major league trials, stroked the key hit for the second straight game Tuesday night as Los Angeles Dodgers edged Philadelphia Phillies 3-2 and remained in the thick of the National League pennant scramble.

The husky outfielder's pinch single in the ninth inning drove in the winning run, capping a two-run rally that extended the third - place Dodgers' victory string to five and left them 1½ games off the pace.

San Francisco Giants regained the league lead from Pittsburgh Pirates with an 8-3 triumph over the Pirates as Gaylord Perry won his 15th in 17 decisions.

SENT TO MINORS

A year ago Ferrara may have regretted his decision to pass up the concert hall for the diamond. The six-foot-one, 203-pound muscleman was finishing out the season at Spokane after blowing his second chance to make the Dodger varsity.

But Walt Alston gave him another shot this spring and Ferrara hasn't disappointed the Dodger manager.

In Monday night's 6-3 victory over the Phillies he ignited a decisive three - run rally in the eighth inning with a tie-breaking single. Tuesday night's game-winning hit raised his average to .290 and his RBI total to 20.

Elsewhere, St. Louis Cardinals nipped Atlanta Braves 4-3, Cincinnati Reds outslugged Chicago Cubs 9-6 and New York Mets shaded Houston Astros 5-4.

Stone Rocks Luckies In Softball Thriller

Dick Stone stroked a two-run double off Rick Rawnsley to power Colony Inn to a 6-4 extra-inning victory over Luckies Tuesday night at Heywood Avenue Park.

Stone struck the key blow of the Senior Men's Softball League upset in the eighth frame following a safe bunt by Don McIntosh and two fielding errors.

The game-winning double marked the second time during the night that a two-run blow enabled Colony to surge out in front of Luckies. Colony took a 4-2 lead in the top of the third inning when Herb Latreille, who went two for four, drove home Ken Pollock and McIntosh with a single. Latreille's hit climaxed a four-run inning in which Colony connected for five safeties.

A run-scoring single by Doug Couch in the third and a sacrifice fly by Ralph Branting in the fifth enabled Luckies to tie the score before Stone decided things in the eighth.

The win left Colony a game and a half out of the fourth and final playoff spot. They have only two games left, but if they win them both and if their principal opposition fails to win the Innkeepers can still make the playoffs.

Luckies are still in second place, a game and a half behind first-place Carlings.

TURF TITANS SPEND . . .

With $100,000 You Can Stay

. . . $5,316,100 AT SALES

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—"If you've got $100,000 to spend, stay right where you are. Otherwise, get out of the way."

That's how auctioneer George Swinebroad cleared the Keeneland sales pavilion Tuesday night as he pushed the annual summer sale of yearlings thoroughbreds to its second consecutive record gross.

The titans of the turf world spent $5,316,100 for 292 unfested colts and fillies with royal bloodlines in the four sessions of the two-day sale. The total and the average of $18,206 a head were records.

The previous record, $5,068,300 on sale of 282 head, was established last year.

Topping the market during the auction was a Bold Ruler-La Dauphine colt with a $200,000 price tag, purchased by former jockey great Johnny Longden as agent for Frank McMahon of Vancouver.

Clairborne Farm's A. B. Hancock Jr. made the next biggest splash when he plunked down $152,000 Tuesday for a colt by Princequillo-Spar Maid.

BOXLA COACH HANDED SUSPENSION FOR LIFE

MONTREAL (CP)—Frank Curotte, coach of Caughnawaga Indians, of the Quebec Lacrosse League, was banned from the game for life Tuesday by Jean-Paul Massicotte, league president.

Curotte was alleged to have attacked referee Leo Theoret, Sunday night, after the Indians dropped a 16-13 decision to Ville St. Pierre Saints at the suburban Lachine arena.

"Curotte will never again have anything to do with lacrosse," Massicotte said.

There was no indication whether Curotte's expulsion will apply across Canada. The QLL operates outside the jurisdiction of the Canadian Lacrosse Association, the national governing body.

Kings' Knowles Spins No-Hitter

John Knowles' major mound weapon is the strikeout pitch. His chief pitching problem is control.

The 17-year-old righthander struck out 16 and walked nine Tuesday night at Hampton Park while recording the first no-hitter of the Senior Amateur Baseball League season during a 4-2 Kings victory over Greaves.

Walks contributed to both Greaves scores. A seventh-inning fly to centre by Dave Rivers was the only ball Greaves hit out of the infield. Only one play was close to a hit and that was Bob Bowles' third-inning bunt between the mound and the third base line that Knowles bobbled while attempting to make the play bare-handed.

Leading 4-1 in the eighth and final frame, Knowles loaded the bases on walks before striking out Bowles. Knowles walked Vic Skinner to let one run score and the tying run advance to second base before going once again to the strikeout to bail himself out of trouble.

BISHOP THE LEADER

Firing a heavy fastball and breaking off a big curve, the hard-throwing youngster set Don Bell and Larry McKinty down on strikes to end the contest.

Lifted by hopes of edging out Rawlings in the scramble for fourth playoff spot, Kings tagged Greaves' pitching for nine hits. Playing manager Gary Bishop, who went three for four, drove home the winning run with a two-run line drive single to centre.

The loss left Greaves 3½ games behind league-leading Transports, who won 3-2 Tuesday in an exhibition game against Evening Optimists' Connie Mack League club at Windsor Park. The Optimists are preparing for the provincial Connie Mack finals to be played at Windsor Park starting this Thursday.

ANGRY GOLFER MADE THINGS PLENTY HOT

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — A golfer, angered over a bad tee shot, hurled his golf club into the air and it struck a 12,000-volt power line.

The club caught fire and shattered, fell into dry grass, and touched off a fire.

Golf pro Fred Burns, who witnessed the event at Countryside Golf Course, said:

"There was one big boom and the club shot out into the grass. The foursome took off in all directions."

Firemen put out the grass fire. The angry golfer didn't identify himself.

Gord Gannon On Gym Team

Gordon Gannon, assistant physical instructor at the Victoria YM-YWCA, has been selected for the Canadian team that will compete in the world gymnastic championships in West Germany.

No other Canadian team members have as yet been announced for the September meet.

Morrisons Win

Morrisons grabbed a one-game lead in their Junior Men's Softball League semifinal against Sooke Tuesday night at Central Park.

Dave Bowey struck out 11 batters and allowed only one hit in pitching Morrisons to a 5-3 victory.

Denford Electric opened the other semi-final at View Royal by defeating Esquimalt 6-3.

Colt League Playoff Added to 'Ball Show

PLANNING TO RETIRE in two years is world heavyweight champion Cassius Clay, who said in London Tuesday he will defend title five more times and then become Black Muslim preacher. Clay meets Brian London in England on Aug. 6.

A British Columbia Colt League playoff has been added to a full schedule of minor baseball tournaments to be played in Victoria this week.

Victoria Colt League All-Stars will face Prince George in a best-of-three two-team playoff at Topaz Park this weekend, with a single game at 6 p.m. Saturday and an afternoon game Sunday at 2. A third game will be played at 6 p.m. Sunday if necessary.

The Colt League playoff was originally intended to be held in Penticton but organizational difficulties have caused the playoff site to be moved to Victoria.

PONY PLAY OPENS

The 15 and 16-year-old Colt Leaguers will be in action while the B.C. Pony League (13 and 14-year-olds) playoff will be reaching the high-pressure stage at Carnarvon Park.

The four-team double loss elimination Pony League tourney opens tonight with the Carnarvon all-stars meeting Penticton at 6:30. Victoria's Triangle Pony League representatives will tangle with Prince George Thursday. Final round action will take place Saturday and Sunday.

Tonight's minor baseball program will also feature the first game of Little League area playoffs. James Bay meets Layritz, 6:30 at Allenby Park.

The best baseball should take place at Windsor Park this week during the four-team double loss elimination B.C. Connie Mack tournament.

COWICHAN ON FIRST

Victoria's league champion Evening Optimist club, strengthened by the addition of pitchers Jerry Lister and Al Hurst and infielder Dave Graas, will meet Lake Cowichan Thursday night at 6:30 in the opening game of the tournament, being held in Victoria for the first time.

Friday, Vancouver Mount Pleasant plays Vancouver Hoffars at 6:30. Two games are due Saturday, with two (a third if necessary) Sunday.

Week's schedule:

COLT LEAGUE

Saturday—Victoria vs. Prince George at 6 p.m. in first game of best-of-three B.C. championship playoff.

Sunday—Victoria plays Prince George at 2 p.m. and, if necessary, at 6 p.m.

CONNIE MACK LEAGUE

Thursday—Victoria vs. Lake Cowichan, 6:30, Windsor Park.

Friday—Vancouver Hoffars vs. Mount Pleasant, 6:30, Windsor Park.

Saturday—Losers of first two games play at 2 p.m., Windsor Park; winners play at 6.

Sunday—Winner of Saturday afternoon game plays loser of Saturday evening game at 12 noon; winner plays Saturday evening winner at 3, and, if necessary, again at 6.

PONY LEAGUE

Games today, Thursday and Friday at 6 p.m.; Saturday and Sunday at 2 and 6.

LITTLE LEAGUE

Today—James Bay vs. Layritz, 6:30, Allenby Park.

Thursday—Esquimalt-Vic. West vs. Central-North Saanich, 6:30, Allenby Park; Fairfield vs. Oak Bay, 6:30, Hampton Park; Gordon Head vs. Triangle, Lakehill Ambassador Park.

Friday—American vs. winner of Wednesday, Allenby Park; Lakehill vs. National, Ambassador Park; Cadboro Bay vs. Hampton; Hampton Park. All games 6:30.

Saturday—Losers play consolation games at 2 p.m.; winners play for area title at 6:30.

UNCASHED CHEQUES

Tony Lema Was Toting Six Months' Winnings

MUNSTER, Ind. (AP)—Professional golfer Tony Lema was carrying tournament winnings amassed since January when he was killed Sunday night in a private plane crash near Munster.

A Lake County, Ind., official said Tuesday more than $19,000 in uncashed cheques was found in Lema's luggage.

Dr. Albert Willardo, county deputy coroner, said cheques for $19,996 were found in a briefcase. The case and Lema's clubs were among the few pieces of luggage not destroyed in the crash.

Also found in the case were 1,049 English notes of various denominations valued at about $4,000.

Lema's wife, Betty, also was killed, together with the pilot, Mrs. Doris Mullen, 43, of Joliet, Ill., and the co-pilot, Dr. George Bard, 41, of Joliet.

Dr. Willardo said that all those aboard were burned.

INSIDE ROSE MANOR

The Sunset Years Amid Happy Faces

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Last Monday I had dinner (midday because it is better for aged digestions) at Rose Manor, a residence for elderly women.

We sat in a big, airy room decorated in soft pinks and greys and with many windows. Sunshine touched white clothes and vases of yellow marguerites on every table.

Forbes

Signal for the doors to open came when the assistant matron, Miss Joyce Prebble rang an old-time hand school bell. Its far-carrying notes drifted through the many-winged building, bringing the 111 residents into the dining room from all directions.

There was laughter and a steady hum of conversation as they settled at the various tables. Until the bell sounded once more, this time very lightly.

Silence touched the room and the matron, Mrs. Ivy Steeves, voiced an age-old grace, "The Lord make us thankful for what we are about to receive."

★ ★ ★

As voices rose again and plates of good food were set at every place, I had the feeling that here were women who were indeed thankful to be able to live out their years in such pleasant surroundings.

Nowhere did I see an unhappy face. All were interested in their neighbors and all were obviously enjoying being with others of their own age groups. (A few are around the 72 mark but most are in their 80s.)

"We strive to keep this atmosphere," said Mrs. B. P. Allard, president of the manor's board of directors and, with Mrs. Ray Rickinson, my dinner hostess. "It's one of our main objectives."

Rose Manor, now in its 68th year, is primarily a boarding home. Except in the case of temporary illnesses, residents must be able to come to the dining room for meals.

It is a non-profit organization, managed by a board of 14 public spirited women, who set policy and who give many volunteer hours to assist the 33 staff members.

★ ★ ★

Sources of revenue are from monthly board payments and through donations from interested friends.

"We never have enough money to do all the things we would like to do at one time," Mrs. Allard told me. "Changes have to be made gradually so we can pay our bills."

Recently a new wing was opened at the manor. Or perhaps I should say an "old-new" wing for it was built long ago to house staff members.

Today, with better salaries and a more independent approach to such work, it has become harder to get staff to live in. So it was decided about a year ago to remodel the wing for residents.

This project opened 13 more bright, attractive rooms. It also added another sitting room furnished in gay colors.

In the basement two suites were arranged for the matron and assistant matron who, until then, were housed in single rooms. An unused trunk space was remodelled for a board room, "the first in the manor's history," Mrs. Allard pointed out.

Over the years the board has held meetings in one of the sitting rooms in the manor and during such times residents of necessity had to be excluded.

★ ★ ★

In other parts of the big building, changes have also been made. The church room, off the main sunroom, has been refurnished. Many fire doors and other safety devices have been installed.

A small room is now used as a beauty parlor and a trained operator is available once a week. A podiatrist also services the manor each week.

"We do everything we can to make manor living as normal as possible," Mrs. Allard said.

It would seem that this approach has been successful for Rose Manor is filled to capacity right now and there is a long waiting list.

Thant Assured Of Red Support

MOSCOW (AP)—U Thant has been assured the support of the Soviet Union for another term as secretary - general of the United Nations, but says he has not made up his mind yet, informed sources reported today.

The sources said Premier Kosygin told Thant during a long talk Tuesday the Soviet government wants him to accept re-election when his current five-year term expires Nov. 3.

Thant is to announce by early September whether he will seek re-election.

Vice - President Hubert Humphrey announced U.S. support of a second term for Thant last month and Britain and France also have endorsed a second term publicly. With this support there is no doubt Thant can remain if he wants to.

The secretary-general is chosen by the General Assembly on recommendation of the Security Council. The assembly's annual session begins Sept. 20.

Thant has urged UN members to try to find another candidate because he wants to spend more time with his family and to return to his home in Burma.

Thant spent three hours in conference with Kosygin Tuesday and a UN spokesman said afterward they had "a free, frank exchange of views" on Viet Nam, disarmament and European problems.

The spokesman would not say whether the question of the UN deficit, which results largely from the refusal of Russia and France to pay their share of UN peacekeeping costs, came up.

Gas and Flame Mix 'Pure Foolishness'

The use of an acetylene torch on a car gas tank in a Central Saanich service station Tuesday was described by police as "pure foolishness."

After the gas tank was cut out of a stock car by acetylene torch at Mount Newton B.A. Service it fell, gas spilled from it and was ignited.

Although firemen from the Central Saanich station, directly across the street from the blaze raced to help, flames billowed and quickly burned the car.

The service station proprietor reported little damage to his premises.

Criticism of Doctors 'Not for Other MDs'

TORONTO (CP) — Unless a patient needs help to establish a claim of malpractice or negligence, a doctor should not comment on the work of a previous doctor, says the secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Medical Protective Association.

Dr. T. L. Fisher of Ottawa, writing in the July 16 edition of the Canadian Medical Association Journal, said that a patient's trust is essential in doctor-patient relationships.

Petty criticism of doctors by doctors undermined "one part of the foundation of practice and so would harm patients."

No information or comment that will contribute to a patient's well-being, however, should be withheld from a patient, even when the information "may allow the inference that the previous doctor's work was poor."

But except in certain circumstances it is wrong to comment on a previous doctor's work because "he cannot know the circumstances in which treatment had been given and he cannot know that he would have done as well under the same circumstances.

"To plant doubts unnecessarily in patients' minds is unkind, is wrong, and harms patients."

U.K. Moves To Ban Pirate Radio

LONDON (Reuters) — The British government today presented to Parliament a bill designed to put out of business pirate radio stations which beam non - stop programs of rock 'n' roll and commercials at Britain.

There now are 10 pirate stations, operating from ships and abandoned sea forts outside territorial waters. They claim audiences of 7,000,000 to 10,000,000 for their programs, which compete with the state-owned BBC.

The bill, to be published Thursday, is expected to ban broadcasting from ships, aircraft, and certain marine structures and to make it an offence for a British citizen to work for or aid the pirate stations, or to advertise on them.

Heavy fines will be imposed on anyone breaking the law which is expected to come into force in March.

Meanwhile the government is looking into plans for a 24-hour pop-music service on the BBC.

Processions Banned

BELFAST (AP) — The Northern Ireland government banned public processions for three months Monday night in an effort to half worsening religious strife. Gatherings of three or more persons "likely to cause a breach of the peace" will be considered an offence.

PEOPLE CYNICAL AND APATHETIC

Time, History Answer to Red Rule

After two decades or more under Communist rule, the people of Eastern Europe accept the system with apathy or cynicism. John Best, Canadian Press correspondent in Moscow who toured the Communist bloc, describes how its inhabitants view their regimes.

By JOHN BEST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

If the peoples of Eastern Europe could freely decide tomorrow whether they wish to get rid of communism, what would be their verdict?

By and large, they would be so confused they wouldn't know how to react.

It's not easy to scuttle a system as all-prevading and all-embracing as communism. In our time, it has happened only in Guatemala, a country so tiny and so close to the United States that the CIA could handle the job quickly and quite handily.

In Eastern Europe, Communists have been in power for 20 years and more, and people have long since learned to afford the system a kind of fatal acceptance.

They've become used to the slogans, the exhortations, the dreary Communist-style May Day parades and the dreary repetitive projections of economic advance — projections that almost invariably outstrip performance.

"They're breeding a race of schizophreniacs," says a foreign woman who lives in an East European capital. It was an apt way of figuratively depicting the mental adjustments people have to make between what they are told exists and what they see existing with their own eyes.

FED UP

I asked a Czech woman a complicated question: What did the people of her country think of communism?

She replied with an uncomplicated but, I thought, telling answer: "After you've heard a thing often enough, you get sick of it."

Perhaps that is a large part of the truth; that East Europeans have been so riddled with Communist propaganda —which has a way of insulting the intelligence while supposedly inculcating Marxist ideas—that they are sick of communism.

"They've had it — up to here," said a foreign observer, placing his index finger in the vicinity of his ears.

"People need something for the soul," said the Czech woman.

This was a reference to the campaign against religion that most Communist regimes pursue, overtly or covertly. It was an affirmation that, whatever goodies Marxism may have to offer people, spiritual solace is not one of them.

VIEWED CYNICALLY

This is as keenly felt in Orthodox countries like Bulgaria as in Roman Catholic countries like Poland.

To say that people are disillusioned would not be correct for disillusionment implies an original faith that was not necessarily present when communism was imposed on Eastern Europe under the umbrella of Soviet military might.

It would be correct to say that many are apathetic, and many others downright cynical. You try to get as much as you can out of the system, while giving as little as you can in return. You learn to play along with the game.

And communism does have some decided benefits to confer, including low rents, low public transportation fares, a comprehensive system of social security and health protection, and job security.

Against these are the still-continuing restraints on freedom of expression, especially in the printed form. However, most of the regimes have taken at least limited steps to loosen the tight controls over the populace. As a result they wear a more liberal look.

One of the most delicate problems facing East European governments is to balance popular pressure for greater freedom with the need to maintain their own position of power. Hungary showed that such pressure, if not kept in check, can quickly get beyond control.

DEFIANCE POPULAR

A regime that seems genuinely popular with its people is that of Romania—for a special reason. The Romanian regime's forceful assertion of national independence and its defiance of Russian hegemony has stirred a warm popular response.

This appeal to patriotic fervor transcends personal interests, since the people are being asked to work—and are working—harder than ever to justify the country's claim to be able to stand on its own feet economically.

Ironically, the Romanian regime is still the most authoritarian in East Europe, with the possible exception of Bulgaria.

Paradoxically, in Poland, which is far more liberal than Romania, the people are showing a certain contempt for the regime by rallying behind the Catholic church in its struggle against the Communist authorities.

Generally speaking, East Europeans seem disinclined to attempt to organize any massive, outward resistance to communism. They are content to let time and history exert their influence.

Under the impact of these two factors communism itself is changing, becoming less sinister and less oppressive—moving ever so slowly to the right.

MRS. PORTER
. . . leaves Dallas

Oswald Widow Bids For Privacy in Move

GREENVILLE, Tex. (AP)—Away from the "glass house" she wanted to leave in Dallas, the widow of Lee Harvey Oswald was in her new house here today.

Tuesday was moving day for the Kenneth Jess Porters and they were quick to tell Dallas newspaper men that they were happy to leave the city where, the Warren commission says, Mrs. Porter's former husband shot and killed President John F. Kennedy and policeman J. D. Tippit.

"How would you like living in a glass house for all the world to see?" Marina Oswald Porter asked as she left Dallas.

A few hours later, she was in Greenville, population 21,000 and about 50 miles northeast of Dallas.

Marina, her three children—two by Oswald and an infant born July 3 — and a woman friend drove up to the modest frame and brick home.

She started walking toward the house. A photographer raised his camera.

"Oh, no!" said Mrs. Porter. She ran into the house, leaving her children with her friend.

QUINTUPLETS ONE YEAR OLD

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (UPI) — The Lawson quintuplets celebrated their first birthday today with ice cream, orange drink and a two-foot wide birthday cake.

The babies, born after their mother underwent hormone treatment for sterility, are all teething, talking, standing alone and on the verge of walking.

Said their mother, Mrs. Shirley Ann Lawson:

"They are all happy babies, full of fun and healthy."

Group Denies New Party Bid

EDMONTON (CP) — The National Public Affairs Research Foundation, backed by some top Canadian businessmen, fears "that the freedom of the individual is in jeopardy" in this country.

Existence of the foundation, whose apparent function is to provide political thought free of political motives, was revealed this week.

David R. Wilson of Toronto, 44, executive director of the foundation, said in an interview Tuesday, that individual freedom is endangered "because of a policy of expediency that seems to be in vogue in the political arena at this time."

To counter-balance such a trend the foundation, incorporated in March and based in Toronto, is seeking out the views of businessmen, university professors and others, Mr. Wilson said.

The hope is to offer the country programs forged in the "cold light" of research and study, rather than ideas formed "on the election stump," said Mr. Wilson, executive director of the National Social Credit Party until last December.

The NPARF is concerned with some 15 or 16 major areas, among them "the effects of automation on society, our trade and commerce policies, our agriculture policies."

Although not connected with the Social Credit Party, the foundation is vitually concerned with individual initiative and incentive, and with the importance of free enterprise, said Mr. Wilson.

Preston Manning, 24, son of Alberta Social Credit Premier Ernest Manning, is co-ordinating research information on different subjects, a task he has been doing for three months now.

Asked about the foundation, Premier Manning said he sympathized with the foundation's aims, for it would mean a "realignment of political ideas in Canada," but denied there is any attempt afoot to form a new federal party.

The premier reaffirmed his intention not to head a federal party or enter federal politics. Preston Manning, in Ottawa, was not available for comment on the foundation or his role in it.

Two Murder Charges Against Florida MD

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP)—Dr. Carl Coppolino, 34, faces arraignment today for the murder of his first wife, also a physician, with a supposedly undetectable drug. It is one of two murder charges against the doctor.

Arraignment in the death of Carmela Coppolino, 34, last August 28, was set before Judge Lynn Silvertooth. Coppolino also faces a first - degree murder charge in New Jersey in connection with the strangulation death of a former neighbor, retired army Col. William E. Farber, 52.

Coppolino was taken into custody Saturday on a warrant from New Jersey's Monmouth County grand jury.

A Florida grand jury indicted him Monday, after it received an autopsy report on the disinterred body of the first Mrs. Coppolino which indicated, according to state Attorney Frank Schaub, the presence of a drug.

Schaub said the prosecution "theorized" that Mrs. Coppolino had been killed by a drug which was once thought to be undetectable after death and said the seven-month investigation was "medical pioneering." The drug was not named.

Farber, who died in July 1963, was killed by a double fracture of a cartilage of the neck, according to Monmouth County prosecutor Vincent Keuper. But Farber's death certificate, signed by Dr. Coppolino, gave the cause of his death as a heart attack.

The Coppolinos lived next door to Farber and his wife, Marjorie, in Middletown, N.J.

Shortly after Farber's death, the Coppolinos retired to Longboat Key in Sarasota and not long after that Mrs. Farber and her three children moved next door again.

One month after his first wife's death, Coppolino married a divorcee, Mrs. Mary Gibson.

Mrs. Coppolino's death was listed as due to a "coronary occlusion." But officials reported receiving a tip about eight months ago which resulted in her body and Col. Farber's being exhumed and checked for the cause of death.

CONTROLS TIGHTENED

SAIGON (Reuters) — South Viet Nam's merchants face arrest if they are spotted overcharging their customers.

Under a new government drive to control the city's soaring cost of living a special force of "economic detectives" will visit stores in a clampdown on profiteering.

87-Year-Old Loses Licence After Testing

Motor Vehicle branch has cancelled the driving licence of an 87-year-old Victoria woman who recently was unable to park her car for police.

But the episode ended with an ironic twist, MBV superintendent Ray Hadfield revealed Tuesday.

"Strange thing about that," he said.

"When we tested her the other day, the only thing she still could do well was park."

Walkout in India

NEW DELHI, India (UPI)—Turbulent scenes staged by opposition members with Communists in the forefront interrupted debate in parliament for the second straight day Tuesday. The angry opposition finally walked out almost en masse.

It'll last longer than the payment book

It takes about three years to go through a payment book.

It takes about eleven years to go through a Volvo.

That eleven years, incidentally, is based on the average life of a Volvo in Sweden, where there are no speed limits on the highways, where there are over 70,000 miles of unpaved roads, where driving is virtually a national pastime.

You may not want to keep your Volvo eleven years, but if you do, nobody will be the wiser. We don't follow the wasteful practice of making new models look different just to make old models look obsolete.

But no matter how long you keep your Volvo, you won't tire of it. A Volvo will run away from every other compact in its class, yet deliver over 30 miles to the gallon, even with automatic transmission.

Drive a Volvo Canadian at David Motors Ltd., And don't look at it merely as a superb automobile.

Look at it more as a way to get out from under car payments into swimming pool, boat, or cottage payments. After all, there's more to life than owning the newest car on the block. Even for us.

VIET MILITARY AID DENIED BY BRITAIN

LONDON (AP) — Government officials Tuesday night rejected Peking charges that Britain is helping the American war effort in Viet Nam with a military airlift and with base facilities in Hong Kong.

Defence ministry authorities said some medium-range RAF planes are using Saigon, South Viet Nam, as a staging point for flights between Singapore and Hong Kong, but they carry no military supplies for American forces in Viet Nam.

The Chinese charges, published in the Peking People's Daily, Monday, formed part of a personal attack on Prime Minister Wilson for his stand on Viet Nam and particularly for his supoprt of United States President Johnson's objectives. An article claimed:

1. British officers are active in Saigon.
2. RAF planes are carrying military supplies to American troops in Viet Nam.
3. The colony of Hong Kong, off the Chinese mainland, has been opened as a base for the Americans.

EASIER ACCESS

ECM Decision To Help Canada

BRUSSELS, Belgium (Reuters) — The European Common Market's council of ministers early today cleared the way for worldwide bargaining in the Kennedy round of tariff cuts by agreeing on a joint farm policy for the negotiations.

The policy covers a wide variety of products—from butter and beef to fish and fruit, wine and whisky.

Delegates said French objections resulted in scaling down the original proposal by no more than seven per cent.

"We can only hope that our partners in the Kennedy round will make equivalent offers," a French spokesman said.

As a result of the agreement, an estimated $1,400,000,000 worth of agricultural goods from Canada, the United States and other countries stand to gain easier access to the six Common Market nations—Belgium, The Netherlands, Luxembourg, France, Italy and West Germany.

It also means that, as of July, 1968, industrial products and most agricultural products will be able to move freely among the six nations.

The U.S. goal in the Kennedy round, named for the late president John F. Kennedy, is a 50-per-cent tariff cut across the board to effect a broad liberalization of world trade.

Sources said the six-nation tariff grouping would propose worldwide agreements on beef and dairy product exports and imports and either tariff cuts or retention of existing support levels for other agricultural products.

The decision will enable the Kennedy-round negotiations at Geneva, stalled for many months by dissension among community members, to proceed.

Almost equally important, it allowed West Germany and The Netherlands to lift their reservations on the internal farm policy package deal agreed Sunday, earlier agreements on farm financing and the completion of the community's customs union.

The six's customs union for industrial and farm products now will be completed by July 1, 1968, and its farm fund—expected to spend more than $1,500,000,000 a year on subsidies—will come into full operation.

CREATES NEW POST

Russia Stepping Up War on Hooligans

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government is stepping up its war against hooligans, the beatniks and ruffians blamed for juvenile delinquency, petty crime and other forms of anti-social behavior.

In response to a rising public clamor, the government announced Tuesday the creation of a ministry for the protection of public order—to root out petty crime and disorderly conduct and promote "socialist morality."

No statistics have been published to indicate the extent of hooliganism, but the press has carried many complaints from citizens about minor violence and harassment on the streets and in apartment buildings.

Drunkenness no longer will be regarded as an extenuating circumstance for someone accused of a crime, but will "aggravate the responsibility of the offender."

Parents will be held responsible for minors caught drunk.

Police are given special powers to deal with hooligans, including summary fines with no recourse to the courts. Tougher punishments also will be imposed.

To encourage the public to join the war on hooligans, a special honor badge and bonuses will be awarded to volunteers who show unusual zeal in the crackdown. Special protection will be given citizens who act on their own against hooliganism and they will have immunity from prosecution even if their "actions involuntarily do harm to the criminal."

Civil Service Cut

JERUSALEM (AP) — A retrenchment committee headed by Premier Levi Eshkol has decided to abolish 2,000 civil service jobs within two years. The economy move began last week with abolition of overtime pay and reduction in official foreign travel.

Grain for China

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—The biggest cargo ever loaded here, 989,000 bushels of grain bound for China, is being poured into the hold of the Norwegian freighter Nidareid this week. Canadian Stevedoring Co. Ltd. is in charge of the operation which began Saturday and ends Thursday.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, JULY 27, 1966—PAGE 23

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Milburn, 7961 East Saanich Road, announce the forthcoming marriage of their only daughter, Doris Marie, to Mr. Brian Robert McKay, youngest son of Mrs. Caroline McKay, 1016 Fairfield Road, and the late Mr. W. J. K. McKay. The wedding will take place on Friday, August 19, at 8 p.m., in St. Stephen's Anglican Church, Saanichton, with Rev. O. L. Foster officiating. (Photos by Gibson's Studio.)

Former Victorian Wed on Mainland

Many Victorians travelled to the mainland earlier this month to attend the wedding of Miss Sherry Barbara Harris and William Ralph Gower, now of Edmonton and former Victorian. They included the groom's parents and younger brothers, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Gower, Ken and Bruce, 310 Oswego Street; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thornton, Mr. and Mrs. George Gower, Robert Smirl, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gower, Mr. and Mrs. George Wellburn, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Gower, Mrs. C. Bearse, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Freethy, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Stevenson and Miss Pat Wellburn.

Other out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Gower of Prince George, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Burgess of Ladner, Mr. and Mrs. H. Harris with Jimmy and Jeannie of Vacaville, Calif.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Daphne Harris, Vancouver, and Herbert Harris, Vacaville. Mr. Harris gave his daughter in marriage.

Canon W. Robinson officiated at the ceremony in St. Helen's Anglican Church, West Point Grey, Vancouver. The church organist played traditional music and a tenor sang "Ave Maria" during the signing of the register.

Roses and egret daisies in pink and white tones were at the altar and pews were marked with colonial nosegays.

The fair-haired bride was lovely in a white silk organza gown that had a bodice of Chantilly lace, styled with a scoop neckline and sleeves ending in lily points. The bouffant skirt and full-length train were edged in the same lace. The four-tier illusion net veil misted from a headpiece of orange blossoms and roses. Her cascade bouquet contained pink roses and white carnations.

White lace was bonded on aqua satin to form the bodices of the gowns worn by maid of honor, Miss Carla Torgrimson, and bridesmaid, Miss Joanne Holden. The same material was used for the frock of the flower girl, Jeanne Harris, sister of the bride. The senior attendants' slim-line skirts were of aqua satin. Their headdresses were shoulder veils and flowers in the same shade while the flower girl wore a toning bow. All carried colonial bouquets of pink carnations, trimmed with pink streamers.

The rings for the double-ring ceremony were carried on a heart-shaped pillow by Jimmie Harris, the bride's brother.

Ronald Gower was best man for his brother. Ushering guests were Robert Smirl and Robert Thornton.

A. Cowley, an old friend of the bride's family, proposed the toast to her happiness at the reception which followed in the banquet room of the Queen Elizabeth Theatre.

Leaving on a honeymooning trip to Jasper, Banff and Calgary, the bride donned a pale blue wool suit with toning fox fur collar, white hat and accessories and pink rosebud corsage.

The newlyweds will make their home in Edmonton.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Hubby Only Trying To Be Neighborly

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: How come husbands can be so nice and polite to other women, but can never see when their own wives need help? Yesterday when my husband and I were getting into our car to go shopping, my next door neighbor was just getting out of her car. She had quite a few packages so my husband rushed over there to help her carry everything into her house.

When we got home from shopping, I had lots of bundles and packages, but my husband just got out of the car and went into the house, and I was left to carry everything inside myself. If all men are like my husband I would advise girls never to marry the one she loves. Just move next door to him.

TIRED

DEAR TIRED: All men are not like your husband. How much help do YOU get from the man next door?

DEAR ABBY: I am just about ready to lose my mind. I have talked to our minister, my family doctor (he gave me some pills for my nerves), all my relatives and some of the neighbors, and everyone tells me there is nothing I can do. You are my last hope. I have a beautiful daughter. She is 52 and has never been married. She had her chances, but she was particular. She worked steady for 33 years, saved her money, and never ran around.

Well, she finally met a man she thinks is worth marrying. He is 55 (he says) and has never been married (he claims), he travels for some kind of electronics company and all I know about him is he drives a nice car and he has my daughter in a trance. Here is the blow. My daughter says she doesn't want a wedding, so if she doesn't come home one night I shouldn't worry, because she'll have gone to Las Vegas to get married. How can I talk some sense into that child's head?

HEAVY-HEARTED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I'll have to vote with the minister, your family doctor, the relatives, and the neighbors. Your "child" is a big girl now and well able to make her own decisions. Don't take it personally. She's entitled to have the kind of wedding she wants.

DEAR ABBY: I heard you say on your radio program the other day that you never had to give up cigarettes because you never took up smoking. How I envy you!

I was a three-pack-a-day man until 16 years ago when I had to quit smoking on the advice of my physician. And do you know that I still miss it? Keep on telling kids not to start, Abby.

Of Personal Interest

WED 60 YEARS

A well-known Esquimalt couple will mark their diamond wedding anniversary on Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. David Balnave, 890 Lampson Street, were married in Paisley, Scotland, and have lived in Esquimalt for the past 54 years. Both are life members of the St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society and founding members of the Victoria Amateur Swimming Club during the days it met at the Gorge. Mr. Balnave was an outstanding water polo player. To celebrate the anniversary, the couple's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George (Anna) Gunniss, will entertain at a dinner party in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel on Thursday evening.

Former Victorians

Mr. and Mrs. David C. Barker are visiting from Ottawa and are presently the house guests of Mrs. Frances Barker in her home on Ansell Road. Former residents of the city, the couple are returning to Victoria for the first time in 15 years. Mr. Barker is a retired officer of the Royal Canadian Air Force and is now with the radiography department of the federal government.

Announcement

Capt. D. R. Warren and Mrs. Warren, 141 Homer Road, announce the forthcoming marriage of their elder daughter, Sharron Irene, to Mr. Joseph William Gillings, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Gillings, 395 St. Charles Street. The wedding will take place on Saturday, Sept. 10 at 2 p.m. in St. Mark's Anglican Church. Canon Robert Willis will officiate.

Set Date

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Fielder, 1009 Tolmie Avenue, announce the forthcoming marriage of their younger daughter, Linda Arlene, to Mr. Raymond Aime McNicoll, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerard McNicoll of Foleyet, Ont. The wedding will take place on Saturday, September 3, at 7:30 p.m. in St. Peter's Church. Rev. E. W. S. Gilbert will officiate.

Baptism Service

Anders Jan Hindrek were the names received by the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Tullio Pigert, 1201 Palmer Road, when he was baptized recently in Hope Lutheran Church. Rev. Lester M. Carlson officiated at the service. Godparents of the baby are Mrs. Inga Valg and Mr. Viktor Remmelg of Vancouver, and Mr. John A. Whittaker, Victoria. Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. I. Jonsson of Sweden and paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Pigert of Estonia. A luncheon followed in the home of the baby's parents.

Mainland Vows

Mr. and Mrs. Hamid Ferris of White Rock announce the recent marriage of their daughter, Violet, to Mr. Grant Cassidy Hughes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hughes, 3800 Miramontes Drive. The wedding took place on July 16 in St. Andrew's-Wesley United Church, Vancouver. Following a reception in the Ramada Inn, Vancouver, the newlyweds left for a honeymoon trip touring the Oregon coast. They are now making their home at the Charter House, 435 Michigan Street.

Kitchen Shower

Balloons decorated the patio when Mrs. Charles Ellington gave a shower in her Georgia Park Terrace home in honor of bride-elect Miss Jeanne Inrig. Each balloon marked the location of a gift, the first balloon leading to a treasure chest of gifts which was later carried from the garden to the living room by Debbie Inrig and Robbie Ellington, who will be the youngest members of the bridal party. The decor was pink and white and was carried out in corsages presented to the honor guest, her mother, Mrs. G. Inrig; the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. J. Bryden, and grandmothers of the principals, Mrs. Joseph Smith and Mrs. A. Taylor. The two grandmothers presided at the refreshment table. Also attending were Mrs. B. Hill, Mrs. I. Hill, Mrs. J. A. Smith, Mrs. J. Gilmour, Mrs. K. Pelling, Mrs. W. C. Bremner, Mrs. W. Carter, Mrs. N. Smith, Mrs. E. Hinde, Mrs. Les Gosling, Mrs. C. Padgett, Mrs. J. Fowler, Mrs. S. Chisholm, Mrs. D. McKerracher Jr., Mrs. G. Smith, Mrs. D. McKerracher Sr., the Misses Joan Gilmour and Sandra Inrig, Master Stephen Ellington.

Seventy players from Canada, the United States and Mexico are in Victoria this week to compete in three tennis tournaments being held at the Racquet Club of Victoria. Among those here to play in the British Columbia Lawn Tennis Championships, Pacific North Area Championships for Junior Veterans and PNA Championships for Veterans are, left to right, Mrs. Penny Sparling, Toronto; Eduardo Martinez-Lanz, Mexico City; Miss Stephanie Green, Vancouver; Miss Doris Popple, Lake Oswego, Ore.; Steve Wilkinson, Bellingham, first-seeded player, and Bob Puddicombe, Vancouver, member of the Canadian Davis Cup team. (Bill Halkett photos.)

Social events help round out the week's competition on the courts. Tonight, the local club's women's committee will serve a spaghetti dinner and Friday will see players and club members enjoying a salmon barbecue on the club's grounds, with Jack Glover assuming the role of chef. Saturday evening, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor will present prizes at 9:30 p.m. The presentation will be followed by an evening of dancing in the lounge, with Dave Pepper's combo supplying the music. Among those present will be, left to right, Mrs. Sally Wood and Mrs. Janet Kenny, both of Victoria; Mrs. Hedy Jackson, Portland, Ore.; Miss Faye Urban, Windsor, Ont., first-seeded player and Canadian women's champion, and Miss Margot Miller, Vancouver.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Important to Exercise Big Muscles of Leg and Trunk

We use all of our muscles to a certain extent, but some are used much less than others and much less strenuously. Muscles deteriorate with lack of use as any of you know if you have ever been confined to bed by illness for even a week. Some of the large muscles deteriorate even faster than small ones. It is important to exercise the big muscles of the legs and the trunk.

Lowman

Try these. Sit on the edge of a bed or a chair high enough so that your feet don't touch the floor. Straighten your left leg out in front of you until knee is still. Now let the knee bend and the leg return to position. Do the same thing with your right leg. Continue, alternating. Now do the same thing with one leg going up as the other moves down. This is for the big muscle of the thigh.

This one works on the muscles of the torso. Stand tall with your feet comfortably separated and your hands on your hips. Rotate the trunk, making a large circle so that you feel the pull all the way around. Circle first in one direction and then the other.

Another: Lie on the floor on your back with your arms extending out from your shoulders and resting on the floor, palms toward the floor. Keep your knees straight as you swing both legs as far to the right as you can. Now swing back and as far to the left as you can. Continue with a smooth swing. Let your hips roll.

If you would like to lose a few pounds by holding your carbohydrate intake to 60 grams a day instead of counting calories you may want my "Carbohydrate Gram Counter." If so, send 15 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Mail Order Tests Will Help Doctors

WINNIPEG (CP) — Two Winnipeg geneticists have developed a technique for "mail order" chromosome analysis used in checking patients who may have congenital abnormalities or be mentally retarded. The technique developed by Drs. Irene Uchida and Manoranjan Ray allows doctors in small communities across Canada to obtain expert advice by mailing in plasma samples in special containers.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Mellow Meat Loaf

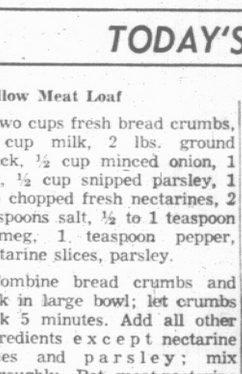

Two cups fresh bread crumbs, ½ cup milk, 2 lbs. ground chuck, ½ cup minced onion, 1 egg, ½ cup snipped parsley, 1 cup chopped fresh nectarines, 2 teaspoons salt, ½ to 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon pepper, nectarine slices, parsley.

Combine bread crumbs and milk in large bowl; let crumbs soak 5 minutes. Add all other ingredients except nectarine slices and parsley; mix thoroughly. Pat meat-nectarine mixture into 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. Cover with foil; bake at 450 degrees 30 minutes. Uncover and bake about 25 minutes longer until done. Unmold on warm serving platter; garnish with nectarine slices and parsley. Cut into thick slices and serve at once.

Spadea Designer Pattern

by Tiffeau & Busch

NA-2115

Tiffeau-Busch is a magic name in the design field—and well deserved—for here is a typical example of their chic, timely clothes. This two-piece dress has a stand-away turtle neck collar that is cut on the bias to hold its lovely shape. The simple easy shaped bodice dips gently in back which is most flattering to all figures. The back is cut on the bias featuring diagonal bound buttonholes. The skirt has concealed pockets in the side front seams. A good design for linens, and linen-like fabrics with tweedy textures or checks and plaids. Spadea's exclusive ready-to-wear sizes produce a better fit. See chart for size best for you.

Sizes	Bust	Waist	Hips	*Length
8	33	23	34	16¼
10	34	24	35	16½
12	35	25	36	16¾
14	36½	26½	37½	17
16	38	28	39	17¼

*From nape of neck to waist.

Misses' size 12 requires 3½ yards of 42" fabric for two-piece dress. To order Pattern NA-2115, state size; send $1.25. Pattern Books Nos. 28, 29, 30 and Sewing Tips by world-famous designers are available for 50c per book plus 10c postage per book. Duchess of Windsor Pattern Book is available for $1.00. SHOPPING GUIDE

Tune in on This Shop For Better Listening

By Penny Saver

This summer I decided it was time that I started adding to my record collection. I never can tell when I will be in the mood to listen to soft classical music to relieve the pressures of the day, or to some jazz recordings. What really "put the bug in my ear" was my cousin's fantastic library of records. Through the years, he has collected literally hundreds of recordings. You name the song, he has it. I don't ever hope to have a collection as big as his, but any size of a collection is bigger than what I have now.

One of my cousin's secrets is to keep his records in top condition at all times, with frequent dusting and cleaning. I found a new type of gadget that cleans records automatically. In one operation, this dusts the surface of the record and thoroughly cleans to the bottom of each groove.

The device consists of a roller mechanism for the former, and a brush of flexible animal hair to pick up every speck of dust in the grooves.

A wire spring attaches this cleaning device to any type of tone arm without extra needle pressure. This way, you can play the recording while it is being cleaned. Your records, as well as your needle, will have longer life. The cleaning mechanism sells for $1.95. There are complete instructions for mounting and use.

Another method of adding years of life to records is to spray them with an anti-static fluid. Not only does this substance reduce surface noise, it adds tonal brilliance and stops groove wear. For special record care, treat before playing the new recording, then repeat about twice yearly. One can, plus an applicator cloth, sells for $1.50. This is enough fluid to clean hundreds of discs.

A special needle cleaner is priced at 49 cents in this shop. This keeps the needle tip free from dust, and cleans the cartridge as well. For longer lasting needles, you should never touch them with your fingers. Always use a brush.

Keep your records and record player in top condition at all times. If you want to know where Penny shopped for these aids, give her a call at 382-3131.

Short Skirts—Long Coats

PARIS (UPI) — Paris has hit upon how to keep your knees warm in the short skirts this winter: Long coats.

Legs were covered snugly by mid-calf suede and wool coats in the lively collection of Italian designers Simonetta and Fabiani.

The House of Christian Dior reportedly also will show long coats with knee-baring dresses.

The mannequins at Simonetta-Fabiani wore Roger Viviers' new boots that are white leather to the ankle, and then see through plastic to the knee with a strip of white leather running up the back. Instead of hats the girls' heads were covered by huge kerchiefs knotted in back or covering the chin.

CHILD CARE PLAN OFFERED BY OTTAWA

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal government is anxious to participate with British Columbia in a cost-sharing plan for the day care of children and also to have Indians covered by the provincial government medical plan, provincial Liberal leader Rav Perrault said Friday.

Mr. Perrault said B.C. is losing millions of dollars a year through failure to negotiate with the federal government.

He made the charges on his return from a trip to Ottawa, where he met with Prime Minister Pearson.

He said the federal government will pay 50 per cent of a day care plan under the Canada assistance plan.

Party's On Again

The garden tea party and reunion smorgasbord supper of the Old Vic Players which were postponed because of bad weather will be held this Saturday. The affairs will take place at the home of Mrs. T. C. Hamilton, 530 Lotbiniere Avenue, the party being held at 3 p.m. and the supper at 6:30 p.m.

The first event will feature raffles and a variety of stalls, including home cooking, aprons, dolls' clothes and white elephants. Mrs. J. Boyd Hudson and H. E. Brown will present a program of entertainment.

Sex Obsession And The "New Morality"

It seems wherever you go, these days, you find people talking of the "new morality" . . . the "new freedom" . . . the "sexual revolution". Does this foretell the moral collapse of our society? History indicates the answer is "no" but read what a perceptive critic has to say in the August Reader's Digest. Read why we may indeed be headed for a change in morality and why every parent now has a special responsibility. In the August Reader's Digest—now on sale.

New Kraft Parkay Soft Margarine in table-ready cups...

Easy spreading— easy serving

Kraft Parkay Soft Margarine is a light, fresh, delicate-flavored margarine that spreads smoothly even when cold from the refrigerator. You put it on the table in the attractive gold color aluminum cups it comes in. Cups with lids that snap back on to seal out refrigerator odors and keep it fresh between uses.

And the new formula makes Kraft Parkay Soft Margarine lower in saturated fats than ordinary margarines.

And its 100% vegetable oil goodness means fresh, fresh, flavor that your whole family will love. Two half-pound cups in each package.

spread it around!

Saskatchewan Teacher Plan Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fred Rowell, president of the B.C. School Trustees Association, said Monday adoption of a Saskatchewan plan would end B.C.'s teacher shortage and replace it with a massive inflow of teachers.

Mr. Rowell, commenting on the provincial department of education's move to speed up administrative procedures in bringing teachers to this province, said that under the Saskatchewan plan British teachers are extended loans through the federal department of immigration to finance their trips to Canada.

If the teachers remain two years in Saskatchewan, the provincial government repays the loan, Mr. Rowell said.

"I think we would be flooded with applications if we operated on that basis," he said.

Landymore Evidence 'Delayed'

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative defence critic Marcel Lambert said Monday the government is deliberately delaying release of a transcript of evidence given to a closed meeting of the Commons defence committee by Rear-Admiral William Landymore.

The admiral was fired as head of Maritime Command by Defence Minister Hellyer last week for publicly opposing government policy of integrating the armed forces.

Mr. Lambert (PC-Edmonton West) said in an interview portions of the admiral's testimony given June 23 should be edited. "He gave us a tactical briefing of great value."

But Admiral Landymore also had given evidence concerning morale in the forces "which should be available now," said Mr. Lambert.

There was no reason for the delay in circulating the transcript. Mr. Hellyer's office "can get it for editing purposes but the members of the committee can't see it."

'CENSORED'

In an interview published in a Toronto newspaper, Admiral Landymore said his brief to the committee was censored and rewritten.

Defence Minister Hellyer, in Paris for a NATO meeting said personnel information was strictly the responsibility of headquarters.

"The personnel information included in his (Landymore's) briefing was not within his responsibility as commander of Maritime Command, the minister said.

Mr. Lambert said the minister was "talking through his hat when he said morale wasn't within the responsibility of the admiral."

The Conservative MP also said the admiral had said nothing in his public statements that he hadn't said before the Commons committee. "So his remarks can hardly have surprised Mr. Hellyer because he was at the admiral's elbow when he gave his evidence to the committee."

Last Chance For Illegal Immigrants

OTTAWA (CP) — Aliens who entered Canada irregularly by posing as visitors have been given another three weeks to apply with the immigration department for resident status.

The deadline, originally set for Monday night, was extended to Aug. 15 by Immigration Minister Marchand in the hope that more immigrants will come forward.

From July 8, when Mr. Marchand announced the special policy in the Commons, until July 19, a total of 1,935 applications were received — far fewer than had been expected.

Immigration officials estimate the remaining back-door immigrants at anywhere between 10,000 and 20,000.

Irregular immigrants who do not meet certain conditions face deportation. The conditions are as follows:

- They are not within prohibited classes listed in the Immigration Act, such as criminals, security risks and persons of immoral conduct.
- They did not enter Canada by any fraudulent means other than posting as temporary visitors.
- They fall in one of the following categories: They would be acceptable under immigration regulations if they were applying normally abroad; they have married a Canadian on or before July 8; they have established a successful business or have been employed steadily for eight months, or they have 10 years' schooling.

The number of deportations resulting from this special policy is expected to be small.

NEWBORN BABY EVACUATED WITH 2,500

SEOUL (UPI)—Over 2,500 South Koreans, including a newborn baby girl were evacuated from flood devastated areas near Seoul Tuesday as torrential rains continued for the twelfth straight day.

An American army medic, Gareth Wurges of San Maria, Calif., taking part in the rescue operation, helped deliver the baby just five minutes before she was evacuated. Over 50 people have died in the floods.

NEW DELHI (UPI)—Rampaging rivers Tuesday washed away 11 persons in the Doon Valley at the foot of the Himalaya Mountains 150 miles north of here. The government-owned all-India radio station said both the Ganges and the Jumna Rivers were overflowing and evacuation plans were readied.

China War Proposal Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States dissociates itself from a call by South Viet Nam's premier for a military confrontation now with China.

A state department spokesman declared Tuesday: "Our position of not seeking any wider war has been repeatedly made clear and remains our position."

Premier Nguyen Cao Ky had proposed in an interview that "it is better to face them (the Red Chinese) right now than in five or 10 years." He also suggested an invasion of North Viet Nam to smash the source of aggression against South Viet Nam.

Ky's remarks brought a storm of objection in the U.S. Senate. Majority Leader Mike Mansfield called on the Johnson administration to dissociate itself from the Ky declarations.

The administration decided, it was learned, to deal as softly as possible with what was clearly a sharp division between the policy line projected by the South Vietnamese leader and the policies being followed by President Johnson.

Press officer Robert J. McCloskey told a press conference in response to questions that he did not want to comment directly on Ky's statement, but then added: "I would say our position of not seeking any wider war has been repeatedly made clear and remains our position. We do not threaten any regime."

The denial of a threat to any regime appeared to be a repudiation of Ky's call for invasion of North Viet Nam. Johnson and other administration officials have said repeatedly the U.S. does not aim at the destruction of North Viet Nam.

U.K. Frees Ex-Minister Of Ghana

LONDON (AP) — Kwesi Armah, former Ghanaian trade minister in the Nkrumah regime, Tuesday won his fight against being sent back to Accra to face charges of bribery.

The House of Lords ordered the 37-year-old Armah, who sought refuge in Britain after President Nkrumah was overthrown last February, freed. He has been held in jail since May 18.

The new revolutionary government in Ghana had asked Britain to hand over Armah for trial on charges of bribery and corruption.

He was accused of attempting to obtain a £40,000 ($120,000) bribe from a Lebanese businessman in an import deal and of receiving £20,000 for granting trade licences.

Armah carried his fight against extradition to the House of Lords—Britain's court of last resort—after failing to gain his freedom in lower courts.

BY POPE PAUL

Pill Use Permission Possible

MILAN, Italy (Reuters)—The Milan newspaper Corriere Della Sera quotes a Roman Catholic theologian as believing Pope Paul may authorize the use of birth-control pills by a woman for 18 months or two years after the birth of a child.

An article says the theologian, whom it did not name, thinks Pope Paul in his current study of the problem might make two concessions to the progressives who want the total ban on contraception relaxed.

First, the pontiff might accept a pill which regulates exactly the female menstrual cycle, the article says. But such a pill does not exist and the concession would thus be merely theoretical.

Secondly, "there appears the more interesting possibility that the use of the contraceptive pill—but only of those that suspend ovulation—might be authorized for a period of 18 months, perhaps for two years, after each birth, in such a way as to enable Christian couples to space out birth of children," the article says.

A NEW PHASE OF RESEARCH INFORMATION

'Timber Talks' Time Saver for Foresters

One of the less-well-known side-effects of the computer age is that the scientists who helped make it are finding they have too much to do.

To combat this officials at the Forestry Research Laboratory here, in a venture into public relations that is not public relations, are working on a time-saver for the province's busy foresters.

Out of the hundreds of sometimes highly specialized reports and studies on forestry Vern Phelps, head of the fire research and land classification section at the laboratory makes page-long abstracts of that information that is of special interest.

Under the heading "Timber Talks" they are sent to 600 graduate foresters.

While they might, for the public, be esoteric—a sampling of titles so far released are Fat in the Douglas Fir Beetle and Water Stress in Plants—they are written in a style a little less formal than the original research reports from which they are taken.

"There is a great deal of research done that never gets to the practicing forester," said Laboratory Information officer Bill Edwards.

"The work may not be in a man's field or it might not be readily available."

"And when everyone is communicating with everyone else that makes a lot of communication.

It is the first such information program in Canada.

Mr. Edwards explained that Mr. Phelps hopes to release Timber Talks which aims, as well, to be reference material for foresters, whenever reports containing vital and new material are published.

Crash Kills 7

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP)—A U.S. marine transport plane crashed on takeoff from Da Nang air base Monday, killing seven of the 30 military men aboard. The other 23 were taken to hospitals, where one was said to be in a serious condition.

Spaceship Liability

PRESENT SYSTEM BREAKING DOWN

New Tack in Drug Fight

A new approach to combat drug trafficking, particularly in the barbiturate and hallucinogenic types, may be coming soon, a top government official suggested here Monday.

He was R. E. Curran, QC, a lawyer for the federal health and welfare department, one of several federal, provincial and police officials who met in camera at the Legislative Buildings with the Narcotics Addiction Foundation of B.C.

Mr. Curran, in an interview, said the present method of controlling drugs is to put them on a list under the narcotics law or Food and Drug Act but the system is beginning to break down.

"While it is a relatively simple matter to procure an order-in-council placing a drug on the controlled list, the proliferation of new drugs may make a different approach to the problem necessary," he said.

Instead of the cumbersome listing of a growing number of controlled drugs, Parliament may have to consider legislation which simply deals with the undesirable effects and prohibits sale of any drugs for certain purposes.

Mr. Curran said the boom in barbituates and hallucinogenic drugs such as LSD is a matter of great concern.

"This is something that must be approached with extreme care," he sad.

"Drugs of this type may prove to be highly important research tools and ways must be found to curb illicit traffic without impeding this research."

CANADA'S FIRST

Pollution Conference In October

A total of 27 organizations and individuals from B.C. will be asked to attend as delegates at Canada's first comprehensive conference on pollution problems.

The invitations will be mailed out soon from Montreal where the Canadian Council of Resource Ministers will hold the conference Oct. 31-Nov. 4.

In addition eight ministers and deputy ministers will be invited as observers, while Resources Minister Ray Williston will be present as a member of the council itself.

Groundwork for the conference, which will bring experts together to work out guidelines for a national attack on air, water and land pollution, was laid in Victoria last year when Mr. Williston was chairman of the council.

The invitations will go to: B.C. Federation of Agriculture, Council of Forest Industries, Mining Association of B.C., Canadian Manufacturing Association's B.C. division, B.C. Fisheries Association, B.C. Tourist Advisory Council, Greater Vancouver Sewer and Drainage District, B.C. Federation of Labor, B.C. Chamber of Commerce, Associated Boards of Health of B.C., B.C. Wildlife Federation, University of B.C. and B.C. Research Council.

In addition, two municipal councils nominated by the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, nine provincial government departments and three authors of scientific papers will be invited.

Merchants Will Fight Development

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council voted 6-5 Tuesday to accept a proposal by Cemp Investments Ltd. of Montreal for a $75,000,000 two-block downtown redevelopment.

The city agreed to lease block 42 to Cemp for 30 years, with Cemp having an option to buy after 12 years.

While city planners said a start on the project, to include a $20,000,000 Eaton's department store and high-rise office buildings, could be made within a year, a stumbling block appeared.

Store owners in block 42, which the city must buy — or expropriate at certain prices— and lease to Cemp, said they would fight the city council decision. The merchants said they would not receive adequate compensation for loss of business.

THIS COUPON IS WORTH A FREE BOX OF LUCKY WHIP
regular 2 oz. size or 30¢ off 4 oz. size

NAME _____

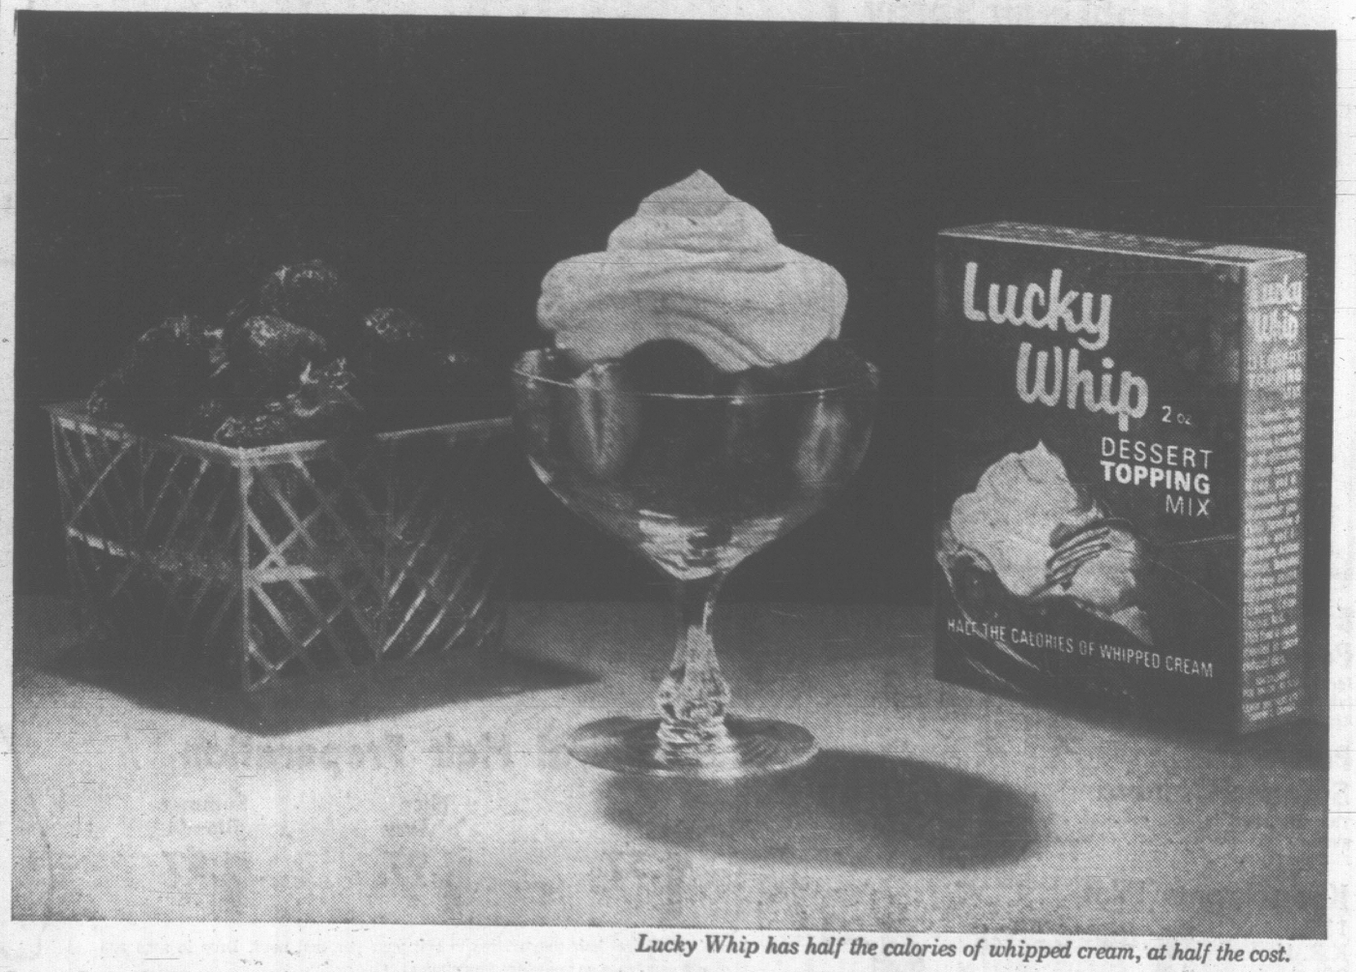

ADDRESS _____

CITY _____ PROVINCE _____

Send us both the box top and the bottom from a box of Lucky Whip, either the 2 oz. size or 4 oz. size. We'll refund your money for the 2 oz. size, or send you 30¢ (more than ½ price) towards the purchase of a 4 oz. size. Fill in your name and address clearly and mail coupon and enclosures to:
LUCKY WHIP Refund Offer, Box 2173, Toronto, Ontario

Lever Brothers Limited, Toronto, Ontario
162-B

Lucky Whip has half the calories of whipped cream, at half the cost.

Lucky Whip and fresh berries make the nicest summer dessert we know of, so we want you to try it. And we'll buy the Lucky Whip.

Here's what you do. Send us the coupon and the top and bottom from a box of Lucky Whip. We'll refund your full price on the 2 oz. box of Lucky Whip or 30¢ on the 4 oz. size. Please be sure to write your name and address clearly on the coupon.

You'll be delighted how Lucky Whip's rich, creamy texture and flavour turn those berries into a great dessert. And with a minimum of fuss. You just mix Lucky Whip with milk and add a dash of vanilla. It beats up in about two minutes with a hand or electric beater.

If you like, make dessert ahead of time and keep it in the refrigerator. Lucky Whip won't wilt or separate. (If you don't use all the Lucky Whip you've made, store it in the fridge. It stays fresh and perky for two or three days.)

Lucky Whip tastes just as luscious as whipped cream and it looks like whipped cream. But it doesn't act like whipped cream. Lucky Whip stays fresh in its package on the pantry shelf even in the hottest summer weather. You can always keep Lucky Whip on hand.

If you count calories or pennies you'll be interested in this: Lucky Whip is half the cost and has half the calories of whipped cream—only 13 calories a tablespoon. Truly!

Lucky Whip sounds tempting, don't you think? Wait till you taste it.

32 FLIGHTS SCHEDULED

QORs Fly Home This Week

A three-day round-the-clock airlift will return 400 men of the 1st battalion Queen's Own Rifles, to Work Point Barracks this week.

Starting Thursday, huge Hercules transports will lift the men and 325 tons of equipment from Wainwright, Alta., where they have been training for the past six weeks, to Victoria airport.

In all, 32 flights will be made, including 10 trips Thursday, 18 Friday, and four Saturday.

Relatives are advised to meet the men at Work Point Barracks rather than at the airport.

TICKET OPENS DOORS

Foreign visitors can buy a $3 season ticket to British stately homes instead of paying 60 cents at the door of each.

CITY'S HISTORIC SITES ON SATURDAY TOUR

Victoria's historic sites will be visited Saturday on a bus tour under University of Victoria auspices.

The tour will start from the Student Union Building at 2:30 p.m. and will end with tea at the Art Gallery, a former Spencer home which served as Government House at the turn of the century.

Tour conductor will be historian James K. Nesbitt.

The bus tour is primarily for Uvic summer session students, but the public may make reservations at the university.

FOUR-PARTY SEMINAR PLANNED

Young Politicians Mixing It Up

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Youth Council, made up of representatives of the youth wings of four political parties in Parliament, is planning a national seminar on political education before next spring.

The council said Tuesday the seminar will study the ways in which politics now is taught in the secondary schools and discuss means for improvement.

The purpose would be to "stimulate Canadian youth into greater understanding of and interest in the political process."

The 12-member council is composed of three young representatives each of the Liberal, Progressive Conservative, New Democratic and Social Credit parties.

It was organized last summer to "tackle mutual needs related to the health and survival of the Canadian political system."

Local Dancers Score At Portland Games

Victoria dancers captured several prizes at the 1966 Portland Highland Games held at the weekend in Portland, Ore.

Top honor went to Cheryl Jackson, 11, who won the under-13 Flora McDonald Trophy, awarded for the best performance of Flora McDonald's Fancy. Cheryl also received three first and a fourth to win the under-13 grand aggregate in the competition. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K. Jackson, 632 Head.

Gail Bamford, 13, won four first places and a second to earn the under-16 grand aggregate. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Bamford, 1080 Transit, she also placed second in the over-13 division with her Flora McDonald's Fancy.

The grand aggregate in the under-nine division was won by eight-year-old David Watling, who received three firsts, a second and a third place. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Watling, 612 Kelly.

THIRD YEAR

Angus Mackenzie, 20, won the Daughters of Scotia grand aggregate for the third consecutive year, with one first place and three seconds.

Other dancers who placed in the highland games were Cheryl Rafter, Margaret Watling, Gerri-Mae Watling, Carol Avison and Cathy Gower.

All are students of the Adeline Duncan Dance Studio.

SCOTTISH IN SQUARE

The city centre will be out in its bonniest tartans Friday at 8 p.m. when pipers and Highland dancers take over Centennial Square.

The Canadian Scottish Regiment pipe and drum band supported by Victoria Highland Games Association dancers will present the program.

The 29th annual Highland Games will be held Saturday at Macdonald Park.

Thousands To See Patrol Band

A unique band and chorus — tops in their age group in Canada — will perform in Victoria Aug. 9 to 13.

Calgary School Patrol Band and the Safety Roundup Singers will take part in Centennial celebrations and infuse enthusiasm into Greater Victoria school patrols.

The visit is sponsored by the Downtown Kiwanis Club, which promotes and supports school patrols, and the Saanich police department.

The Calgary youngsters are all members of school patrols and were organized into a band and chorus "to make school patrols feel important."

They have appeared at the Calgary Stampede, Kelowna Regatta, Grey Cup games and have entertained Governor-General Vanier at his residence in Ottawa.

Saanich Constable Bill Chisholm, who is in charge of school patrols, said they are the only school patrol band in North America.

They will visit Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes on the afternoon of Aug. 9 and present him with the customary Calgary gift — a white Stetson.

BUTCHART SHOW

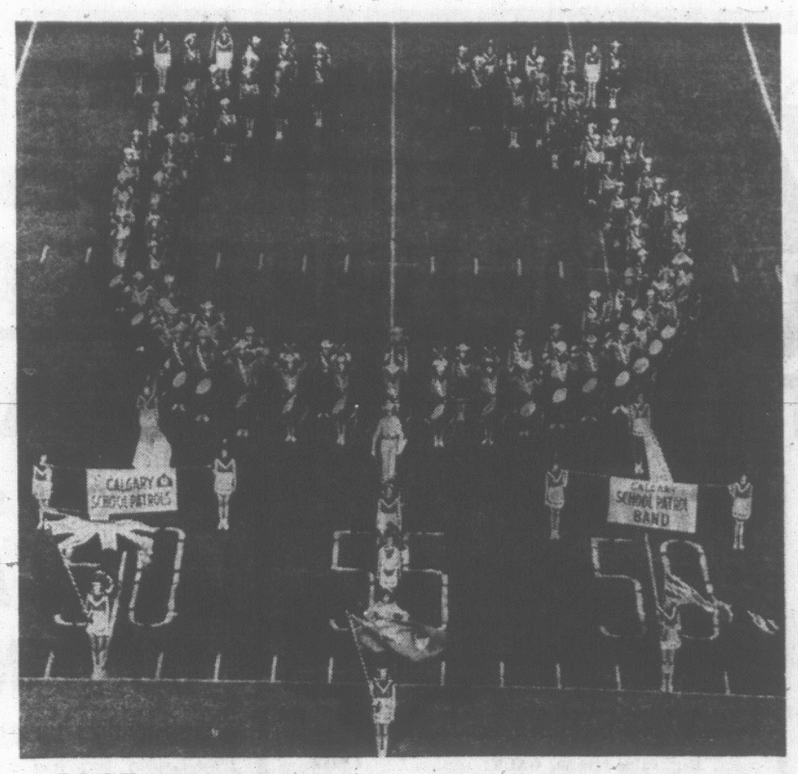

That evening the band and singers will appear at Butchart Gardens stage show. At noon next day they will parade from Centennial Square to the Empress Hotel and give a concert on the hotel lawn.

At 6:30 p.m. Aug. 11 they will appear at Mayfair Shopping Centre and at 8 p.m. return to Centennial Square for a concert.

They will appear again in Mayfair Shopping Centre at 6:30 Aug. 12 and at 2:30 Aug. 13. During their stay here they will be transported in Royal Canadian Navy buses and be accommodated at Oak Bay Junior High School.

DISTRIBUTE SHORTS

United Artists Corp. has formed a department to distribute 16 mm. documentary and non-feature movies.

CALGARY SCHOOL PATROL Band and Safety Roundup Singers line up in horseshoe pattern during a performance. They will make appearances in Victoria August 9 to 13. The youngsters have represented their city at Dominion Day festivities in Ottawa and entertained at Grey Cup games.

8 CARD OF THANKS

I wish to express my deepest gratitude to my friends for their thoughtfulness and sympathy in the sudden passing of my dear husband, Lt.-Cmdr. Reid Horace Arnold. Also to Dr. Fiddess and Dr. Banks and the nurses of St. Joseph's Hospital for their wonderful attention, and the many flowers and cards. — Sarah Arnold, Matt Edith and Saran Campbell.

I wish to express my deepest gratitude to our friends and relatives for their thoughtfulness, sympathy and flowers during my recent bereavement.—Brian F. Lee.

We gratefully acknowledge the beautiful tributes and condolences sent to us from relatives and our many friends in the passing of our dearly beloved wife and mother. Special thanks to Dr. Buffam and Dr. Morrison and the nursing staff of Royal Jubilee Hospital for their kind attention. — Dave, Davina, Margo and Steven Cooper.

We wish to express our deepest gratitude to our relatives and friends for their thoughtfulness, sympathy and flowers during our recent bereavement. Special thanks also to Dr. Kenning and the nurses of St. Joseph's Hospital. —G. Orr and family.

To all our friends in Victoria, a deep and sincere thank you for your expressions of sympathy and flowers, in the loss of our son, Paul.—Walter, Jessie, Edward and Kim Tempest, 230 Campbell Street, Duncan.

9 IN MEMORIAM

HANSEN—In loving memory of my dear father, Julius Albert Hansen, of Victoria, B.C., who passed away July 27, 1962.

He had a smile, a pleasant way
A helping hand to all he knew;
He was so kind, so generous and true.
On earth he nobly did his best.
Grant him Lord, heavenly rest.

—So sadly missed by daughter, Mildred Forsyth, Carnduff, Sask., and family.

SYKES—In loving memory of dear sister Bell, who died July 27, 1965.

—Sadly missed by all her family and sister, Mrs. G. Kintoff.

TWYMAN — In loving memory of Franklin Alan who passed away July 27, 1965.

Our lips cannot tell how we miss him
Our hearts cannot tell what to say;
God alone knows how we miss him.
In a home that is lonesome today.

—Lovingly remembered by his mother, father, brother, grandparents and families.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

The summer television season so far has been brightened with several good hours. Amongst them is NBC-TV's Summer Music Hall with a talented young singer, John Davidson, as the regular host.

Stephen

Color Davidson loot-green because he'll be in it up to his blond locks before not too long.

His is a polished baritone which sells a song, whether it be upbeat or dreamily romantic. He also has an infectious manner of putting his pleasant personality across, especially to the studio audience and in turn to the viewer.

By the by, have you noticed how many of the variety-musical summer replacements have their main people playing to their studio audience and still managing to parlay this close communication to the homebody? They're all doing it and doing it well, except for CBS-TV's Hippodrome.

A popular segment is Davidson's stroll through the audience singing the songs that the pre-selected few best remember from some of the fonder years of their life. It's a nice gimmick, for who hasn't some memories connected with a favorite piece of music?

Davidson also has with him a group of talented young performers. A couple of them who have turned up on more than one occasion are George Carlin and Richard Pryor, two comedians who bear watching, for they'll go far with the right material.

The summer sub for Andy Williams is as easy to take as a piece of cake (non-caloric in content, of course).

★ ★ ★

TWO BITS: Since Mickie Finn hit the air with its ricky-tick music and saloon effect, more than 400 applications have been received by the producers from people who want a Mickie Finn night club franchise in their home town.

Comic monologist Shelley Berman will develop two half-hour situation comedy series for the 1967-68 season for Desilu. His first freelance TV script, A Bullet in the Hand Is Worth Two in the Knetch, will be an episode of NBC-TV's Laredo series in the fall.

W. GERMAN STEEL DEAL DENOUNCED

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Senate passed a battered foreign aid bill Tuesday after voting for an amendment denouncing a West German deal to build a steel mill in China as a "grave blow" to the safety of American and allied troops in Viet Nam." The measure would authorize a little more than $2 billion economic assistance, well below the $2 billion President Johnson asked.

Liberals Woo Trade Union Local Officers

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberal party today launched a monthly "labor newsletter" which it hopes eventually will reach 10,000 trade union officers across the country.

The first issue of the newsletter, a folded mimeographed sheet, was mailed today to 5,000 union leaders in the 14 major Canadian cities.

John Munro, Liberal MP for Hamilton East, is in charge of the project. He said it is an attempt to establish a basis of close communication between the Liberal party and the union movement at local levels.

"We're hoping to add another 10 cities and 5,000 addresses to our mailing list at an early date," he said. Labor people will be invited to write to him with comments on federal issues and programs.

The first issue contains brief reports on collective bargaining for the civil service, university education, medical insurance, pensions and health resources legislation.

About one-third of the 1,400-word issue is devoted to the Freedman inquiry report which last December dealt with the issue of automation and its effects on the labor force. The newsletter does not say what the government intends to do about it.

There are two illustrations, both of Prime Minister Pearson.

ACCENT ON EDUCATION

World Concern For Car Safety

LONDON (AP)—A few countries are moving to legislate more safety into the motor car, but the accent is on driver-pedestrian education.

The automobile explosion has brought with it an accompanying rise in traffic accidents and growing concern with safety problems.

The U.S. Congress is considering a wide-ranging bill to establish mandatory safety features in new automobiles and the government already has set standards, beginning with 1967 models, for cars it will buy.

There also is a move afoot in Canada to promote auto safety legislation. The federal industry department, with technical help from the National Research Council and other agencies, is preparing a report.

In other nations, an Associated Press survey shows, the automobile boom is a comparatively recent development and the stress has been more on driver and pedestrian education than on legislation.

In Japan, where streets already were crowded with pedestrians and bicyclists, the number of passenger cars quintupled during the five - year period from 1960 to 1965. And in a number of European countries, the number of vehicles almost doubled during the same period.

HAS MOST DEATHS

The United States led the world in the total number of traffic fatalities last year.

The United States had 91,300,000 vehicles registered last year and about 49,000 highway deaths. West Germany, with only about one-tenth of the number of cars, had 15,710 fatalities.

Pressure for safety legislation in Canada resulted mainly from publicity about Ralph Nader's book, Unsafe at Any Speed, the U.S. Senate hearings on auto safety and from Howard Grafftey, Conservative member of Parliament for Brome - Missisquoi.

There are 6,500,000 vehicles registered in Canada and 7,500,000 licensed drivers. There were 4,879 traffic fatalities in 1965 compared with 4,655 in 1964.

The Canadian Highway Safety council has been promoting driver education on a national scale for five years. It sponsors teacher-training courses in both French and English each summer. By the end of this summer it will have trained 1,100 persons.

Canadian casualty insurance companies finance the training courses in co-operation with the provinces, which have jurisdiction in the field.

High schools provide driver instruction as an extra-curricular course for students only. Recently, adult courses have been started in Alberta, Ontario and Quebec by the safety council and provincial governments.

MOTORCYCLISTS DIE

Japan, with 2,200,000 passenger cars in 1965, had a total of 12,475 fatalities. About one-fourth of those were pedestrians and another fourth were motorcyclists.

Britain, with 12,500,000 vehicles registered, had an estimated 8,000 fatalities; Italy, with 10,600,000 cars, had nearly 9,000 traffic deaths.

The British Parliament is studying a bill to make seat belts compulsory on new models.

The Victoria state government in Australia is considering requiring a dual braking system and a recessed dashboard.

In both West Germany and France, legislation has been enacted banning sharp, protruding objects from car bumpers, wheels or other parts in an effort to cut down injuries to pedestrians and cyclists.

Periodic auto inspections for older vehicles are mandatory in Britain and Japan.

Seat belts are not required in most nations. The belts appeared on the Italian market about four years ago but have been generally ignored, a traffic expert there said.

INCLUDE SAFETY ITEMS

One safety development in Britain and Germany is the design of an auto chassis which gradually collapses under impact of a collision. These are on only a few models, however. Other safety improvements include padded steering wheels and crash - absorbing steering columns on some models.

Not all the efforts toward safe driving have been made on the government level.

The Italian Automobile Club organized a campaign in 1964 using hundreds of photographers to take pictures of traffic violations. The offending drivers, traced by licence plates, received letters asking them to mend their ways.

Italy also has made extensive road improvements and requires road safety courses in elementary schools. Despite that, its safety experts say, Italian drivers have much to learn.

Too often, they say, the Italian looks on his car as a test of personality or an instrument of prowess. Newspapers carry stories of outraged drivers battling on the road because one has passed the other.

Efforts are being made in both France and Britain to stiffen the examination for a driver's licence. The French licence now is valid for the lifetime of the holder; a study is being made whether to require a test every three years.

Cars 'Safest Ever' But Drivers at Fault

MONTREAL (CP) — "Our new cars are safer than any cars we have ever driven." Keith H. MacDonald of Montreal, general chairman of the Canadian Highway Safety Council, said today.

Criticizing car manufacturers for not installing more safety features was, "much easier than blaming ourselves . . . for the terrible things we do with our cars."

"We need a whipping boy and we want an instant cure."

"But we are only fooling ourselves if we think that making safety features is going to stop the killing" on Canada's highways, Mr. MacDonald, vice-president of the Industrial Acceptance Corp. Ltd., told a Rotary Club luncheon.

Ralph Nader, the American engineer who wrote the best-seller Unsafe at Any Speed, and Howard Grafftey, Conservative MP for Brome-Missiquoi, who has been prodding Parliament to enact new safety legislation, had "no monopoly on car safety opinion," he said.

"The attitude of the man behind the wheel is not going to be affected by engineering."

MILLION INSURED

In the last 10 years, road accidents claimed 37,110 lives and injured about 1,000,000 men, women and children — many of them crippled for life.

The annual bill for death, injury, damage and claims arising from traffic accidents was running at more than $600,000,000 — more than $30 per capita.

"Our attitude thus far has been sadly out of tune with the severity of the problem. We spend millions of dollars in vestigating an aircraft crash but within minutes of an automobile accident the pieces are swept away with only the names and addresses of the victims being recorded."

Rubber-Burner Cars Promised to Buyers

TORONOT (CP)—R. B. Evans, chairman of American Motors Ltd. said Monday that if young people want to be able to burn rubber off tires with high-performance cars, his company will provide them with what they want.

Introducing prototypes of possible new models for the company, he said at a press conference that American Motors has suffered recently because it has been a follower, not a leader, in the car business.

Mr. Evans, who recently moved into American Motors with large stock purchases, said the company—associated since the late 1950s primarily with economy and compactness—intends to introduce bigger and more powerful engines and to produce cars that people will be proud to get into.

Asked whether this new approach ties in with auto safety—a major debate in North American—Mr. Evans said many features now are designed to protect drivers against themselves.

"If a man would put the safety belt on and a shoulder strap, he wouldn't need all the pads and collapsible steering wheel."

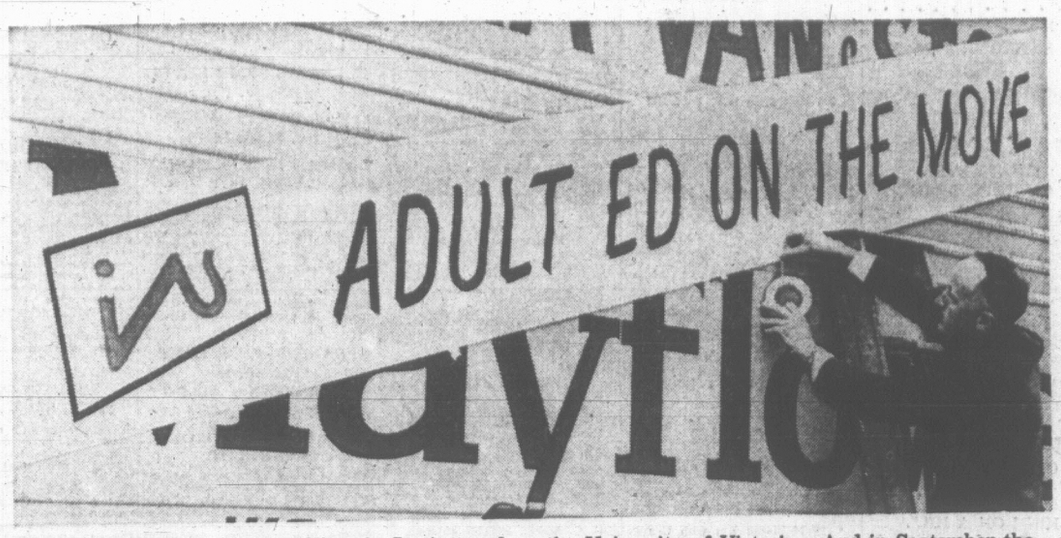

Earl K. Brownridge, president of American Motors (Canada) Ltd., said he does not expect any closing of the price gap between U.S. and Canadian-made cars when the 1967 models are introduced.

PRICES AFFECTED

He said prices of new models have not yet been set, but added that several factors such as labor and material costs have affected production expenses since the introduction of the Canada-U.S. auto agreement early last year.

Deputy Stays On the Job

Second three-month extension to keep working beyond retirement date was given deputy mines and petroleum resources minister P. J. Mulcahy Tuesday. The provincial cabinet's order will allow the 65-year-old civil servant to stay at his desk until Nov. 1 to give more time to pick a replacement.

ON THE MOVE is Greater Victoria Institute of Adult Studies. This week its operations are being transferred from Craigdarroch Castle to the Ewing Building on the old Lansdowne campus of the University of Victoria. And in September the institute will open for the first time to day-time students. Shown above is Alan Batey, principal of the institute.

Drive Starts For Library At Institute

Adult education in Greater Victoria is on the move — literally and metaphorically.

The adult education department Tuesday began moving bag and baggage from Craigdarroch Castle, its old headquarters, to the new Adult Education Institute on the former Lansdowne campus of the University of Victoria.

And in September the institute will open for the first time to day-time students in a wide range of courses not previously offered in this area.

Plans are now being implemented to establish a 10,000-volume library to serve the adult students. Mrs. Albert J. Temple, known for her successful Books for Nigeria campaign, will direct the drive for books.

FIRST GIFT

The first donation to the library came from Government House. It was a copy of Debrett's Peerage, the standard work on British aristocracy.

Mrs. Temple said practically any type of book is in demand by especially text books, general literature and works on commercial and fine art.

Books may be left at Mrs. Temple's home at 1243 Richardson or arrangements for pick-up may be made by telephoning 382-3563 or 382-3330.

Cash donations to buy books should be sent to the institute at Box 700, Victoria.

Father and Son Follow in Steps Of Generations of Shoemakers

LESLEY GILES

Raffaele Gaudio and his son, Gaetano, are unique, in a world of machines, they still make shoes by hand.

The two men, partners in a downtown shoe repair business, are proud to be custom shoemakers in an age when automation has taken over the jobs of many of their fellow shoemakers. And they are proud to be carrying on a 100-year family tradition of custom shoemaking.

"There is still a demand for custom - shoes," they said. "Machine-made shoes aren't made for the individual, while custom shoes are. We, the shoemakers, take measurements to find the size of the arch, the size of the foot, the width, the height, and so on. No two people have identical feet."

Using these measurements, the Gaudios cut the pieces for the "top" of the shoe in kid leather, snakeskin, alligator, calf, kangaroo, suede. The finest leathers, ordered from Brazil, are used.

KID-LINED

Then, the shoe is placed on a last, in the shape of a foot, where the pieces are sewn together.

The sole is sewn on next, and the lining of soft kid.

Finally comes the Gaudio trademark, a soft pad on the insole with three circles, red, white and green, the colors on the Italian flag.

The result is a pair of shoes, designed for the individual, and for his comfort.

"Yes, they are much more expensive," stated Gaetano. "The prices are all above $35, but the quality of a custom shoe is good. A good custom shoe should last at least two years."

The Gaudios have been in Victoria since 1960, when the emigrated from Italy. They feel that the European training for shoe repair is far superior to the Canadian training.

"In Europe," Gaetano explained, "shoemaking is taught as part of the course. Here it is not. But, in order to be a good shoe repairman, one must know something about the shoes."

Although the Gaudios still do more shoe repairs than shoemaking, there are many people in Victoria wearing shoes carrying the Gaudio trademark.

UNPRECEDENTED MOVE

New Rules Take Over In U.K. High Courts

LONDON (CP)—Britain's judicial peers Tuesday decided to take their cue from the Commonwealth by announcing they no longer will be rigidly bound by precedent in deciding appeal cases.

This fundamental change in British practice caused a mild sensation among British lawyers, long accustomed to the ramrad inflexibility of High Court procedure.

Lord Gardiner, the lord chancellor, said in a statement the change will allow the judicial peers "to pay greater attention to judicial decisions reached in the superior courts of the Commonwealth where they differ from earlier decision in the House of Lords."

★ ★ ★

"That could be a great help in the development of our own laws," Lord Gardiner's statement continued. "The superior courts of many other countries are rigidly bound by their own decisions and the change in the practice of the House of Lords will bring us more into line with them."

This, in effect, rattled Britain's top legal doctrine—"the binding forces of precedent." The doctrine had reigned supreme in the House of Lords for 68 years. It meant that the top appellate body, in deciding civil and criminal appeals on the basis of law, were bound by previous decisions in similar cases.

Lord Gardiner and the appeal lords said that while former House of Lords decisions will normally be treated as binding, they will depart from previous decisions "when it appears right to do so."

This right is reserved only to the judicial peers and not to the lower courts.

One London newspaper reported the news caused a sensation at the law courts. It will be of high interest to Commonwealth and other countries where English law forms the basis of the legal system.

The lords said in their statement they regard the use of precedent as an indispensable foundation, providing at least some degree of certainty on which individuals can rely in conducting their affairs. But they also maintained that rigid adherence to precedent can cause injustice.

The lord chancellor's office explained later that an example of where the judicial peers may depart from precedent "is where they consider that the earlier decision was influenced by existence of conditions which no longer prevail and that in modern conditions the law ought to be different."

B.C. Group Offers Aid To Formosan

A young pharmacy graduate from Formosa will take his first year of post-graduate studies in Canada thanks to the idealism of a group of young B.C. lawyers and engineers.

Numbering less than 10, all of them in the Vancouver area, they have formed the China-Canada Educational Advancement Foundation as a sort of do-it-yourself international aid plan.

With modest reluctance, 35-year-old Vancouver lawyer Ian G. Pyper today told the story to The Victoria Times after his application for certificate of incorporation under the Societies Act was gazetted.

"We are all connected with a company known as the Canadian Trans-Oceanic Technical Services Ltd., which won a contract to provide engineering services in setting up a $4 million sawmill in the Republic of China (Formosa)," he said.

"It brought some of our engineers into contact with young students there who needed help to continue their schooling. "We felt that here was an opportunity to help foster more understanding between Canadians and Asians so about four months ago we got the idea of the foundation.

"We started out with one specific student seeking our help but we haven't decided yet whether we will help just one or several every year or whether we will try to send some of our students there.

SMALL GROUP

"There are about 10 of us in the foundation now but we have had some interest shown by people in the Chinese community in Vancouver who are sympathetic and they may contribute something later."

The foundation's charter empowers it to operate chiefly in the lower mainland area and Vancouver Island, covering most of the university and technological institutes in B.C.

But the first student who will receive help — Mr. Pyper said it will be "in excess of $2,000 — will go to the graduate school at the University of Ottawa because it fits in most neatly with his pharmacy degree obtained in Taiwan.

It may be a small start but the horizons are opened wide to significant hands-across-the-Pacific ventures by the foundation's constituted objects as recorded in the B.C. register:

"(a) To encourage better understanding between the peoples of East Asia and Canada by exposing the national ideals, cultures, and outlooks of the various nations to one another, and by assisting in the exchange, both of worthy students and technicians, between educational and vocational training institutions of countries in East Asia and Canada;

"(b) To establish, receive donations for, and administer a scholarship fund to be awarded for the purposes of assisting deserving students and technicians from China and other East Asian countries to enter and study at educational and vocational training institutions, and deserving students from Canada to enter and study at educational and vocational training institutions in East Asia."

SOME INDIAN NAMES 'NOT RIGHT'

OLYMPIA, WASH., (AP) — Governor Evans said Tuesday he doesn't like the Indian names chosen for two of the state's five new ferry boats and has asked the State Highway Commission to come up with something better.

He said he has received objections to plans to name the boats "Kumtux," meaning to know or understand, and "Klatawa," to go or travel.

They just don't sound right, the governor said.

He said he has received no objections to proposed names for the other three ferries: "Hyak," meaning swift; "Kaleetan," arrow; and "Hiyu," plenty.

FORMER secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and foreign minister of Belgium, Paul-Henri Spaak, has retired from political life. He has written to the speaker of the Belgian House of Representatives renouncing his seat.

New C.O. Seeks Recruts

Newly-promoted Major Arthur Sherwin, has been appointed commanding officer of the 5th. (B.C.) Field Battery.

His appointment follows retirement of Major T. G. Dalzell, who has headed the command for the past three years.

Major Sherwin, who has been 26 years with the artillery, was one of the persons responsible for establishing Fort Rodd Hill as a national park.

Just returned from live firing practice at Wainwright, Alta., the major stressed the need for more men in the 5th.

He said: "We are looking for young men over 16 and a few older men with previous experience."

Social Aspects Of Confederation To Be Outlined

A neglected aspect of the founding of Confederation — the social side — will be outlined in a public lecture at the University of Victoria at 8:30 p.m. Thursday.

Speaker at the lecture in the Students' Union Building will be Dr. Maurice Careless, head of the history department at the Univesity of Toronto.

Dr. Careless says "Some of the hardiest of Canadian pioneers were not in the backwoods but in the dining room. Our ancestors had not yet learned that truly Canadian myth — that this was a dull country, doomed to take its historical happenings glumly."

Dr. Careless, a visiting lecturer at the university's summer session, won the Governor-General's Medal for his study, Canada, A Story of Challenge.

His lecture is the second at Uvic in a series dealing with the background of Confederation.

Swimmers May Go Radioactive

NORTH COWICHAN — Hundreds of young swimmers in Fullers Lake, Chemainus, may be tagged with radioactive buttons.

This space-age safety idea was promoted Tuesday evening at a meeting of municipal recreation commission.

Commissioner Jack Efford said the buttons are available commercially at $1 apiece and a geiger counter could be bought for $500.

Commissioner Ivan Beggs had complained about the danger of swimming in the lake because of the heavy algae growth.

"If a swimer is a foot under the water he can't be seen and this places too much responsibility on the lifeguard.

"My idea may sound far-fetched but it is practical."

He said the buttons each had a minute particle of radioactivity and are used in many aspects of industry.

Mr. Efford is an engineer at Crofton pulp mill.

FULFORD HARBOR NEXT ON BEAVER'S SCHEDULE

The Ss. Beaver, the Centennial replica now moored in Victoria Harbor, sails Thursday morning for a tour of coastal points.

Her ports of call are Fulford Harbor, Thursday; Ganges, Friday; Hope Bay, Pender Island, Saturday and Sunday; Chemainus, Aug. 1, 2; Ladysmith, Aug. 3, 4; Powell River, Aug. 5, 6, 7; Campbell River, Aug. 8 to 11; Comox, Aug. 12 to 15; Nanaimo, Aug. 16 to 19; Vancouver, Aug. 20 to 31; White Rock, Sept. 1 to 5; Squamish, Sept. 6, 7; Britannia Beach, Sept. 8; Gibsons Landing, Sept. 9, 10.

More than 20,000 had visited the Beaver in Victoria by 9 p.m. Tuesday.

MAYOR ASKS USE OF PENSION FUND

LADYSMITH — Mayor Kathleen Grouhel says the provincial government should make money available to municipalities from Canada Pension Plan funds.

Mayor Grouhel told council other provinces are making funds available to councils in this way.

She said the federal government is making this money available to provinces through the operation of the pension plan.

The council will send a resolution to the September convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

Mayor Grouhel said money is no longer available from the Municipal Development and Loan Fund.

The resolution will urge the Bennett government to give the money to municipalities at a reasonable rate of interest.

Action Launched Against Council

By DON DINGWALL

NORTH COWICHAN — Realtor Joseph Haddock and retired mining engineer Frank Blanc launched a British Columbia Supreme Court action against North Cowichan council.

The action will try to block passage of the municipal recreation bylaw setting up separate recreation districts.

A writ was served Tuesday on A. Vandecasteyen, municipal clerk, calling on him to show why the special bylaw should not be quashed.

The separate bylaw for the north end of the municipality was instituted after a composite recreation bylaw for the entire municipality was defeated.

The separate bylaw would provide money for a $330,000 ice arena at Fullers Lake Park, Chemainus.

Provision has been made for the two separate areas to be merged if and when the south end comes up with a recreation project.

Mr. Haddock said: "The council's action in this matter is one of the most disgraceful things ever to happen to North Cowichan ratepayers.

"I was incensed enough to bring this action."

Mr. Haddock and Mr. Blanc had been authorized by South End Ratepayers' Association to examine means of blocking the bylaw.

But Mr. Haddock said: "When Mr. Blanc and I realized the cost was beyond the association we decided to bear our responsibility as individuals."

The municipality has ignored the expressed wishes of the majority, he said.

The action is due to be heard in Supreme court in Victoria Aug. 19.

Reeve Donald Morton said he had no comment.

FIRST ALL-FIBREGLASS TROLLER

They've Started Something

CAMPBELL RIVER — First all-fibreglass troller built in Canada has been launched by a local firm and already they are being deluged with orders for more.

The Charade, a 48-foot, 20-ton troller, was launched in a unique fashion and marked the completion of a job that taught Bob Hunter and his men at Shelter Point Plastics a lot about boatbuilding.

Work on the troller, built for local fisherman C. W. "Sonny" Ross, started last February and involved a round-the-clock process of putting on layers of fibreglass over a foam frame. Final result was a hull that will withstand almost any impact and in government tests proved stronger than wood.

Big delay in completing the craft proved to be two shipping strikes, first the longshoremen's strike in Montreal and then the merchant seamen's strike in London. The Rolls-Royce diesel engine for the troller made three trips across the Atlantic but was never unloaded. Finally, the company's representatives in Vancouver rebuilt one and shipped it here.

●

To launch the troller, after the cabin had been added and fittings completed, workmen had to knock out the back of the building. The troller was eased onto a log sled and pulled and pushed into the water by a bulldozer.

When construction started last spring, it touched off a lot of inquiries and resulted in a parade of boat owners visiting the shop.

At one stage, the doors of the plant had to be locked.

Now that fibreglass fishing boat No. 1 is in the water and ready for action, Mr. Hunter is uncertain about the boatbuilding future of his firm.

"We've got a lot of orders for boats and oddly enough most of these are from Alaskans. They want us to build gilnetters."

However, he said his firm is only committed to one more at the present time, a 40-footer for a Tofino man.

"We're so darn busy here right now with all the pulp mill jobs and other work that if we started boatbuilding seriously we wouldn't get anything else done," he said.

JURY FINDS CARELESSNESS

Clampdown Asked On Minors Buying Guns, Ammunition

DUNCAN—A coroner's jury here Tuesday evening urged new laws to prevent anyone under 18 buying firearms or ammunition unless accompanied by parents.

The jury returned a verdict of accidental death in the fatal shooting of Paul Tempest, 16, in the backyard of his home, July 18.

After half an hour's deliberations the jury found carelessness on the part of Tom Taylor, 16, who fired the .22 rifle; carelessness on the part of Ben Jozijn, 16, who left the rifle loaded, and carelessness in the part of the deceased in the handling of firearms.

Tempest was shot through the forehead.

The seven-man jury also called for stricter enforcement of local bylaws regarding the discharge of firearms.

Members of the jury had questioned witnesses about how easily minors obtained firearms and ammunition from stores.

WEINER ROAST

They heard how Tempest and Taylor were preparing a wiener roast and Tempest had turned to go to the house for butter when Taylor fired.

Taylor told the inquest he didn't know the gun was loaded, and said Paul Tempest had been playing with it earlier and pointing it at him.

He said he had first pointed one gun at Paul and pulled the trigger. This gun was empty.

He then pointed the death weapon straight at Paul and fired.

Walter Tempest, father of the deceased, said he had not known the three boys went rat shooting at a dump the previous Thursday "or I would have been annoyed."

He said he did not worry about Paul possessing a rifle as the boy was efficient with guns.

Mr. Tempest said: "I didn't agree with him having a gun but what can you do?"

Ben Kozijn said he left his gun at Tempest's house after the rat shooting.

He said: "I didn't want to take the gun home as my parents didn't know I had it. I usually kept it at my brother's house."

Kozijn said he was not sure he had left a shell in the rifle, but he had not cleaned it on the Thursday evening.

He had three shots. He knew he had fired one and had one left in his pocket.

He said his parents did not want either he or his brother to have a rifle at home because of having a younger retarded brother.

15 FEET APART

Const. James Swanson, RCMP, said the boys were apparently 15 feet apart at the time of the shooting.

Mrs. Tempest, who saw her son fall, told the inquest: "I called the doctor and my husband and I brought towels and blankets.

"I think we prayed."

Dr. R. F. Stanley testified Paul died of brain damage.

The inquest was conducted by Coroner Dr. Robert R. Wilson.

400 Attend NDP Picnic

Sun smiled on the annual NDP picnic held Sunday in Metchosin at the Sea Bluff Farm of Geoff Mitchell.

More than 400 persons attended the event, which included tractor rides, a treasure hunt and salmon barbecue.

Special guests were NDP Esquimalt candidate John Bartanus and Nanaimo MLA David Stupich.

Uchuck Bought By Government

PORT ALBERNI — The 107-foot Uchuck II has been purchased by the B.C. Highways Department to transport students from Malcolm Island and Alert Bay to the new Upper Island Senior Secondary School which is proposed for Port McNeill.

For many years the Uchuck II was a private ferry owned by Nootka Sound Transportation which plied the waters of the Alberni Inlet and Barkley Sound.

$300 NEEDED FOR TRIP TO RUSSIA

Voice of Women needs $300 in addition to funds already raised to send two B.C. members on a trip to Russia.

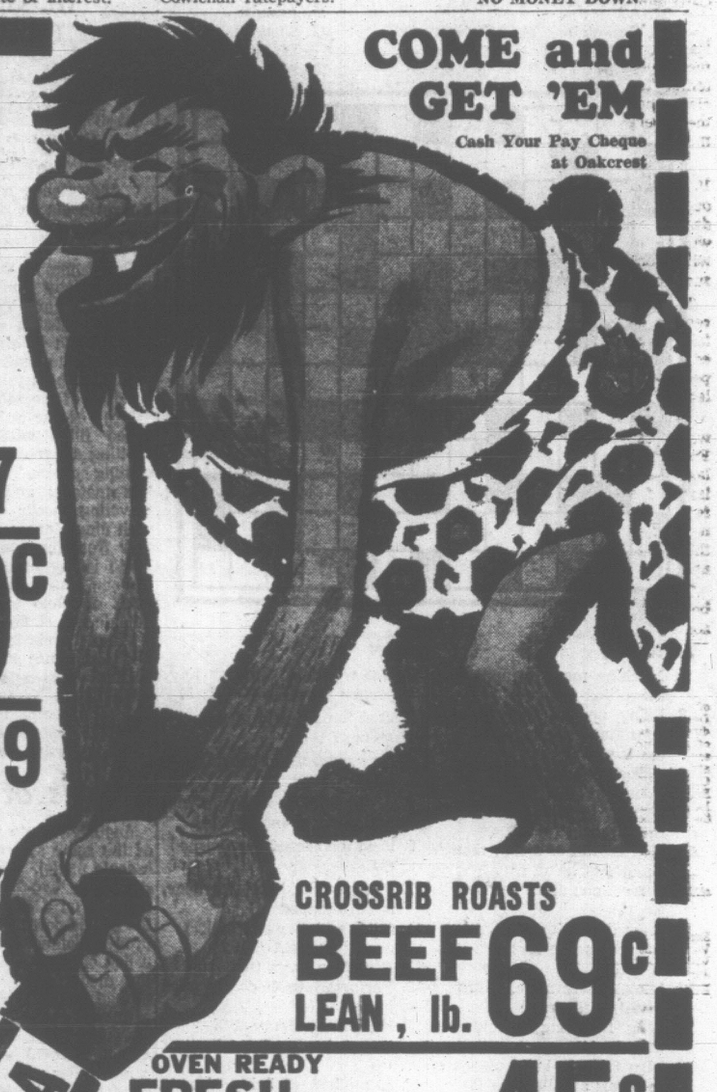

The members, Mrs. Beverly McPhee, Courtenay, and Mrs. Lorraine Bates, Vancouver, are returning the visit of four Russian women who made a VOW-sponsored trip to Canada last year.

Contributions can be sent to Voice of Women, P.O. Box 21, Victoria.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

Almost Had Time To Sleep and Eat

The voice for Canada's 300,000-plus scouts and cubs and their 25,000 leaders says scouting doesn't build character.

"But it provides the opportunities for a boy to develop his own character," said David Aitken, editor of the "Scout Leader," house organ of the Boy Scouts of Canada.

In Victoria after attending the Penticton Provincial Scout Jamboree earlier this month, Mr. Aitken said "most of the good things in life have always been with us."

"The important thing is how we use them."

"Scouting, I would say, is one of many things that makes life more interesting."

Visiting various scouting regions to gauge scout leaders' reaction to his publication, Mr. Aitken is making his first trip to B.C.

He described B.C.'s jamboree, a well-populated week-long "tent city" outside Penticton, as "first-class."

"Organization was especially good. The boys almost had time to eat and sleep."

Mr. Aitken, who was guest of honor at a Greater Victoria Region president's committee luncheon Monday, now lives in Ottawa and works at National Scout Headquarters.

Since he joined Wolf Cubs in 1933, Mr. Aitken has taken almost every rung of the scouting ladder to his present position.

"I've been everything but a cubmaster," he said.

"And my wife's that."

Eagle Bombs U.S. Plane With Mouse

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The U.S. Tactical Air Command reported officially today that a plane in flight was hit by a mouse.

The command said it happened to a plane piloted by Capt. Robert W. Carter of the 346th troop carrier squadron on temporary duty in France.

Carter's report on the accident read:

"While approximately 1,000 feet in the air on the approach to Rhein Main air base in Germany, the crew observed an eagle approaching seemingly for a head-on collision. The bird was carrying a mouse.

"The aircraft could not be veered since it was in a controlled final approach. Just prior to a probable mid-air collision with the eagle, the bird pulled up and released the mouse directly into the No. 2 engine."

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Bob Perin, age nine, of Eugene, Ore., for his question:

How big is our solar system?

Our home in the heavens is not perfectly round but like a flat saucer, and its outside edge is an oval-shaped ring. The smiling sun is almost, but not quite, at the centre. Around it swing the planets and the other children of the solar system.

Most of the solar system is space filled with swarms of orbiting asteroids and dozens of visiting comets. There are countless meteors and other space-traveling specks of dust, along with nine planets, each one farther from the sun. The planet Pluto is the one farthest from the sun. As a rule we take the orbit of Pluto to measure the outside rim of the solar system.

Pluto travels in an oval path, and sometimes it comes closer to the sun than the orbit of the next planet, Neptune. The distances measure many millions of miles and even one million miles is hard for a young earthling to grasp. A good trick is to figure the time it takes to travel. We have all sped along a safe road at 60 miles an hour. This gets us to a place 60 miles away in one hour. We can understand this speed but it would not help us much in space travel.

At a non-stop speed of 60 miles an hour it would take us 694.5 days or nearly two years to travel a million miles. The oval orbit of Pluto is 5,532 million miles wide and 9,134 million miles long. Our lame little spacecraft traveling at 60 miles an hour would take more than 11,000 years to cross the narrow width of the oval. It would take more than 18,000 years to travel the length of the oval orbit from end to end. A spacecraft chugging along at 60 miles an hour could go all the way around the orbit of Pluto at the edge of the solar system in about 25,000 years.

Travels at Breakneck Speed

Another way to grasp the size of the solar system is to make a scale model. Let's shrink the sun to a two-foot beach ball, place it on a flat field and see the scaled-down planets at their proper distances. The earth is a pea on an orbit 215 feet from the model sun. Jupiter is an orange on an orbit almost half a mile wide. At the outer edge of our model is a pea-sized Pluto. Its oval orbit is two and a half miles wide and three and one-fourth miles long. The real solar system is more than 2,000 million times bigger than our shrunken model.

Nothing travels faster than a sunbeam, and astronomers clock the speed of light to measure vast distances in the sky. At this breakneck speed, 186,000 miles a second or 669,600,000 miles an hour, it takes a sunbeam about eight minutes to reach us from the sun. Pluto is 40 times farther from the sun than we are. And a sunbeam leaving the sun must travel more than five hours to reach the outside edge of the solar system.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Allyne Zeper, age 14, of Philadelphia, Pa., for her question:

Do insects communicate with each other?

Most of the animals have ways to communicate with each other and a lot of information is spread among the various creatures. Stags bellow love songs to their lady deer, and sharp-eyed prairie dogs bark warning signals to their friends below the ground. The birds whistle threats to other birds.

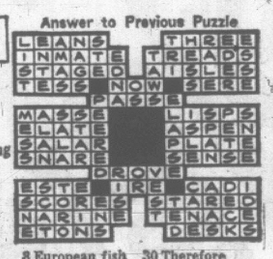

Honeybees have an elaborate system of communication for running the busy hive. Foraging workers return and pace off a special dance that shows other workers just where to go for honey supplies. No creature, however, uses a language of words. Some of their ways of communicating are very strange to us. The cricket, for example, chirrups with his wings and his sweetheart listens with organs in her front legs.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

FISHY SOUND of tall story told by 11-year-old Rhys Thomas (holding box) is not reflected on faces of listeners—they're swallowing it hook, line and sinker. Displaying pole, net and tackle box, Rhys describes whopper he'll catch Friday in annual junior fishing derby at Dallas Road breakwater. Even if it's only a minnow, he'll win a prize as will all youngsters who land one in derby if pre-registered at Eaton's. Rhys' swimming pals will compete in Thursday morning swim frolic at Crystal Gardens, first of its kind for youngsters taking part in summer playground program in 33 Greater Victoria parks. SAANICH LIGHTS THE WAY

45 Miles of Roads To Have Luminaires

This year's street lighting program will make suburban Saanich one of the best lighted municipalities in Canada, Reeve Hugh Curtis said today.

Lights were installed on 32 miles of Saanich roads last year and will go into 45 miles this year.

Total cost of the main lighting improvements is estimated at more than $200,000.

The 1966 street lighting program consists of lighting six large residential areas and several minor projects.

The residential area is bounded in the south by Tolmie and Highway 1, on the east by Cedar Hill golf course and Shelbourne, on the north by Ruby, Harrop, Lucas and Agnes, and on the west by a line between Grange and Wilkinson.

Some of the main roads in this area—the inner urban core of Saanich—are already lighted to accepted standards.

But the existing incandescent lights are not as efficient as the mercury luminaires which will be the standard installation, said the reeve.

In addition, incandescent lights are more costly to maintain than mercury luminaires.

The number of luminaires to be installed this year is about 1,200 compared with 930 last year.

Reeve Curtis said lighting will be installed by local improvement in subdivision and residential areas outside the main population area when it is requested by residents.

In the residential areas, the extra cost of lighting main roads and ancilliary roads is paid by Saanich "so that all residents in an area are assessed equally."

The reeve said the average cost each year for 10 years for the areas to be lighted in 1966 is less than $7 for each property owner.

REV. R. E. S. TOMS
. . . 36 years' service

Minister To Retire On Sunday

Rev. Rowland E. S. Toms today announced his retirement as minister of the Apostolic Church at Blanshard and Queens.

His successor, Rev. Alan McLean from Calgary, will be inducted at the 11 a.m. service Sunday.

Now convalescing after a heart attack, 68-year-old Mr. Toms has been minister of the church since 1956. He has been an active minister of the Apostolic Church of Pentecost in Canada for 36 years.

Born at Redhill, Surrey, England, Mr. Toms came to Canada in 1919. He was for 17 years minister of the Apostolic Church in Saskatoon and broadcast a Sunday radio message for 14 years.

Mr. Toms will conduct his last service in the Victoria church Sunday at 11 a.m. and extend a welcome to his successor.

"Mrs. Toms and I shall continue to reside in Victoria," he said, "and I hope to continue preaching on supply. We have had a happy time here and we have many good friends in Victoria."

Shrubs Now Paying Dividends

By Hilda Beastall

The shrubs of the second half of summer are paying dividends for the time spent cutting and pruning in April.

Hilda

First of a colorful trio to make a lovely summer picture when used in a group is the sun loving shrubby Hypericum forresti.

This is now five feet high and almost as much through, after a vigorous spring pruning down to two feet just as growth commenced on the bare twigs.

Every new branch ends in many fat golden buds which open in succession to inch-and-a-half wide saucers, centered with prominent golden stamens.

Mingling with this shrub of gold are the long thick cones of tiny scented blossoms belonging to the summer Buddleia variabilis named Empire Blue, and the pure white cultivar named White Bouquet.

The Buddleias were but small plants this spring, but the tops were cut back to about six inches from the ground. This has resulted in long arching branches, five feet in length.

Next year, when these have had their spring cut, the branches should grow tall enough to arch over the hypericum, bringing perfume, bees and butterflies to the scene.

The third of the trio is an evergreen little shrub we used to call Veronica Autumn Glory, but which many years ago was reclassified as Hebe (hee-bee).

The spikes of blue flowers are charming against the dark shiny green leaves and bright gold blossoms of the hypericum.

We always seem to refer to this Hebe as a small shrub, for every few years a bad frost will damage it enough that new branches will have to be made from ground level.

It is worthwhile to have a young plant or two in reserve in a protected cold frame, for with either pink blooming shrubs or yellow, Hebe Autumn Glory holds the attention in the latter half of summer.

WOMAN DRIVER AT SEA

VANCOUVER (CP) — The sleek, new Russian freighter Orekhov had a woman at the helm when it arrived here Tuesday to load grain for the Soviet Union.

Capt. Anna Shchetinina is one of the few women captains afloat and last visited here as master of the freighter Orsha.

She has been a frequent visitor to Vancouver since she acquired her master's papers in 1935.

Soon after the ship docked, "Capt. Anna's cabin was decorated with flowers from friends she had made on previous voyages here.

312 Cover Heavy Traffic Areas with Minaki 501 With Nylon Textured Loop Pile Carpeting

Here is carpeting that can really "take it". Have it installed in all the heavy traffic areas in your home and watch it wear for years! This wonderfully durable, resilient loop pile is in an interesting textured design that's luxurious looking — yet because it's Dupont's continuous nylon filament there's no pilling, fuzzing or shedding. Nylon is practically non-absorbent which means it has minimum absorption, makes liquid and dry soil easy to remove when given prompt attention. In chestnut, golden beige, electric blue, antique gold, pine green, green olive and more. Approx. 12 ft. width.

SALE 8.44 Square Yard

313 Medallion Acrilan — for medium-heavy traffic areas! Acrilan is the carpet fibre of superior performance. It's resilient, mothproof and non-allergenic. Easy to care for textured cut and uncut pile. In turquoise, autumn beige, cinnamon, Oriental gold, moss green and silver green. Approx. 12' width.
Sale, sq. yd. 10.88

Labor Chiefs Support Wilson's Wage Freeze

U.S. HAS CHOICE

'Invade North Now Or Fight 10 Years'

By GEORGE McARTHUR

SAIGON (AP)—Premier Nguyen Cao Ky gave the United States a choice today of aiding South Viet Nam another five or 10 years or invading North Viet Nam to finish the war.

Citing repeated North Vietnamese declarations to fight on as long as 20 years, Ky told a press conference:

"We have the patience but can we say the same thing of our allies? Are they ready to help us for five to 10 years . . . If not, we must destroy the Communists in their lair."

Reacting to the Johnson administration's repudiation of his suggestions for a military confrontation with China and a possible invasion of the North, Ky said: "I would say there is actually no desire to invade North Viet Nam because the struggle which we have been carying on is rather a self-defence, a struggle for self-defence."

If South Viet Nam becomes strong and a democratic and economically sound example, he continued, "the people of North Viet Nam will turn their faces to the South and will overthrow the Communist regime. This second concept requires patience and time. This is the work of five, 10 or 15 years."

POST UNDER FIRE

The Viet Cong shelled the command post of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division at Cu Chi, 18 miles northwest of Saigon, for nearly two hours Tuesday night. A spokesman said the Viet Cong attack caused light casualties in the U.S. tent city.

U.S. air raids continued against the North and two more planes were lost, bringing the number of American planes reported downed over North Viet Nam to 310. Three planes were rescued.

Ky's statement was in reply to questions about his comment in an interview in U.S. News and World Report last week that "it is better to face (the Chinese) right now than in five or 10 years" and suggesting an allied invasion of North Viet Nam.

The pronouncements were in line with similar previous declarations by Ky and Nguyen Van Thieu, chief of state, but they touched off a storm in the U.S. Senate Tuesday.

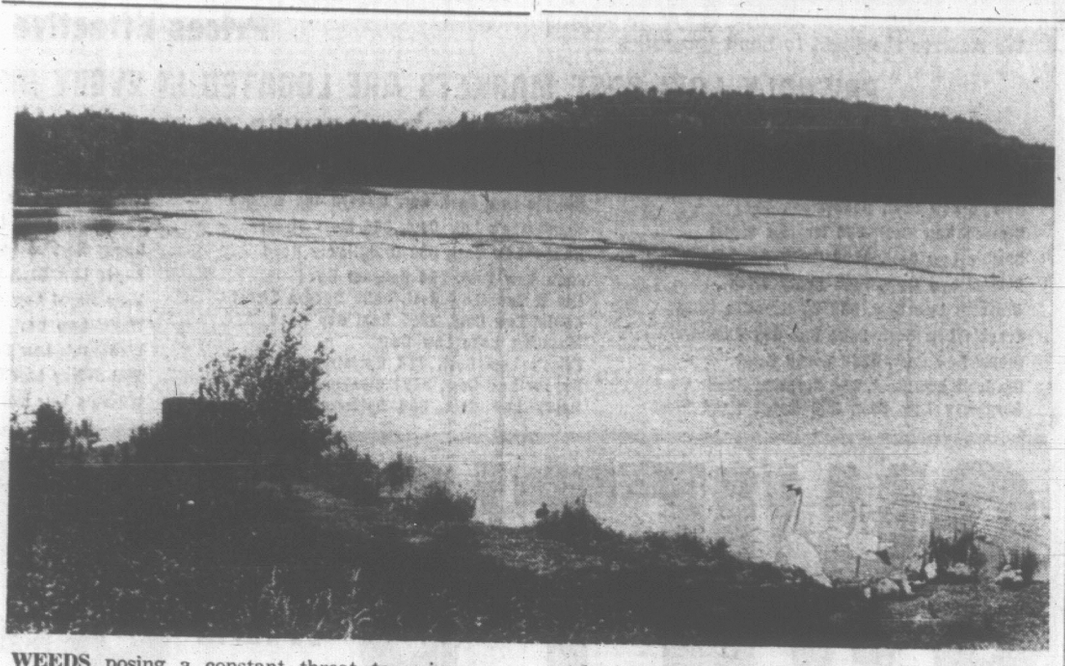

Democratic Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana called on the Johnson administration to dissociate itself from Ky's statements.

A state department spokesman commented: "Our position of not seeking any wider war has been repeatedly made clear and remains our position."

TWISTING TRANSPORT TO FLY FAST, HIGH

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal-based World Wide Patents Corporation, Ltd., has come up with a design for a supersonic transport which could carry 200 passengers at speds up to 17,000 m.p.h. at 200,000 feet.

The turbo-ram jet plane is designed to take off lengthways, then turn sideways once airborne to force the entire fuselage-wing into the airflow.

WEEDS posing a constant threat to swimmers stretch across Elk Lake. This week Victoria and Saanich are combining forces to wipe out the hazard for the balance of the summer. Parks administrator Herbert Warren told a Victoria-Saanich Parks and Beaches Committee earlier this week that there was no inexpensive way to wipe out the weeds entirely. He suggested that weed-killing funds be placed in the budget each year to enable work crews to tackle the problem early each summer before it got out of hand. (Times photo.)

RAIN SLOWS TRACTORS

TORONTO (CP)—Rain today temporarily stalled the tractor procession of 79 farmers heading for Toronto to meet with Ontario government representatives.

The delay may mean that the farmers will arrive late for a meeting with Premier John Robarts

Rhodesia College Closed

Nine Lecturers Seized by Police

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Rhodesia's multi-racial University College closed down today after police swooped at dawn and detained nine white lecturers, including a Canadian, and at least nine Negro students.

A notice posted at the college said the principal, Professor Alan Milton had decided the college must close forthwith instead of Aug. 20, the start of normal holidays.

The detained lecturers were identified by the college as Gerald L. Caplan, a Canadian in the history department; Ian Henderson, C. R. Hill, C. R. Whittaker and Elizabeth Joyce, all British; Dr. I. van Velsen, a Dutchman; Alex Sommerfelt, a Norwegian; G. Marrighi, an Italian, and T. R. C. Curtin, a British-born Rhodesian.

Caplan, 28, is from Toronto. He graduated in 1960 from the University of Toronto and went to Rhodesia as assistant lecturer while completing his work toward a doctorate of philosophy in African history.

Reports that four were released later could not be confirmed.

Sources said those detained were taken to Salisbury's main police station where they were charged under a section of Rhodesia's Law and Order (Maintenance) Act.

The raid brought to a head unrest at the college, which has simmered and erupted periodically since Rhodesia unilaterally declared independence from Britain last Nov. 11.

Must Persuade Each Union

LONDON (CP)—The general council of Britain's 8,500,000-member Trades Union Congress agreed today by 20 votes to 12 to give qualified backing to the government's call for a six-month wage freeze, union sources said.

The TUC decision came after more than five hours of discussion on a recommendation from its influential economic committee.

It was made in the face of strong opposition from the Transport and General Workers Union, which is against any kind of pay standstill.

TUC agreement gives the Labor administration of Prime Minister Wilson powerful psychological support at a critical point in its bid to impose harsh austerity measures to bolster the pound sterling and the British economy.

But industrial experts said the union chiefs still had to persuade individual unions to carry through the standstill. And it was still not clear how far this would be successful, since it is not mandatory.

Wilson appeared in the House of Commons today to defend his government's slash in spending by nearly $2,000,000,000 as part of its austerity program.

Attack on U.S. Dollar Blamed

He said the pound has been under assault because of an attack on the United States dollar. Analysing the causes of a recent flight from sterling, Wilson suggested two main elements were involved:

● Big international firms dealing in or with Britain were tempted to unload their sterling holdings for precautionary, not speculative reasons. Some companies with U.S. roots have been under Washington pressure to transfer their profits home more speedily.

● The difficulties associated with the financing of Britain's overseas trade represented the second element. These difficulties have been intensified because Britain finances her own huge trade and that of other sterling area (mainly Commonwealth) countries.

The prime minister announced a pay-price-dividend freeze last week in introducing his package of tax increases and spending cuts to save the pound. The six-month pay freeze, to be followed by a similar period of "severe restraint," was the showpiece of the package, designed to impress international financial opinion that the British would right their unbalanced economy.

Tuesday night the TUC's economic committee met with Wilson and offered him an eight-page memorandum outlining organized labor's conditions. They boiled down to exemptions for two categories: Lower-paid workers and workers whose pay rises with productivity.

George Woodcock, TUC secretary-general, said Wilson told him: "I think we might manage something along these lines."

As if to illustrate the difficulties, wage claims on behalf of more than 1,000,000 white-collar workers were lodged Tuesday despite the pay freeze.

The government is drafting a bill to give legal solidity to the freeze and plans to push it through Parliament next week. It also is considering heavy taxes — perhaps as high as 80 per cent — on dividends held back by companies during the freeze for distribution to stockholders after the ice breaks.

With union support, the post-war Labor government held pay increases to five per cent for two years, the best record since the war. Since Wilson took office 21 months ago, wages have gone up 10 per cent.

The 1948-49 austerity program, organized by Sir Stafford Cripps, produced an increase of 25 per cent in Britain's exports and an annual increase in production of seven per cent.

VOTE TONIGHT

Tonight the house ends a two-day debate on Wilson's economic package and was expected to vote down a Conservative motion censuring Wilson's management of the economy.

The present package also involves a seven-per-cent interest rate, higher consumer taxes and promises to cut government spending.

Tuesday night Conservative Leader Edward Heath accused Wilson's team of failing to check "over-manning, restrictive practices, too little competition generally, low incentives, mass government spending and regional imbalance."

LINE KEEPS FLYING

LBJ Intervenes In Air Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced today President Johnson will set up an emergency board to postpone for 60 days a threatened strike against American Airlines by members of the Transport Workers' Union.

In the absence of such action, union members would have been free to strike at 12:01 a.m. Thursday.

The announcement came shortly before a Senate committee started hearing testimony on a strike that started 29 days ago against five other airlines, to determine whether legislation is needed to force a settlement.

Witnesses for the five grounded airlines, the striking machinists' union and the defence, labor and post office department opened a Senate hearing on special legislation to halt the strike.

"I think it does constitute an emergency," said Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, who appeared ready to seek quick passage if the Senate labor committee votes out a strike-stopping bill.

But President P. L. (Roy) Siemiller of the International Association of Machinists (AFL-CIO) "the continued interference by the legislative branch of government is delaying the final time when agreement can be reached."

Chief airlines negotiator, William Curtin, is expected to tell the committee that the strike is "an urgent national problem" and that Congress should act to end it.

WILL NOT TESTIFY

AFL-CIO President George Meany issued a statement supporting the machinists' stand that while the strike is inconveniencing the travelling public, it presents no threat to the country's welfare or to national defence. Meany, who urged defeat of any strike legislation, is not a witness.

WIRE BRIEFS

Valley Mayor Dead

CHILLIWACK (CP) — Mayor Theo T. McCammon of Chilliwack died early today in hospital in this Fraser Valley city. He was 67. He had been mayor of Chilliwack for 24 years.

67 Die in Floods

SEOUL (UPI)—Korean officials said today 67 persons have died and nearly 90,000 have lost their homes in widespread floods and landslides.

Illegal Plant Hit

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—Federal agents have uncovered a huge cashe of gambling equipment, much of it rigged, in a raid on a Tulsa manufacturing firm which apparently engaged in nationwide activities.

World Court Rapped

NAIROBI (Reuters) — The Kenyan Parliament unanimously adopted Tuesday a government motion condemning the World Court decision on South-West Africa and urging the government to aid freedom fighters in the territory. The World Court last week dismissed Ethiopia's and Liberia's allegation that South Africa is abusing its mandate over South-West Africa.

Chemical Warfare Ordered on Weeds

Weed-killing specialists were out at Elk Lake this morning preparing to remove the steadily mounting hazard.

Victoria council Tuesday afternoon approved the expenditure of $1,500 as the city's half share of the $3,000 required to stifle the growth.

Saanich approved its share of the cost at a special council meeting Monday night.

The weed patches on the lake had grown to such an extent that lifeguards on duty there had warned that unless something was done speedily the lives of swimmers would be endangered.

Victoria parks administrator Herbert Warren was unavailable for comment this morning but it is understood that the weed killing operation will take place this week.

If it does the lake may be closed to swimmers for a 24-hour period. In that event warning notices will be posted at the lake.

The chemical poison used is not harmful to fish or birds but could prove a discomfort for swimmers.

Earlier this week Mr. Warren said it would take about 24-hours for the chemical to dissipate in the lake.

AT 18 HOSPITALS

Pickets Will Defy Quebec Injunction

MONTREAL (CP)—The National Federation of Services, representing Quebec's 32,500 striking non-medical workers, today advised workers not to abandon picket lines at 18 hospitals where they were ordered back to work by an interim court injunction issued Tuesday night.

A union spokesman said workers meetings held at all 18 hospitals late Tuesday voted not to respect the injunction issued by Mr. Justice Georges Pelletier at the request of the Quebec justice department. The injunction is valid until Aug. 20.

Picketers at the three hospitals in Montreal and seven in Quebec City, against whom the injunction has been issued, were reported to be maintaining their lines as usual.

A resolution adopted by 250 regional delegates of the federation at 4 a.m. today declared that the court order is "designed to cut our wage demands and we must not submit to it."

"We must continue the calm and discipline which has marked the strike since it started July 15," the resolution said.

3 WOMEN MURDERED IN BRITAIN

LONDON (UPI) — Torture, sex, mutilation, and dismemberment emerged in gruesome detail today as shocked Britons learned of the slaying of three young women.

Early today, London police said a brown corrugated cardboard parcel left beside a driveway in a residential section contained the mutilated and obviously tortured body of a young Negro woman.

In Bristol, the half-nude body of a 20-year-old girl was found crumpled against a wall, believed strangled.

No Pleas For Help

LONDON (CP) — The Commonwealth relations office today confirmed that nine university lecturers at Salisbury have been placed under arrest by Rhodesian police.

But a spokesman added that none of those detained have asked for any consular assistance from the British office in Salisbury.

"We have been in touch with their lawyer but they have not asked for any assistance from us," the spokesman said.

Transportation Plan Unveiled in Britain

LONDON (Reuters) — Sweeping plans to tackle Britain's traffic chaos, speed rail services, and modernize the country's ports were announced by Transport Minister Barbara Castle today.

Mrs. Castle announced a plan to integrate development of all aspects of the internal transport system. It had these main points:

1. Roads—A traffic plan for every big town and city, covering parking and possible tolls on the most congested roads.

2. Railways—Special development routes linking big towns; creament projects for main trunk tion of a national freight organization aimed at a fast door-to-door service by road and rail; local payments toward upkeep of uneconomic rail services still needed in remote areas.

3. Ports and canals—Selective investment in some outdated ports to form the nucleus of further expansion as new towns are built and industries expand.

In the long term, the government aims to reorganize the ports on the basis of public ownership through a national ports authority.

CLEVELAND FIREBOMBING, SNIPING

'Black Panthers' Blamed for Terrorism

CLEVELAND (UPI — A 17-year-old Negro youth told a grand jury investigating last week's riots that much of the looting, firebombing and sniping had been planned by a young gang known as the "Black Panthers," it was reported today.

The secret witness, who said he was a member of the gang, supplied jurors with names of leaders and plotters and supplied dates and meeting places where acts of violence were planned, the Cleveland press reported.

Testifying for a full hour before the grand jury late Tuesday, the tall, slim Negro youth told of seeing firebombs made and names those he saw make them.

He said the Black Panthers consisted of about 200 young "hell raisers" in the racially troubled Hough area in the city's east side slum, the newspaper said.

The youth, wearing dark glasses while he testified, said the gang did more damage and precipitated more terror during the riots than any other gang. He said he himself took part in the rioting and threw several firebombs.

The jurors resumed hearing testimony today from Hough area residents and representatives of civil rights groups.

In other testimony Tuesday the Rev. Charles Rawlings said it "would have to be proved" to him that the Jomo Freedom Kenyatta (J.F.K.) House, which was closed by city officials Tuesday night as a health hazard, was a training school for firebombers, the press said.

Rawlings, executive director of the commission on metropolitan affairs of the Greater Cleveland Council of Churches, said he was a supporter of the JFK.

"There is a danger in Cleveland," he said, "that we can become engaged in a witch hunt." He said he did not mean the grand jury investigation.

U.S. URGED TO GET OUT OF EUROPE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U.S. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield called today for a two-stage withdrawal of American troops from western Europe.

He told the Senate a "good first step" would be to bring home about 75,000 men and dependents from France rather than reassigning them elsewhere in Europe.

As a second step an over-all cut of 10 per cent in U.S. troop strength in Germany and elsewhere in Europe should be made, Mansfield said.

Mao Keeps His Head in Swim But What's Underneath Him?

LONDON (CP) — The Daily Mirror today pokes fun—and casts some doubt — on the photo of Mao Tse-tung, 72-year-old Chinese leader, on a nine-mile swim in the Yangtse River with four "athletic acolytes."

The New China news agency photo is "the most inscrutable picture of the year," says the Mirror. (The picture appeared in Monday's edition of the Times.)

"A few questions immediately beg an answer.

"Have you ever seen a picture of five men swimming and none of their arms showing?

"Have you ever seen a picture like this where not a man-made ripple breaks the surface?

"Have you (a cunning one this) ever seen a picture of five men swimming and not one of them with his mouth open?"

Perhaps the picture was the Chinese answer to Western rumors that Mao is in poor health but a "sinister interpretation" was tossed around diplomatic missions in London, says The Mirror.

"Were these statuesque heads less than they were purported to be?

MAO
. . . soccer next?

"Were they, in fact, JUST heads?

"Were they (shades of Ian Fleming) being held high and dry by similarly inscrutable Chinese frogmen toiling dutifully below the five-knot current of the treacherous Yangtse?"

After noting other oddities in the photo, The Mirror says "the Western world must, of course, accept the validity of this picture. However:

"Only one course is left open for the Chinese to finally convince a skeptical world.

"Their 72-year-old leader must be photographed making a guest appearance as centre forward for the North Korean World Cup team."

North Korea went to the quarter-finals of the World Cup soccer tournament before bowing to Portugal 5-3 last Saturday.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, JULY 27, 1966—PAGE 11

Arthur Mayse

One man's junk is another's treasure, and my bag of snippets from a scruffy old polar bear rug is worth more to me than its weight in mink. Each year, it provides material for winging the big, gay flies that no right-minded coho salmon can resist.

First, though, the fur must be prepared for the hook. This is one of those fussy small jobs a fisherman enjoys, provided he has time in plenty for it, and a proper spot in which to undertake it.

This last, for me, is a salt chuck beach on a sunny morning. It must be a beach of the wilder sort, where one can light a fire. There should be some little black-headed Bonapartes — coho gulls, we call them—and preferably a boy along to gather Douglas fir bark nubbins and ask questions.

Beyond that, you need only a few boxes of all-purpose fabric dye, a vial of vinegar, and, of course, some polar hair.

This, already washed in detergent suds, ranges in color from sparkling white through cream to yellow. The off-shade fur is indelibly predyed by mineral salts of Arctic waters in which the great bears swim, and no amount of bleaching will lighten it.

So we save the pure white pieces with their four or five-inch long guard hairs for the under-wing. The rest goes into the dye-pot.

★

For this work a bonfire blaze is not wanted. Scoop out a foot-wide fire hole in the beach shingle, well away from the drift logs, and edge it with larger stones. Whittle a ruff of cedar shavings around a stick, touch a match to this tinder, and feed your fire with salty, silvery drift scraps until it is strong enough to take the bark chunks.

When these burn down, you have a small, very hot and all but smokeless blaze, the sort that will boil water in two shakes of a polar bear's tail.

What's needed next is clean salt water, scooped from the gull haunted shallows. I use a battered camp pot, blackened by many past fires. Set this on your stones above the concentrated hatful of heat, add a sparing dash of vinegar then stroll the beach or loaf in the sun until the water begins to simmer.

Dump in the dye of your choice, remembering that a little goes a long way. Stir with a stick. When the pot comes to what housewives call a rolling boil, drop in your previously-wetted chunk of polar.

Now comes the tricky part of the operation. Color-wise coho usually prefer the softer tints; a faded red will take more fish than a bright scarlet. This means you must not over-dye; and to prevent any such catastrophe, I suspend each piece of fur on a string and jig it in and out of the bath.

When the tint is precisely right, whisk the fur out and hurry it down for a rinsing in the cold sea. Smooth the water from the hair, set it to dry on a log, empty the red dye, and scour the traces from the pot with a fistful of wet sand. You are then ready to repeat with another color.

My own pet shades for coho are the faded red I mentioned above, and a light blue tinged sparingly with green. But as everyone who trolls the big "bucktails" knows, the bright fur laid above the white under-wing may be any imaginable hue. I remember a day when hot orange was the only color to fetch strikes, and more than one evening when fish would come only to the palest of green.

What I have traced for you here is my own recipe, learned from a commercial handliner in the days when this unique B.C. coast lure was tied with hair from the tail of goat, calf or deer. He worked his bucktails when minnows weren't handy to his herring rake.

There are other fur-dying recipes, and the shades produced with the newer dyes are marvellous to behold.

For my own method, I will claim only that it's a heck of a lot more fun than messing up your wife's clean kitchen; and that while salt water-dyed polar hair may fade a trifle from time and hard mauling, your colors will never run.

If present plans materialize Wharf Street could look something like this in five years' time. This artist's impression of what a hotel would do for the area was painted shortly after the announcement of a major face-lifting job for Bastion Square was made. Although the artist had no knowledge of a local syndicate's plans for a hotel he visualized such a project as the cornerstone for future development. City planners agree that though his concpt was but an artist's dream two years ago, it could become reality in the near future. With Ocean Cement planning to move from Wharf Street within the next five years the vision will move even closer into being. City planner Geoff Greenhalgh stresses that the painting is "just an impression of what could be done" but says that eventually be believes the entire waterfront area will be utilized for recreation.

Constitutional Dispute Erupts Over Officers

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Labor Reporter

An inter-union battle on B.C. Ferries has turned into a constitutional dispute.

The two unions involved are the B.C. Government Employees' Association (CLC) and The Canadian Merchant Service Guild (CLC).

The guild has applied to the Canada Labor Relations Board in Ottawa for certification of officers working the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen run.

The bid for federal recognition was based on the fact that ferries on this run sail partly through American waters while crossing the Strait of Georgia.

OPPOSITION

E. P. O'Connor, secretary of the B.C. Government Employees Association, said today his union intervened to oppose the application.

He appeared before a Canada Labor Relations Board hearing in Ottawa last week and was joined in his opposition by lawyers representing the B.C. attorney-general's department and B.C. Ferries.

Mr. O'Connor said the hearing was confined to the constitutional question of whether or not the Canada Labor Relations Board has jurisdiction in the matter.

The board reserved its decision bu t an announcement may be made next month.

"The ferry authority, the attorney-general's department and the employees association took the position that the board doesn't have the constitutional authority," he said.

PROVINCIAL BASIS

It was learned that the argument against the guild application was that B.C. Ferries is an agency of the crown operating only on a provincial basis.

In addition, it was stated that ferry employees are under the jurisdiction of the B.C. Civil Service Act and are civil servants of the province.

It was argued that it is inappropriate for a federal agency to deal jurisdictionally with provincial government employees, in the same way it would be for the B.C. Labour Relations Board to try and certify, for example, federal postal workers.

SIGNED UP

The association earlier this year charged the guild with raiding its jurisdiction by signing up masters, mates and engineers aboard B.C. Ferries.

Under the Canadian Labour Congress constitution, a mediator is looking into the charge.

At one time, the association represented about 600 ferry workers but they quit expressing dissatisfaction with the union.

A union of deck and catering workers, called the B.C. Ferry Employees Union, has also been formed and it has applied to the CLC for membership. A decision was postponed by the CLC until October.

Man Fined $50 For Hitting Girl

A Montreal man today was fined $50 in central court for assaulting a five-year-old girl on Tuesday.

Russell Grant, 21, who told court he was returning east next week, was arrested after Saanich police were called to a brother-in-law's house to settle a domestic dispute.

Leaving the house on the arrival of police, Grant knocked into the girl, Linda Barrett, who was sitting on a staircase.

LABORERS' STRIKE AVERTED

A strike by laborers which would have tied up almost all construction work on southern Vancouver Island today was averted at a union meeting Tuesday night.

Settlement of the contract dispute between Local 1093, Construction and General Laborers Union, and about 30 local contractors was announced by union business agent John Gallow.

He said a separate agreement for the 300 laborers south of the Malahat will continue, but it will contain nearly all the benefits of the standard B.C. contract.

The new contract will expire in February, 1968, at the same time as the standard agreement.

Wages were settled earlier with the old rate of $2.56 an hour being increased to $2.84 rising to $3.24 next March.

Contractor George Wheaton said the issue was resolved "amicably" by avoiding some clauses of the standard agreement.

One of these states the laborers don't have to work with unions not affiliated with the building trades council, which would hit both contractors and employees where a union isn't a member of the council.

Campers Mourn 'Copper's' Sudden Death

A lady known as "Copper" was honored in Sands Funeral Chapel Tuesday afternoon.

Whe was Mrs. Dorothy Evelyn Copley — one of the most popular leaders at the George Pringle United Church Camp at Shawnigan Lake.

Whe died suddenly in camp last Friday at the age of 50 after returning from a boating trip on the lake with some of the girls in her care.

So it was that representatives of every United Church in Victoria were among the 200 men and women attending the service in Sands chapel.

Rev. E. Laura Butler spoke of the thousands of campers who had been associated with Mrs. Copley during her nine years of leadership.

"Her sudeen passing was a severe shock to us in camp," Miss Butler said, "but we are thankful it happened so quickly and apparently without any suffering."

Two of Mrs. Copley's favorite hymns were sung — God Who Touchest Earth With Beauty and How Great Thou Art.

Camp leaders and campers travelled from Shawnigan Lake to attend the service, which was followed by interment in Royal Oak Burial Park.

Born in Vancouver, Mrs. Copley resided with her husband, Robert, and their family at 1229 Effingham Street, Victoria.

She is also survived by a daughter, Diana, at home; two sons, Richard, Vancouver and George, Windsor, Ont.; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Chambers, Vancouver; a brother, Harry, at Spokane, Wash.

Mrs. Copley was a keen golfer, a Sunday school teacher and a Tyro leader.

Hotel-Marina On Wharf St. Syndicate Aim

By JIM HUME
Times City Hall Reporter

Victoria will have two new hotels within the next year if plans now under development materialize. Both will be on the waterfront.

Most ambitious of the two projects involves property in the 1100 block Wharf Street.

The property between the old HMCS Malahat building and McQuades is registered in the name of the National Trust "and others". It was originally owned by the late Christopher Spencer.

It is understood a three-man syndicate involving two Victoria men and one Vancouver hotel owner will release details of the hotel-marina complex in about three months' time.

DRAWINGS DRAFTED

Although principals in the syndicate are reluctant to talk about their plans until all details are worked out, it is understood working drawings have already been drafted.

If present plans work out the hotel will have its main entrance at street level with two floors of underground parking beneath the main structure.

On the harbor side there will be some provision for small craft wharfage but it will be only a minor aspect of the development.

A well-informed source said the developers will not be concentrating on the marina angle.

"There isn't enough hotel trade from the boating fraternity to warrant the spending of too much money on small boat facilities," he said.

BASTION THEME

The area surrounding the hotel will be landscaped to fit in with the Bastion Square theme.

City planners say they have received no official word on the planned hotel but expressed delight that such a project is being considered.

"It will be wonderful if such a project goes through," said city planner Geoff Greenhalgh.

REVITALIZE AREA

"I am sure that Bastion Square will revitalize the entire area eventually and a hotel such as the one you are talking about would have a tremendous impact."

The second hotel complex planned for the waterfront will be on CPR property on Belleville Street if the CPR board of directors gives the scheme its blessing.

Local businessman Charles White is the promoter of the CPR project.

On Tuesday he appeared before a group of aldermen and city officials to bring them up to date on his plans.

He is scheduled to appear Thursday before the Capital Improvement District Commission to brief them and seek their backing.

It is stressed that no definite progress can be made until the CPR, which will retain owner ship of the land, gives the go-ahead.

If it does a 90-unit motor hotel will be built on the existing CPR dock plus several stores, a dining room, cocktail lounge and a clock tower similar to the one on Parliament Hill in Ottawa.

If the necessary clearances are obtained from the CPR work on the project would start after the final CPR ferry run this fall with completion date set in time for the 1967 tourist season.

No completion date has been set for the Wharf Street project.

NOV. 19 SET FOR VOTE ON SWIM POOL

Nov. 19 has been set as a tentative date for a referendum to determine whether residents of Langford, Colwood and Metchosin want a $220,000 centennial swimming pool.

The pool will be owned by the Regional District Board but capital costs and maintenance costs will be borne only by residents in the three unorganized districts.

The pool will be constructed on an 18-acre site on the former Colwood race track on the old Island Highway.

"We are confident residents will approve the project," said J. S. Williams, chairman of the centennial project committee.

NEW ORGANIST ROBBED, ATTACKED IN PARK

City police are investigating the robbery of the new organist of St. John's Anglican Church Tuesday afternoon in Beacon Hill Park.

Donald Woodworth, staying at the Dominion Hotel, was robbed of a $100 wrist watch, a gold ring, a silver crucifix and other personal effects by a young man he described as about 21 years old, six feet tall, and "lanky."

Mr. Woodworth said he was struck in the chest several times.

2-YEAR JOB

Mental Hospital Work Starts

After years of construction and planning, work began today on construction of the provincial government's psychiatric hospital on Lee Avenue behind Royal Jubilee Hospital.

A public works department official said Burns and Dutton Construction Ltd. has begun site preparations and foundation work which is expected to take about three months.

The company's bid of $179,000 for excavation, foundation footings and erection of the concrete shell for a one-storey section of the building was accepted last week as the lowest of four tenders.

Before the Victoria Mental Health Centre, as the hospital project is known, is completed, a series of contracts for various stages of the work totalling between $6 and $7 million will be let.

Construction time is estimated at 18 months to two years.

When complete, the hospital will have 240 beds and an outpatient department.

Tallest section of the building will rise seven stories but there will be lower sections.

JUNIOR BARMEN ORDERED TO MOVE OVER

Pop Won't Work as Sop to Cop

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

Summer was bustin' out all over Tuesday, and so were the lemonade stands run by junior tycoons out to make a quick nickel.

One in a Saanich subdivision ran into business difficulties, however, when it was found operating on public property —namely, right on the road.

But pint-sized partners running the stand were only mildly distressed when policeman pulled up to advise them to move the stand before traffic put an end to their business venture.

"We offered them a cool drink," said tow-haired Vicki West, 10, of 1682 Alderwood Crescent.

Then Vicki ("My real name is Victoria") and partner Jim Jacek, 3988 Cedarwood, who is "going on 10," moved their business premises several yards up the street to a vacant lot.

There they set up their aluminum table and patio chairs again, with the help of young brothers and sisters and neighboring youngsters.

And started with the soft sell:

"You can get drinks in one cent, five cent and 10 cent glasses," Vicki told customers.

"And it comes in three flavors — lemon, orange and raspberry."

TOOTHPICK TOO

Also on sale were popcorn (10 pieces for a penny) and cinammon-flavored toothpicks.

The partners found that moving to a new location can often help trade — "We've made 55 cents so far."

Drawn by the business boom, operators of a rival refreshment stand down the street came up to observe.

"We've only made nine cents at ours," admitted Stephen Burgoyne, 12, "but we just started."

The lemonade stand business, all round is usually subsidized pretty heavily by parents, who may or may not realize their assets are boosting the economy.

Glasses and pitchers are often borrowed, and in this case somebody's mom even made the drinks.

"One of their friends was selling lemonade down the street yesterday," Jim's dad explained. "So they just had to set up a stand today."

Another booth was set up on a corner only three blocks away, where a young miss was hawking her wares in paperboy style.

"Drinks — five cents, 10 cents. Come and get it."

Accident Victim Out of Hospital

Laurel Fraser Benham Jr., 21, of 1675 Donnelly, was released from St. Joseph's Hospital Tuesday after treatment for injuries suffered in an auto accident at Beaver Lake Park on Saturday.

The man had sustained concussion and cuts.

One man's junk is another's treasure, and my bag of snippets from a scruffy old polar bear rug is worth more to me than its weight in mink. Each year, it provides material for winging the big, gay flies that no right-minded coho salmon can resist.

First, though, the fur must be prepared for the hook. This is one of those fussy small jobs a fisherman enjoys, provided he has time in plenty for it, and a proper spot in which to undertake it.

This last, for me, is a salt chuck beach on a sunny morning. It must be a beach of the wilder sort, where one can light a fire. There should be some little black-headed Bonapartes — coho gulls, we call them—and preferably a boy along to gather Douglas fir bark nubbins and ask questions.

Beyond that, you need only a few boxes of all-purpose fabric dye, a vial of vinegar, and, of course, some polar hair.

This, already washed in detergent suds, ranges in color from sparkling white through cream to yellow. The off-shade fur is indelibly predyed by mineral salts of Arctic waters in which the great bears swim, and no amount of bleaching will lighten it.

So we save the pure white pieces with their four or five-inch long guard hairs for the under-wing. The rest goes into the dye-pot.

★

For this work a bonfire blaze is not wanted. Scoop out a foot-wide fire hole in the beach shingle, well away from the drift logs, and edge it with larger stones. Whittle a ruff of cedar shavings around a stick, touch a match to this tinder, and feed your fire with salty, silvery drift scraps until it is strong enough to take the bark chunks.

When these burn down, you have a small, very hot and all but smokeless blaze, the sort that will boil water in two shakes of a polar bear's tail.

What's needed next is clean salt water, scooped from the gull-haunted shallows. I use a battered camp pot, blackened by many past fires. Set this on your stones above the concentrated hatful of heat, add a sparing dash of vinegar then stroll the beach or loaf in the sun until the water begins to simmer.

Dump in the dye of your choice, remembering that a little goes a long way. Stir with a stick. When the pot comes to what housewives call a rolling boil, drop in your previously-wetted chunk of polar.

Now comes the tricky part of the operation. Color-wise coho usually prefer the softer tints; a faded red will take more fish than a bright scarlet. This means you must not over-dye; and to prevent any such catastrophe, I suspend each piece of fur on a string and jig it in and out of the bath.

When the tint is precisely right, whisk the fur out and hurry it down for a rinsing in the cold sea. Smooth the water from the hair, set it to dry on a log, empty the red dye, and scour the traces from the pot with a fistful of wet sand. You are then ready to repeat with another color.

My own pet shades for coho are the faded red I mentioned above, and a light blue tinged sparingly with green. But as everyone who trolls the big "bucktails" knows, the bright fur laid above the white under-wing may be any imaginable hue. I remember a day when hot orange was the only color to fetch strikes, and more than one evening when fish would come only to the palest of green.

What I have traced for you here is my own recipe, learned from a commercial handliner in the days when this unique B.C. coast lure was tied with hair from the tail of goat, calf or deer. He worked his bucktails when minnows weren't handy to his herring rake.

There are other fur-dying recipes, and the shades produced with the newer dyes are marvellous to behold.

For my own method, I will claim only that it's a heck of a lot more fun than messing up your wife's clean kitchen; and that while salt water-dyed polar hair may fade a trifle from time and hard mauling, your colors will never run.

If present plans materialize Wharf Street could look something like this in five years' time. This artist's impression of what a hotel would do for the area was painted shortly after the announcement of a major face-lifting job for Bastion Square was made. Although the artist had no knowledge of a local syndicate's plans for a hotel he visualized such a project as the cornerstone for future development. City planners agree that though this concept was but an artist's dream two years ago, it could become reality in the near future. With Ocean Cement planning to move from Wharf Street within the next five years the vision will move even closer into being. City planner Geoff Greenhalgh stresses that the painting is "just an impression of what could be done" but says that eventually be believes the entire waterfront area will be utilized for recreation.

Hotel-Marina On Wharf St. Syndicate Aim

By JIM HUME
Times City Hall Reporter

Victoria will have two new hotels within the next year if plans now under development materialize. Both will be on the waterfront.

Most ambitious of the two projects involves property in the 1100 block Wharf Street.

The property between the old HMCS Malahat building and McQuade's is registered in the name of the National Trust "and others". It was originally owned by the late Christopher Spencer.

It is understood a three-man syndicate involving two Victoria men and one Vancouver hotel owner will release details of the hotel-marina complex in about three months' time.

DRAWINGS DRAFTED

Although principals in the syndicate are reluctant to talk about their plans until all details are worked out, it is understood working drawings have already been drafted.

If present plans work out the hotel will have its main entrance at street level with two floors of underground parking beneath the main structure.

On the harbor side there will be some provision for small craft wharfage but it will be only a minor aspect of the development.

A well-informed source said the developers will not be concentrating on the marina angle.

"There isn't enough hotel trade from the boating fraternity to warrant the spending of too much money on small boat facilities," he said.

BASTION THEME

The area surrounding the hotel will be landscaped to fit in with the Bastion Square theme.

City planners say they have received no official word on the planned hotel but expressed delight that such a project is being considered.

"It will be wonderful if such a project goes through," said city planner Geoff Greenhalgh.

REVITALIZE AREA

"I am sure that Bastion Square will revitalize the entire area eventually and a hotel such as the one you are talking about would have a tremendous impact."

The second hotel complex planned for the waterfront will be on CPR property on Belleville Street if the CPR board of directors gives the scheme its blessing.

Local businessman Charles White is the promoter of the CPR project.

On Tuesday he appeared before a group of aldermen and city officials to bring them up to date on his plans.

He is scheduled to appear Thursday before the Capital Improvement District Commission to brief them and seek their backing.

It is stressed that no definite progress can be made until the CPR, which will retain owner ship of the land, gives the go-ahead.

If it does a 90-unit motor hotel will be built on the existing CPR dock plus several stores, a dining room, cocktail lounge and a clock tower similar to the one on Parliament Hill in Ottawa.

If the necessary clearances are obtained from the CPR work on the project would start after the final CPR ferry run this fall with completion date set in time for the 1967 tourist season.

No completion date has been set for the Wharf Street project.

Constitutional Dispute Erupts Over Officers

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Labor Reporter

An inter-union battle on B.C. Ferries has turned into a constitutional dispute.

The two unions involved are the B.C. Government Employees' Association (CLC) and The Canadian Merchant Service Guild (CLC).

The guild has applied to the Canada Labor Relations Board in Ottawa for certification of officers working the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen run.

The bid for federal recognition was based on the fact that ferries on this run sail partly through American waters while crossing the Strait of Georgia.

OPPOSITION

E. P. O'Connor, secretary of the B.C. Government Employees Association, said today his union intervened to oppose the application.

He appeared before a Canada Labor Relations Board hearing in Ottawa last week and was joined in his opposition by lawyers representing the B.C. attorney-general's department and B.C. Ferries.

Mr. O'Connor said the hearing was confined to the constitutional question of whether or not the Canada Labor Relations Board has jurisdiction in the matter.

The board reserved its decision but an announcement may be made next month.

"The ferry authority, the attorney-general's department and the employees association took the position that the board doesn't have the constitutional authority," he said.

PROVINCIAL BASIS

It was learned that the argument against the guild application was that B.C. Ferries is an agency of the crown operating only on a provincial basis.

In addition, it was stated that ferry employees are under the jurisdiction of the B.C. Civil Service Act and are civil servants of the province.

It was argued that it is inappropriate for a federal agency to deal jurisdictionally with provincial government employees, in the same way it would be for the B.C. Labour Relations Board to try and certify, for example, federal postal workers.

SIGNED UP

The association earlier this year charged the guild with raiding its jurisdiction by signing up masters, mates and engineers aboard B.C. Ferries.

Under the Canadian Labour Congress constitution, a mediator is looking into the charge.

At one time, the association represented about 600 ferry workers but they quit, expressing dissatisfaction with the union.

A union of deck and catering workers, called the B.C. Ferry Employees Union, has also been formed and it has applied to the CLC for membership. A decision was postponed by the CLC until October.

Man Fined $50 For Hitting Girl

A Montreal man today was fined $50 in central court for assaulting a five-year-old girl on Tuesday.

Russell Grant, 21, who told court he was returning east next week, was arrested after Saanich police were called to a brother-in-law's house to settle a domestic dispute.

Leaving the house on the arrival of police, Grant knocked into the girl, Linda Barrett, who was sitting on a staircase.

LABORERS' STRIKE AVERTED

A strike by laborers which would have tied up almost all construction work on southern Vancouver Island today was averted at a union meeting Tuesday night.

Settlement of the contract dispute between Local 1093, Construction and General Laborers Union, and about 30 local contractors was announced by union business agent John Gallow.

He said a separate agreement for the 300 laborers south of the Malahat will continue, but it will contain nearly all the benefits of the standard B.C. contract.

The new contract will expire in February, 1968, at the same time as the standard agreement.

Wages were settled earlier with the old rate of $2.56 an hour being increased to $2.84 rising to $3.24 next March.

Contractor George Wheaton said the issue was resolved "amicably" by avoiding some clauses of the standard agreement.

One of these states the laborers don't have to work with unions not affiliated with the building trades council, which would hit both contractors and employees where a union isn't a member of the council.

Campers Mourn 'Copper's' Sudden Death

A lady known as "Copper" was honored in Sands Funeral Chapel Tuesday afternoon.

She was Mrs. Dorothy Evelyn Copley — one of the most popular leaders at the George Pringle United Church Camp at Shawnigan Lake.

She died suddenly in camp last Friday at the age of 50 after returning from a boating trip on the lake with some of the girls in her care.

So it was that representatives of every United Church in Victoria were among the 200 men and women attending the service in Sands chapel.

Rev. E. Laura Butler spoke of the thousands of campers who had been associated with Mrs. Copley during her nine years of leadership.

"Her sudden passing was a severe shock to us in camp," Miss Butler said, "but we are thankful it happened so quickly and apparently without any suffering."

Two of Mrs. Copley's favorite hymns were sung — God Who Touchest Earth With Beauty and How Great Thou Art.

Camp leaders and campers travelled from Shawnigan Lake to attend the service, which was followed by interment in Royal Oak Burial Park.

Born in Vancouver, Mrs. Copley resided with her husband, Robert, and their family at 1229 Effingham Street, Victoria.

She is also survived by a daughter, Diana, at home; two sons, Richard, Vancouver and George, Windsor, Ont.; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Chambers, Vancouver; a brother, Harry, at Spokane, Wash.

Mrs. Copley was a keen golfer, a Sunday school teacher and a Tyro leader.

NOV. 19 SET FOR VOTE ON SWIM POOL

Nov. 19 has been set as a tentative date for a referendum to determine whether residents of Langford, Colwood and Metchosin want a $220,000 centennial swimming pool.

The pool will be owned by the Regional District Board but capital costs and maintenance costs will be borne only by residents in the three unorganized districts.

The pool will be constructed on an 18-acre site on the former Colwood race track on the old Island Highway.

"We are confident residents will approve the project," said J. S. Williams, chairman of the centennial project committee.

NEW ORGANIST ROBBED, ATTACKED IN PARK

City police are investigating the robbery of the new organist of St. John's Anglican Church Tuesday afternoon in Beacon Hill Park.

Donald Woodworth, staying at the Dominion Hotel, was robbed of a $100 wrist watch, a gold ring, a silver crucifix and other personal effects by a young man he described as about 21 years old, six feet tall, and "lanky."

Mr. Woodworth said he was struck in the chest several times.

JUNIOR BARMEN ORDERED TO MOVE OVER

Pop Won't Work as Sop to Cop

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

Summer was bustin' out all over Tuesday, and so were the lemonade stands run by junior tycoons out to make a quick nickel.

One in a Saanich subdivision ran into business difficulties, however, when it was found operating on public property —namely, right on the road.

But pint-sized partners running the stand were only mildly distressed when policeman pulled up to advise them to move the stand before traffic put an end to their business venture.

"We offered them a cool drink," said tow-haired Vicki West, 10, of 1682 Alderwood Crescent.

Then Vicki ("My real name is Victoria") and partner Jim Jacek, 3988 Cedarwood, who is "going on 10," moved their business premises several yards up the street to a vacant lot.

There they set up their aluminum table and patio chairs again, with the help of young brothers and sisters and neighboring youngsters.

And started with the soft sell:

"You can get drinks in one cent, five cent and 10 cent glasses," Vicki told customers.

"And it comes in three flavors — lemon, orange and raspberry."

TOOTHPICK TOO

Also on sale were popcorn (10 pieces for a penny) and cinammon-flavored toothpicks.

The partners found that moving to a new location can often help trade — "We've made 55 cents so far."

Drawn by the business boom, operators of a rival refreshment stand down the street came up to observe.

"We've only made nine cents at ours," admitted Stephen Burgoyne, 12, "but we just started."

The lemonade stand business all round is usually subsidized pretty heavily by parents, who may or may not realize their assets are boosting the economy.

Glasses and pitchers are often borrowed, and in this case somebody's mom even made the drinks.

"One of their friends was selling lemonade down the street yesterday," Jim's dad explained. "So they just had to set up a stand today."

Another booth was set up on a corner only three blocks away, where a young miss was hawking her wares in paperboy style.

"Drinks — five cents, 10 cents. Come and get it."

Accident Victim Out of Hospital

Laurel Fraser Benham Jr., 21, of 1675 Donnelly, was released from St. Joseph's Hospital Tuesday after treatment for injuries suffered in an auto accident at Beaver Lake Park on Saturday.

The man had sustained concussion and cuts.

2-YEAR JOB

Mental Hospital Work Starts

After years of construction and planning, work began today on construction of the provincial government's psychiatric hospital on Lee Avenue behind Royal Jubilee Hospital.

A public works department official said Burns and Dutton Construction Ltd. has begun site preparations and foundation work which is expected to take about three months.

The company's bid of $179,000 for excavation, foundation footings and erection of the concrete shell for a one-storey section of the building was accepted last week as the lowest of four tenders.

Before the Victoria Mental Health Centre, as the hospital project is known, is completed, a series of contracts for various stages of the work totalling between $6 and $7 million will be let.

Construction time is estimated at 18 months to two years.

When complete, the hospital will have 240 beds and an outpatient department.

Tallest section of the building will rise seven stories but there will be lower sections.

W. GERMAN STEEL DEAL DENOUNCED

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Senate passed a battered foreign aid bill Tuesday after voting for an amendment denouncing a West German deal to build a steel mill in China as a "grave blow" to the safety of American and allied troops in Viet Nam." The measure would authorize a little more than $2 billion economic assistance, well below the $2 billion President Johnson asked.

Liberals Woo Trade Union Local Officers

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberal party today launched a monthly "labor newsletter" which it hopes eventually will reach 10,000 trade union officers across the country.

The first issue of the newsletter, a folded mimeographed sheet, was mailed today to 5,000 union leaders in the 14 major Canadian cities.

John Munro, Liberal MP for Hamilton East, is in charge of the project. He said it is an attempt to establish a basis of close communication between the Liberal party and the union movement at local levels.

"We're hoping to add another 10 cities and 5,000 addresses to our mailing list at an early date," he said. Labor people will be invited to write to him with comments on federal issues and programs.

The first issue contains brief reports on collective bargaining for the civil service, university education, medical insurance, pensions and health resources legislation.

About one-third of the 1,400-word issue is devoted to the Freedman inquiry report which last December dealt with the issue of automation and its effects on the labor force. The newsletter does not say what the government intends to do about it.

ACCENT ON EDUCATION

World Concern For Car Safety

LONDON (AP)—A few countries are moving to legislate more safety into the motor car, but the accent is on driver-pedestrian education.

The automobile explosion has brought with it an accompanying rise in traffic accidents and growing concern with safety problems.

The U.S. Congress is considering a wide-ranging bill to establish mandatory safety features in new automobiles and the government already has set standards, beginning with 1967 models, for cars it will buy.

There also is a move afoot in Canada to promote auto safety legislation. The federal industry department, with technical help from the National Research Council and other agencies, is preparing a report.

In other nations, an Associated Press survey shows, the automobile boom is a comparatively recent development and the stress has been more on driver and pedestrian education than on legislation.

In Japan, where streets already were crowded with pedestrians and bicyclists, the number of passenger cars quintupled during the five - year period from 1960 to 1965. And in a number of European countries, the number of vehicles almost doubled during the same period.

HAS MOST DEATHS

The United States led the world in the total number of traffic fatalities last year.

The United States had 91,300,000 vehicles registered last year and about 49,000 highway deaths. West Germany, with only about one-tenth of the number of cars, had 15,710 fatalities.

Pressure for safety legislation in Canada resulted mainly from publicity about Ralph Nader's book, Unsafe at Any Speed, the U.S. Senate hearings on auto safety and from Howard Grafftey, Conservative member of Parliament for Brome - Missiquoi.

There are 6,500,000 vehicles registered in Canada and 7,500,000 licensed drivers. There were 4,879 traffic fatalities in 1965 compared with 4,655 in 1964.

The Canadian Highway Safety council has been promoting driver education on a national scale for five years. It sponsors teacher-training courses in both French and English each summer. By the end of this summer it will have trained 1,100 persons.

Canadian casualty insurance companies finance the training courses in co-operation with the provinces, which have jurisdiction in the field.

High schools provide driver instruction as an extra-curricular course for students only. Recently, adult courses have been started in Alberta, Ontario and Quebec by the safety council and provincial governments.

MOTORCYCLISTS DIE

Japan, with 2,200,000 passenger cars in 1965, had a total of 12,475 fatalities. About one-fourth of those were pedestrians and another fourth were motorcyclists.

Britain, with 12,500,000 vehicles registered, had an estimated 8,000 fatalities; Italy, with 10,600,000 cars, had nearly 9,000 traffic deaths.

The British Parliament is studying a bill to make seat belts compulsory on new models.

The Victoria state government in Australia is considering requiring a dual braking system and a recessed dashboard.

In both West Germany and France, legislation has been enacted banning sharp, protruding objects from car bumpers, wheels or other parts in an effort to cut down injuries to pedestrians and cyclists.

Periodic auto inspections for older vehicles are mandatory in Britain and Japan.

Seat belts are not required in most nations. The belts appeared on the Italian market about four years ago but have been generally ignored, a traffic expert there said.

INCLUDE SAFETY ITEMS

One safety development in Britain and Germany is the design of an auto chassis which gradually collapses under impact of a collision. These are on only a few models, however. Other safety improvements include padded steering wheels and crash - absorbing steering columns on some models.

Not all the efforts toward safe driving have been made on the government level.

The Italian Automobile Club organized a campaign in 1964 using hundreds of photographers to take pictures of traffic violations. The offending drivers, traced by licence plates, received letters asking them to mend their ways.

Italy also has made extensive road - improvements and requires road safety courses in elementary schools. Despite that, its safety experts say, Italian drivers have much to learn.

Too often, they say, the Italian looks on his car as a test of personality or an instrument of prowess. Newspapers carry stories of outraged drivers battling on the road because one has passed the other.

Efforts are being made in both France and Britain to stiffen the examination for a driver's licence. The French licence now is valid for the lifetime of the holder; a study is being made whether to require a test every three years.

Cars 'Safest Ever' But Drivers at Fault

MONTREAL (CP) — "Our new cars are safer than any cars we have ever driven." Keith H. MacDonald of Montreal, general chairman of the Canadian Highway Safety Council, said today.

Criticizing car manufacturers for not installing more safety features was "much easier than blaming ourselves . . . for the terrible things we do with our cars."

"We need a whipping boy and we want an instant cure."

"But we are only fooling ourselves if we think that making safety features is going to stop the killing" on Canada's highways, Mr. MacDonald, vice-president of the Industrial Acceptance Corp. Ltd., told a Rotary Club luncheon.

Ralph Nader, the American engineer who wrote the best-seller Unsafe at Any Speed, and Howard Grafftey, Conservative MP for Brome-Missiquoi, who has been prodding Parliament to enact new safety legislation, had "no monopoly on car safety opinion," he said.

"The attitude of the man behind the wheel is not going to be affected by engineering."

MILLION INSURED

In the last 10 years, road accidents claimed 37,110 lives and injured about 1,000,000 men, women and children — many of them crippled for life.

The annual bill for death, injury, damage and claims arising from traffic accidents was running at more than $600,000,000 — more than $30 per capita.

"Our attitude thus far has been sadly out of tune with the severity of the problem. We spend millions of dollars in vestigating an aircraft crash but within minutes of an automobile accident the pieces are swept away with only the names and addresses of the victims being recorded."

Rubber-Burner Cars Promised to Buyers

TORONOT (CP)—R. B. Evans, chairman of American Motors Ltd. said Monday that if young people want to be able to burn rubber off tires with high-performance cars, his company will provide them with what they want.

Introducing prototypes of possible new models for the company, he said at a press conference that American Motors has suffered recently because it has been a follower, not a leader, in the car business.

Mr. Evans, who recently moved into American Motors with large stock purchases, said the company—associated since the late 1950s primarily with economy and compactness—intends to introduce bigger and more powerful engines and to produce cars that people will be proud to get into.

Asked whether this new approach ties in with auto safety—a major debate in North American—Mr. Evans said many features now are designed to protect drivers against themselves.

"If a man would put the safety belt on and a shoulder strap, he wouldn't need all the pads and collapsible steering wheel."

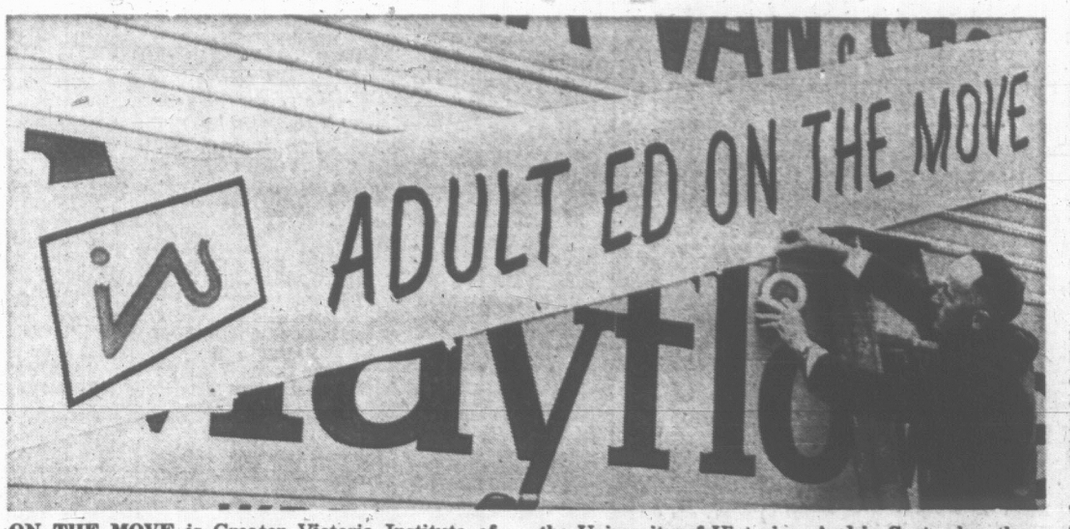

Earl K. Brownridge, president of American Motors (Canada) Ltd., said he does not expect any closing of the price gap between U.S. and Canadian-made cars when the 1967 models are introduced.

PRICES AFFECTED

He said prices of new models have not yet been set, but added that several factors such as labor and material costs have affected production expenses since the introduction of the Canada-U.S. auto agreement early last year.

Deputy Stays On the Job

Second three-month extension to keep working beyond retirement date was given deputy mines and petroleum resources minister P. J. Mulcahy Tuesday. The provincial cabinet's order will allow the 65-year-old civil servant to stay at his desk until Nov. 1 to give more time to pick a replacement.

ON THE MOVE is Greater Victoria Institute of Adult Studies. This week its operations are being transferred from Craigdarroch Castle to the Ewing Building on the old Lansdowne campus of the University of Victoria. And in September the institute will open for the first time to day-time students. Shown above is Alan Batey, principal of the institute.

Drive Starts For Library At Institute

Adult education in Greater Victoria is on the move — literally and metaphorically.

The adult education department Tuesday began moving bag and baggage from Craigdarroch Castle, its old headquarters, to the new Adult Education Institute on the former Lansdowne campus of the University of Victoria.

And in September the institute will open for the first time to day-time students in a wide range of courses not previously offered in this area.

Plans are now being implemented to establish a 10,000-volume library to serve the adult students. Mrs. Albert J. Temple, known for her successful Books for Nigeria campaign, will direct the drive for books.

FIRST GIFT

The first donation to the library came from Government House. It was a copy of Debrett's Peerage, the standard work on British aristocracy.

Mrs. Temple said practically any type of book is in demand by especially text books, general literature and works on commercial and fine art.

Books may be left at Mrs. Temple's home at 1243 Richardson or arrangements for pick-up may be made by telephoning 382-3563 or 382-3330.

Cash donations to buy books should be sent to the institute at Box 700, Victoria.

Father and Son Follow in Steps Of Generations of Shoemakers

LESLEY GILES

Raffaele Gaudio and his son, Gaetano, are unique, in a world of machines, they still make shoes by hand.

The two men, partners in a downtown shoe repair business, are proud to be custom shoemakers in an age when automation has taken over the jobs of many of their fellow shoemakers. And they are proud to be carrying on a 100-year family tradition of custom shoemaking.

"There is still a demand for custom shoes," they said. "Machine-made shoes aren't made for the individual, while custom shoes are. We, the shoemakers, take measurements to find the size of the arch, the size of the foot, the width, the height, and so on. No two people have identical feet."

Using these measurements, the Gaudios cut the pieces for the "top" of the shoe in kid leather, snakeskin, alligator, calf, kangaroo, suede. The finest leathers, ordered from Brazil, are used.

KID-LINED

Then, the shoe is placed on a last, in the shape of a foot, where the pieces are sewn together.

The sole is sewn on next, and the lining of soft kid.

Finally comes the Gaudio trademark, a soft pad on the insole with three circles, red, white and green, the colors on the Italian flag.

The result is a pair of shoes, designed for the individual, and for his comfort.

"Yes, they are much more expensive," stated Gaetano. "The prices are all above $35, but the quality of a custom shoe is good. A good custom shoe should last at least two years."

The Gaudios have been in Victoria since 1960, when the emigrated from Italy. They feel that the European training for shoe repair is far superior to the Canadian training.

"In Europe," Gaetano explained, "shoemaking is taught as part of the course. Here it is not. But, in order to be a good shoe repairman, one must know something about the shoes."

Although the Gaudios still do more shoe repairs than shoemaking, there are many people in Victoria wearing shoes carrying the Gaudio trademark.

New C.O. Seeks Recruits

Newly-promoted Major Arthur Sherwin, has been appointed commanding officer of the 5th. (B.C.) Field Battery.

His appointment follows retirement of Major T. G. Dalzell, who has headed the command for the past three years.

Major Sherwin, who has been 26 years with the artillery, was one of the persons responsible for establishing Fort Rodd Hill as a national park.

Just returned from live firing practice at Wainwright, Alta. the major stressed the need for more men in the 5th.

He said: "We are looking for young men over 16 and a few older men with previous experience."

Social Aspects Of Confederation To Be Outlined

A neglected aspect of the founding of Confederation — the social side — will be outlined in a public lecture at the University of Victoria at 8:30 p.m. Thursday.

Speaker at the lecture in the Students' Union Building will be Dr. Maurice Careless, head of the history department at the Univesity of Toronto.

Dr. Careless says "Some of the hardiest of Canadian pioneers were not in the backwoods but in the dining room. Our ancestors had not yet learned that truly Canadian myth — that this was a dull country, doomed to take its historical happenings glumly."

Dr. Careless, a visiting lecturer at the university's summer session, won the Governor-General's Medal for his study, Canada, A Story of Challenge.

His lecture is the second at Uvic in a series dealing with the background of Confederation.

UNPRECEDENTED MOVE

New Rules Take Over In U.K. High Courts

LONDON (CP)—Britain's judicial peers Tuesday decided to take their cue from the Commonwealth by announcing they no longer will be rigidly bound by precedent in deciding appeal cases.

This fundamental change in British practice caused a mild sensation among British lawyers, long accustomed to the ramrad inflexibility of High Court procedure.

Lord Gardiner, the lord chancellor, said in a statement the change will allow the judicial peers "to pay greater attention to judicial decisions reached in the superior courts of the Commonwealth where they differ from earlier decision in the House of Lords."

★ ★ ★

"That could be a great help in the development of our own laws," Lord Gardiner's statement continued. "The superior courts of many other countries are rigidly bound by their own decisions and the change in the practice of the House of Lords will bring us more into line with them."

This, in effect, rattled Britain's top legal doctrine—"the binding forces of precedent." The doctrine had reigned supreme in the House of Lords for 68 years. It meant that the top appellate body, in deciding civil and criminal appeals on the basis of law, were bound by previous decisions in similar cases.

Lord Gardiner and the appeal lords said that while former House of Lords decisions will normally be treated as binding, they will depart from previous decisions "when it appears right to do so."

This right is reserved only to the judicial peers and not to the lower courts.

★ ★ ★

One London newspaper reported the news caused a sensation at the law courts. It will be of high interest to Commonwealth and other countries where English law forms the basis of the legal system.

The lords said in their statement they regard the use of precedent as an indispensable foundation, providing at least some degree of certainty on which individuals can rely in conducting their affairs. But they also maintained that rigid adherence to precedent can cause injustice.

The lord chancellor's office explained later that an example of where the judicial peers may depart from precedent "is where they consider that the earlier decision was influenced by existence of conditions which no longer prevail and that in modern conditions the law ought to be different."

B.C. Group Offers Aid To Formosan

A young pharmacy graduate from Formosa will take his first year of post-graduate studies in Canada thanks to the idealism of a group of young B.C. lawyers and engineers.

Numbering less than 10, all of them in the Vancouver area, they have formed the China-Canada Educational Advancement Foundation as a sort of do-it-yourself international aid plan.

With modest reluctance, 35-year-old Vancouver lawyer Ian G. Pyper today told the story to The Victoria Times after his application for certificate of incorporation under the Societies Act was gazetted.

"We are all connected with a company known as the Canadian Trans-Oceanic Technical Services Ltd., which won a contract to provide engineering services in setting up a $4 million sawmill in the Republic of China (Formosa)," he said.

"It brought some of our engineers into contact with young students there who needed help to continue their schooling. "We felt that here was an opportunity to help foster more understanding between Canadians and Asians so about four months ago we got the idea of the foundation.

"We started out with one specific student seeking our help but we haven't decided yet whether we will help just one or several every year or whether we will try to send some of our students there.

SMALL GROUP

"There are about 10 of us in the foundation now but we have had some interest shown by people in the Chinese community in Vancouver who are sympathetic and they may contribute something later."

The foundation's charter empowers it to operate chiefly in the lower mainland area and Vancouver Island, covering most of the university and technological institutes in B.C.

But the first student who will receive help — Mr. Pyper said it will be "in excess of $2,000 — will go to the graduate school at the University of Ottawa because it fits in most neatly with his pharmacy degree obtained in Taiwan.

It may be a small start but the horizons are opened wide to significant hands-across-the-Pacific ventures by the foundation's constituted objects as recorded in the B.C. register:

"(a) To encourage better understanding between the peoples of East Asia and Canada by exposing the national ideals, cultures, and outlooks of the various nations to one another, and by assisting in the exchange, both of worthy students and technicians, between educational and vocational training institutions of countries in East Asia and Canada;

"(b) To establish, receive donations for, and administer a scholarship fund to be awarded for the purposes of assisting deserving students and technicians from China and other East Asian countries to enter and study at educational and vocational training institutions, and deserving students from Canada to enter and study at educational and vocational training institutions in East Asia."

SOME INDIAN NAMES 'NOT RIGHT'

OLYMPIA, WASH., (AP) — Governor Evans said Tuesday he doesn't like the Indian names chosen for two of the state's five new ferry boats and has asked the State Highway Commission to come up with something better.

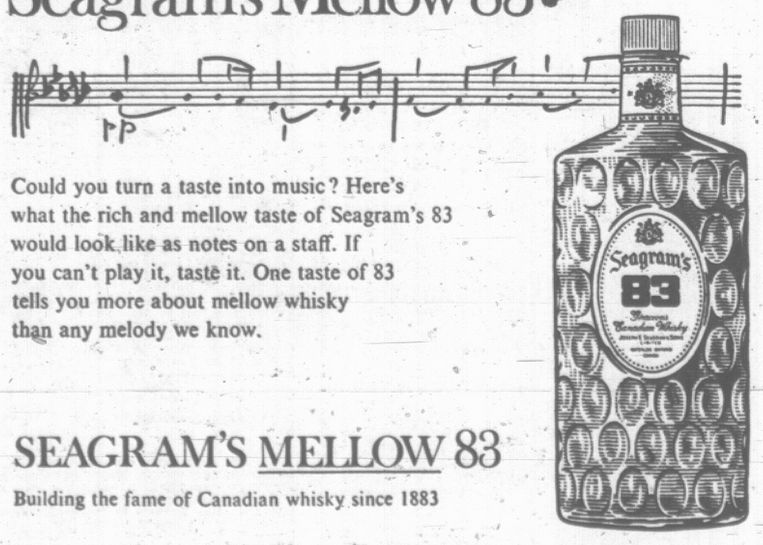

He said he has received objections to plans to name the boats "Kumtux," meaning to know or understand, and "Klatawa," to go or travel.

They just don't sound right, the governor said.

He said he has received no objections to proposed names for the other three ferries: "Hyak," meaning swift; "Kaleetan," arrow; and "Hiyu," plenty.

Rhodesia Police Seize Lecturers

College Closed Down

SALISBURY (Reuters) —Rhodesia's multi-racial University College closed down today after police swooped at dawn and detained nine white lecturers, including a Canadian, and at least nine Negro students.

A notice posted at the college said the principal, Professor Alan Milton had decided the college must close forthwith instead of Aug. 20; the start of normal holidays.

The detained lecturers were identified by the college as Gerald L. Caplan, a Canadian in the history department; Ian Henderson, C. R. Hill, C. R. Whittaker and Elizabeth Joyce, all British; Dr. I. van Velsen, a Dutchman; Alex Sommerfelt, a Norwegian; G. Marrighi, an Italian, and T. R. C. Curtin, a British-born Rhodesian.

Caplan, 28, is from Toronto. He graduated in 1960 from the University of Toronto and went to Rhodesia as an assistant lecturer while completing his work toward a doctorate of philosophy in African history.

Reports that four were released later could not be confirmed.

Sources said those detained were taken to Salisbury's main police station where they were charged under a section of Rhodesia's Law and Order (Maintenance) Act.

The raid brought to a head unrest at the college, which has simmered and erupted periodically since Rhodesia unilaterally declared independence from Britain last Nov. 11.

U.S. HAS CHOICE

'Invade North Now Or Fight 10 Years'

By GEORGE McARTHUR

SAIGON (AP)—Premier Nguyen Cao Ky gave the United States a choice today of aiding South Viet Nam another five or 10 years or invading North Viet Nam to finish the war.

Citing repeated North Vietnamese declarations to fight on as long as 20 years, Ky told a press conference:

"We have the patience but can we say the same thing of our allies? Are they ready to help us for five to 10 years . . . If not, we must destroy the Communists in their lair."

Reacting to the Johnson administration's repudiation of his suggestions for a military confrontation with China and a possible invasion of the North, Ky said: "I would say there is actually no desire to invade North Viet Nam because the struggle which we have been carying on is rather a self-defence, a struggle for self-defence."

If South Viet Nam becomes strong and a democratic and economically sound example, he continued, "the people of North Viet Nam will turn their faces to the South and will overthrow the Communist regime. This second concept requires patience and time. This is the work of five, 10 or 15 years."

POST UNDER FIRE

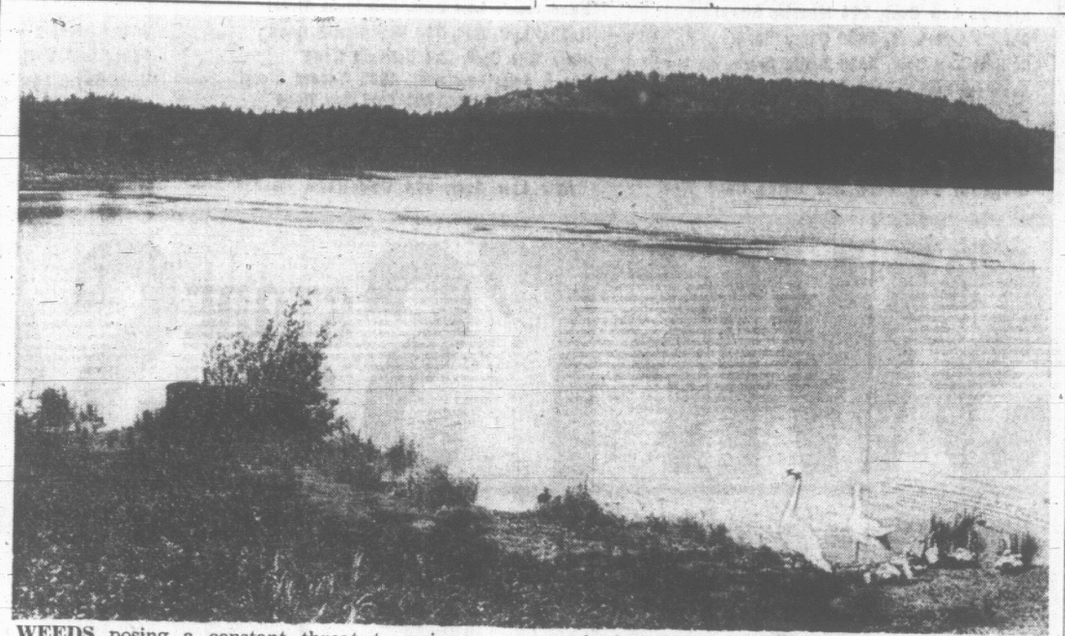

Meanwhile, the Viet Cong shelled the command post of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division at Cu Chi, 18 miles northwest of Saigon, for nearly two hours Tuesday night. A spokesman said the Viet Cong attack caused light casualties in the U.S. tent city.

U.S. air raids continued against the North and two more planes were lost, bringing the number of American planes reported downed over North Viet Nam to 310. Three planes were rescued.

TWISTING TRANSPORT TO FLY FAST, HIGH

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal-based World Wide Patents Corporation, Ltd., has come up with a design for a supersonic transport which could carry 200 passengers at speeds up to 17,000 m.p.h. at 200,000 feet.

The turbo-ram jet plane is designed to take off lengthways, then turn sideways once airborne to force the entire fuselage-wing into the airflow.

WEEDS posing a constant threat to swimmers stretch across Elk Lake. This week Victoria and Saanich are combining forces to wipe out the hazard for the balance of the summer. Parks administrator Herbert Warren told a Victoria-Saanich Parks and Beaches Committee earlier this week that there was no inexpensive way to wipe out the weeds entirely. He suggested that weed-killing funds be placed in the budget each year to enable work crews to tackle the problem early each summer before it got out of hand. (Times photo.)

Chemical Warfare Ordered on Weeds

Weed-killing specialists were out at Elk Lake this morning preparing to remove the steadily mounting hazard.

Victoria council Tuesday afternoon approved the expenditure of $1,500 as the city's half share of the $3,000 required to stifle the growth.

Saanich approved its share of the cost at a special council meeting Monday night.

The weed patches on the lake had grown to such an extent that lifeguards on duty there had warned that unless something was done speedily the lives of swimmers would be endangered.

Victoria parks administrator Herbert Warren was unavailable for comment this morning but it is understood that the weed killing operation will take place this week.

If it does the lake may be closed to swimmers for a 24-hour period. In that event warning notices will be posted at the lake.

The chemical poison used is not harmful to fish or birds but could prove a discomfort for swimmers.

Earlier this week Mr. Warren said it would take about 24-hours for the chemical to dissipate in the lake.

BULLETINS

Wilson Coming

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Wilson flies to Washington Thursday for talks overshadowed by Britain's economic problems and his failure to get Veit Nam peace talks started.

Wilson planned to leave here in the afternoon and was to spend Friday in talks with President Johnson in Washington and with Prime Minister Pearson in Ottawa before returning here Saturday.

Bus Tumbles

HONG KONG (UPI) — A bus carrying 24 passengers skidded off a road and plunged 150 feet down a cliff today. Twenty persons were injured, 12 of them seriously. Trees stopped the bus from falling farther.

Bank Robbed

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—A lone bandit escaped with loot estimated at about $1,500 today in a raid on a downtown bank.

The man, who simulated a gun by holding his hand in his pocket, took the money from a teller in a Columbia Street branch of the Bank of Montreal. No shots were fired.

Union Leaders Support Wilson

LONDON (CP)—The general council of Britain's 8,500,000-member Trades Union Congress agreed today by 20 votes to 12 to give qualified backing to the government's call for a six-month wage freeze, union sources said.

The TUC decision came after more than five hours of discussion on a recommendation from its influential economic committee.

It was made in the face of strong opposition from the Transport and General Workers Union, which is against any kind of pay standstill.

TUC agreement gives the Labor administration of Prime Minister Wilson powerful psychological support at a critical point in its bid to impose harsh austerity measures to bolster the pound sterling and the British economy.

NOT MANDATORY

But industrial experts said the union chiefs still had to persuade individual unions to carry through the standstill. And it was still not clear how far this would be successful, since it is not mandatory.

Wilson appeared in the House of Commons today to defend his government's slash in spending by nearly $2,000,000,000 as part of its austerity program.

He said the pound has been under assault because of an attack on the United States dollar. Analysing the causes of a recent flight from sterling, Wilson suggested two main elements were involved:

● Big international firms dealing in or with Britain were tempted to unload their sterling holdings for precautionary, not speculative reasons. Some companies with U.S. roots have been under Washington pressure to transfer their profits home more speedily.

● The difficulties associated with the financing of Britain's overseas trade represented the second element. These difficulties have been intensified because Britain finances her own huge trade and that of other sterling area (mainly Commonwealth) countries.

The prime minister announced a pay-price-dividend freeze last week in introducing his package of tax increases and spending cuts to save the pound. The six-month pay freeze, to be followed by a similar period of "severe restraint," was the showpiece of the package, designed to impress international financial opinion that the British would right their unbalanced economy.

Tuesday night the TUC's economic committee met with Wilson and offered him an eight-page memorandum outlining organized labor's conditions. They boiled down to exemptions for two categories: Lower-paid workers and workers whose pay rises with productivity.

George Woodcock, TUC secretary-general, said Wilson told him: "I think we might manage something along these lines."

WAGE CLAIMS

As if to illustrate the difficulties, wage claims on behalf of more than 1,000,000 white-collar workers were lodged Tuesday despite the pay freeze.

The government is drafting a bill to give legal solidity to the freeze and plans to push it through Parliament next week. It also is considering heavy taxes — perhaps as high as 80 per cent — on dividends held

Pickets Will Defy Injunction

MONTREAL (CP)—The National Federation of Services, representing Quebec's 32,500 striking non-medical workers, today advised workers not to abandon picket lines at 18 hospitals where they were ordered back to work by an interim court injunction issued Tuesday night.

A union spokesman said workers meetings held at all 18 hospitals late Tuesday voted not to respect the injunction issued by Mr. Justice Georges Pelletier at the request of the Quebec justice department. The injunction is valid until Aug. 20.

Picketers at the three hospitals in Montreal and seven in Quebec City, against whom the injunction has been issued, were reported to be maintaining their lines as usual.

LBJ Intervenes In Air Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced today President Johnson will set up an emergency board to postpone for 60 days a threatened strike against American Airlines by members of the Transport Workers' Union.

In the absence of such action, union members would have been free to strike at 12:01 a.m. Thursday.

The announcement came shortly before a Senate committee started hearing testimony on a strike that started 20 days ago against five other airlines, to determine whether legislation is needed to force a settlement.

Witnesses for the five grounded airlines, the striking machinists' union and the defence, labor and post office department opened a Senate hearing on special legislation to halt the strike.

"I think it does constitute an emergency," said Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, who appeared ready to seek quick passage if the Senate labor committee votes out a strike-stopping bill.

But President P. L. (Roy) Siemiller of the International Association of Machinists (AFL-CIO) said "the continued interference by the legislative branch of government is delaying the final time when agreement can be reached."

Chief airlines negotiator, William Curtin, is expected to tell the committee that the strike is "an urgent national problem" and that Congress should act to end it.

AFL-CIO President George Meany issued a statement supporting the machinists' stand that while the strike is inconveniencing the travelling public, it presents no threat to the country's welfare or to national defence. Meany, who urged defeat of any strike legislation, is not a witness.

U.S. URGED TO GET OUT OF EUROPE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U.S. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield called today for a two-stage withdrawal of American troops from western Europe.

He told the Senate a "good first step" would be to bring home about 75,000 men and dependents from France rather than reassigning them elsewhere in Europe.

As a second step an over-all cut of 10 per cent in U.S. troop strength in Germany and elsewhere in Europe should be made, Mansfield said.

3 WOMEN MURDERED IN BRITAIN

LONDON (UPI) — Torture, sex, mutilation, and dismemberment emerged in gruesome detail today as shocked Britons learned of the slaying of three young women.

Early today, London police said a brown corrugated cardboard parcel left beside a driveway in a residential section contained the mutilated and obviously tortured body of a young Negro woman.

In Bristol, the half-nude body of a 20-year-old girl was found crumpled against a wall, believed strangled.

And in the midlands, an exhaustive investigation continued into the slaying of a 22-year-old shorthand-typist whose dismembered body was found floating Monday in the River Trent.

World Court Rapped

NAIROBI (Reuters) — The Kenyan Parliament unanimously adopted Tuesday a government motion condemning the World Court decision on South-West Africa and urging the government to aid freedom fighters in the territory. The World Court last week dismissed Ethiopia's and Liberia's allegation that South Africa is abusing its mandate over South-West Africa.

CLEVELAND FIREBOMBING, SNIPING

'Black Panthers' Blamed for Terrorism

CLEVELAND (UPI — A 17-year-old Negro youth told a grand jury investigating last week's riots that much of the looting, firebombing and sniping had been planned by a young gang known as the "Black Panthers," it was reported today.

The secret witness, who said he was a member of the gang, supplied jurors with names of leaders and plotters and supplied dates and meeting places where acts of violence were planned, the Cleveland press reported.

Testifying for a full hour before the grand jury late Tuesday, the tall, slim Negro youth told of seeing firebombs made and names those he saw make them.

He said the Black Panthers consisted of about 200 young "hell raisers" in the racially troubled Hough area in the city's east side slum, the newspaper said.

The youth, wearing dark glasses while he testified, said the gang did more damage and precipitated more terror during the riots than any other gang. He said he himself took part in the rioting and threw several firebombs.

The jurors resumed hearing testimony today from Hough area residents and representatives of civil rights groups.

In other testimony Tuesday the Rev. Charles Rawlings said it "would have to be proved" to him that the Jomo Freedom Kenyatta (JFK) House, which was closed by city officials Tuesday night as a health hazard, was a training school for firebombers, the press said.

Rawlings, executive director of the commission on metropolitan affairs of the Greater Cleveland Council of Churches, said he was a supporter of the JFK.

"There is a danger in Cleveland," he said, "that we can become engaged in a witch hunt." He said he did not mean the grand jury investigation.

Mao Keeps His Head in Swim But What's Underneath Him?

LONDON (CP) — The Daily Mirror today pokes fun—and casts some doubt — on the photo of Mao Tse-tung, 72-year-old Chinese leader, on a nine-mile swim in the Yangtse River with four "athletic acolytes."

The New China news agency photo is "the most inscrutable picture of the year," says the Mirror. (The picture appeared in Monday's edition of the Times.)

"A few questions immediately beg an answer.

"Have you ever seen a picture of five men swimming and none of their arms showing?

"Have you ever seen a picture like this where not a man-made ripple breaks the surface?

"Have you (a cunning one this) ever seen a picture of five men swimming and not one of them with his mouth open?"

Perhaps the picture was the Chinese answer to Western rumors that Mao is in poor health but a "sinister interpretation" was tossed around diplomatic missions in London, says The Mirror.

"Were these statuesque heads less than they were purported to be?

"Were they, in fact, JUST heads?

"Were they (shades of Ian Fleming) being held high and dry by similarly inscrutable Chinese frogmen toiling dutifully below the five-knot current of the treacherous Yangtse?"

After noting other oddities in the photo, The Mirror says "the Western world must, of course, accept the validity of this picture. However:

"Only one course is left open for the Chinese to finally convince a skeptical world.

"Their 72-year-old leader must be photographed making a guest appearance as centre forward for the North Korean World Cup team."

North Korea went to the quarter-finals of the World Cup soccer tournament before bowing to Portugal 5-3 last Saturday.

. . . UNION CHIEFS

back by companies during the freeze for distribution to stockholders after the ice breaks.

With union support, the post-war Labor government held pay increases to five per cent for two years, the best record since the war. Since Wilson took office 21 months ago, wages have gone up 10 per cent.

The 1948 - 49 austerity program, organized by Sir Stafford Cripps, produced an increase of 25 per cent in Britain's exports and an annual increase in production of seven per cent.

VOTE TONIGHT

Tonight the house ends a two-day debate on Wilson's economic package and was expected to vote down a Conservative motion censuring Wilson's management of the economy.

The present package also involves a seven-per-cent interest rate, higher consumer taxes and promises to cut government spending.

Tuesday night Conservative Leader Edward Heath accused Wilson's team of failing to check "over - manning, restrictive practices, too little competition generally, low incentives, mass government spending and regional imbalance."

RAIN SLOWS TRACTORS

TORONTO (CP)—Rain today temporarily stalled the tractor procession of 79 farmers heading for Toronto to meet with Ontario government representatives.

The delay may mean that the farmers will arrive late for a meeting with Premier John Robarts.

Criticism of Doctors 'Not for Other MDs'

TORONTO (CP) — Unless a patient needs help to establish a claim of malpractice or negligence, a doctor should not comment on the work of a previous doctor, says the secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Medical Protective Association.

Dr. T. L. Fisher of Ottawa, writing in the July 16 edition of the Canadian Medical Association Journal, said that a patient's trust is essential in doctor-patient relationships.

Petty criticism of doctors by doctors undermined "one part of the foundation of practice and so would harm patients."

No information or comment that will contribute to a patient's well-being, however, should be withheld from a patient, even when the information "may allow the inference that the previous doctor's work was poor."

But except in certain circumstances it is wrong to comment on a previous doctor's work because "he cannot know the circumstances in which treatment had been given and he cannot know that he would have done as well under the same circumstances.

"To plant doubts unnecessarily in patients' minds is unkind, is wrong, and harms patients."

U.K. Moves To Ban Pirate Radio

LONDON (Reuters) — The British government today presented to Parliament a bill designed to put out of business pirate radio stations which beam non - stop programs of rock 'n' roll and commercials at Britain.

There now are 10 pirate stations, operating from ships and abandoned sea forts outside territorial waters. They claim audiences of 7,000,000 to 10,000,000 for their programs, which compete with the state-owned BBC.

The bill, to be published Thursday, is expected to ban broadcasting from ships, aircraft, and certain marine structures and to make it an offence for a British citizen to work for or aid the pirate stations, or to advertise on them.

Heavy fines will be imposed on anyone breaking the law which is expected to come into force in March.

Meanwhile the government is looking into plans for a 24-hour pop-music service on the BBC.

Processions Banned

BELFAST (AP) — The Northern Ireland government banned public processions for three months Monday night in an effort to half worsening religious strife. Gatherings of three or more persons "likely to cause a breach of the peace" will be considered an offence.

Gas and Flame Mix 'Pure Foolishness'

The use of an acetylene torch on a car gas tank in a Central Saanich service station Tuesday was described by police as "pure foolishness."

After the gas tank was cut out of a stock car by acetylene torch at Mount Newton B.A. Service it fell, gas spilled from it and was ignited.

Although firemen from the Central Saanich station, directly across the street from the blaze raced to help, flames billowed and quickly burned the car.

The service station proprietor reported little damage to his premises.

Thant Assured Of Red Support

MOSCOW (AP)—U Thant has been assured the support of the Soviet Union for another term as secretary - general of the United Nations, but says he has not made up his mind yet, informed sources reported today.

The sources said Premier Kosygin told Thant during a long talk Tuesday the Soviet government wants him to accept re-election when his current five-year term expires Nov. 3.

Thant is to announce by early September whether he will seek re-election.

Vice - President Hubert Humphrey announced U.S. support of a second term for Thant last month and Britain and France also have endorsed a second term publicly. With this support there is no doubt Thant can remain if he wants to.

The secretary-general is chosen by the General Assembly on recommendation of the Security Council. The assembly's annual session begins Sept. 20.

Thant has urged UN members to try to find another candidate because he wants to spend more time with his family and to return to his home in Burma.

Thant spent three hours in conference with Kosygin Tuesday and a UN spokesman said afterward they had "a free, frank exchange of views" on Viet Nam, disarmament and European problems.

The spokesman would not say whether the question of the UN deficit, which results largely from the refusal of Russia and France to pay their share of UN peacekeeping costs, came up.
